Robbery Complaints Up 500% In a Week

Officially Reported Felonies Double, Showing Virtual End of Pocketing

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Robbery complaints reported officially on the police teletype increased almost 500 per cent during the week.

Felonies reported to the Police Central Bureau almost doubled during the same period.

An examination of police precinct and teletype records showed yesterday that since The Post printed its first article on June 28, disclosing more than 600 hidden crime complaints, the practice of "pocketing" reports practically has been eliminated.

Teletype records, from which crime statistics are gathered by the Police Headquarters Statistical Bureau, showed during the week of June 16 to 22 there were five robberies reported. The next week there were nine.

From 9 to 43

For the week of June 30 to July 6, during which a series of stories in The Post exposed the practice, the total jumped to 43.

A similarly startling increase was noted in all felony complaints, including robberies, listed on official records.

The teletype showed that during the week of June 16 to 22 there were 102 felonies reported to Police Headquarters. The following week there were 104.

The week after The Post's expose, felonies leaped to 191.

The jump in crimes reported did not indicate an unusual summer crime wave.

Reporters checking precinct "Volume" books where felony complaints are recorded, found only a few complaints have been marked "hold." And these were cleared in a matter of hours after detectives finished preliminary checks.

600 Robberies Hidden

This was in contrast with the practice before the investigation. Reporters found more than 600 robbery complaints from July 1, 1946 to May 31, 1947, had been hidden in the Detective Bureau and precincts. They were in addition to the 761 robberies reported in official statistics.

The hidden cases had never been reported on the teletype, from which crime statistics are gathered. They were hidden from the public which was unable to judge the effectiveness of the Metropolitan Police in preventing and solving crimes.

The practice had been in effect for several years, during which Washington ranked high in FBI national crime statistics in effectiveness of local police.

Surgeon's Action Saves Patient's Life in Darkness

Paterson, N. J., July 7 (AP).—When a power failure plunged the operating room of St. Joseph's Hospital into darkness last night, a surgeon held a patient's severed abdominal artery for 30 minutes until the hospital's emergency lighting system was put into operation.

Dr. V. W. Giudice, performing an appendectomy, made the incision just as the operating room went dark. Noticing blood was spurting, Dr. Giudice located the artery in the darkness and clasped it to prevent further loss of blood.

The surgeon successfully completed the operation after the emergency lighting system was started, and the 65-year-old patient was said to have suffered no ill effects.

Who Stole Sister's Car?

Police Doubt Clerk's 'Suicide,' Seek Walkie-Talkie Salesman

Fairfax County, Va., police last night suspected murder in the death of a 29-year-old clerk of the Small Claims Court here, which earlier was termed a suicide.

They broadcast an alarm to "hold for investigation of murder" the occupant or occupants of the reportedly stolen automobile of the dead man's sister.

They also searched for a mysterious house guest, identified only as "Jack" or "Joe," a "walkie-talkie salesman, believed to be the last man to see the victim alive.

The victim, Norman Leroy Plank, an Army veteran, was found dead Sunday night in the basement of the home of his sister, Mrs. Nellie L. Burrer, of 4106 Forest le Chesterbrook, near Falls Church, with whom he lived.

His body was found crumpled at the foot of the cellar steps, a bullet hole in his right temple. By his side lay a .22-caliber target pistol.

Fairfax County Coroner Dr. Nelson Podolnick examined the body Sunday night and issued a certificate of death by suicide.

At 6 p. m., yesterday, Dr. Podolnick said he had withdrawn the suicide verdict "for the time being—and pending further investigation." He said he took the action "after being informed of possible murder developments" by Fairfax County police.

Police found that the dead man's sister's car had been stolen from the house garage, a complete suit of her son's clothes had been stolen, and someone had left behind another set of dirtied clothes.

Lieut. Henry Magarity, county detective chief, reported that upon closer investigation of the house he found "it had been gone over" by someone apparently searching for valuables. Nothing but the suit of clothes was known to have been taken, he said.

Magarity said Mrs. Burrer told

D. C. Stores Undecided on Md. Sales Tax

Majority of Dealers Waiting to See What 'Big' Merchants Do

Although between 300 and 400 applications for Maryland sales tax licenses have been distributed to District merchants, only 20 have been actually applied for, the Maryland State Sales Tax Division disclosed yesterday.

According to William H. Press, executive secretary of the District Board of Trade, most of the District dealers "are waiting to see what the big stores do."

He said that he was "reasonably certain that most of those taking application blanks have not filed for licenses." Some have picked up the forms, he said, commenting that Maryland "has a lot of gall asking us to help collect the tax for them."

Members of the department store section of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association will meet at 10:30 a. m. today in the Star Building in a closed session to discuss the Maryland tax levy.

The executive secretary of the association, Edward D. Shaw, said that "a good many dealers are waiting before applying." He said that building supply, fuel oil and coal dealers had decided to apply for the tax licenses.

A total of 36,000 licenses have been issued, including 945 in Prince Georges County, 917 in Montgomery County and 20 in the District, a tax division side said in Baltimore.

More than 40 investigators and auditors will hold a preliminary meeting in Baltimore today before beginning a State-wide checkup on operation of the tax.

Meanwhile, four Baltimore hotels instituted court proceedings yesterday in an effort to invalidate State sales tax charges on "living accommodations or other services" for transient guests.

The petition was filed in Circuit Court by Hilary W. Gans, attorney for the Lord Baltimore, Emerson, Southern and Sheraton-Belvedere Hotels.

The suit said the title of the act contained no mention of a tax "on service of any kind," and that provisions of the act taxing services were therefore unconstitutional.

Democrats Prepare Own Tax Cut Bill

Leaders Reported Ready to Counter Knutson Measure

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Democratic leaders last night were reported ready to counter the GOP's 10½ to 30 per cent income tax cuts with a January 1 program of tax reduction believed acceptable to the Administration.

As the Knutson bill cleared the House Rules Committee, for a second House show-down today, minority leaders, in consultation with Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, started framing a motion to recommit.

Details of what amounts to the first attempt to substitute the Administration's own program were not complete, but the recommit motion may include the following:

1. An increase in personal income tax exemptions from $500 to $600 or $700.

Would Aid Married Couples

2. Authority for married couples to split their income for tax purposes in all States. Only in 10 so-called community property States are they now permitted to do so.

3. Repeal of wartime increases in so-called "luxury" taxes.

The third item may be dropped if it runs the total cost of the program over the four billion dollar price tag on the Knutson measure.

Although initial House passage of the GOP measure was generally taken for granted last night, there was no certainty it would survive another vote. The Democratic leadership counter-proposal was reportedly being framed to beat the bill in the second round if it fails to stop it in the first.

Highlight Aid in Low Brackets

Heretofore Democrats in both Houses have fought as a body to postpone any tax reduction. The shift in strategy is designed to meet the Knutson bill's own postponement of the cut from July 1, 1947. It would highlight low bracket tax relief as opposed to what Democrats charge is a Republican "windfall to the wealthy."

As cleared yesterday by the Rules Committee the Knutson bill, barring the date change, is identical with the measure that collided with a "wrong time, wrong bill" veto.

Democratic House members were being privately assured last night

Governor Receives Politicos

Pre-Convention Fight Develops In Texas Over Dewey Vs. Taft

Sapulpa, Okla., July 7 (AP).—Texas supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican presidential nomination predicted today the New Yorker would receive a "substantial" number of the State's 31 delegate votes at the 1948 national convention.

Texas has developed into a behind-the-scenes preconvention battleground between forces of Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft for the nomination.

George Hopkins of Dallas headed a steady stream of Republican political figures who visited Dewey today in his hotel suite.

The visit of Hopkins, who was accompanied by William C. Briggs, chairman of the local CIO committee of Paducah, Texas, was disclosed by the Dewey staff after he had started back for Dallas.

It was understood, however, from a source close to Hopkins that he assured Dewey the Republican tide in the Lone Star State was running toward his candidacy.

The entire Texas delegation supported Dewey in his successful bid for the 1944 presidential nomination. In 1940, Taft's floor manager at the national convention was Col. R. B. Creager, Texas national committeeman.

It is understood here that Creager heads a sizable group of influential Texas Republicans favorably disposed toward Taft.

However, at a spring meeting of the Republican National Committee at which Philadelphia was

Conference Clears D. C. Revenue Bill

Leaders to Press For Approval Today; Loopholes Closed In Income Tax Plan

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's 12-million-dollar revenue bill cleared its final Capitol conference yesterday, and District leaders said they will try to start the measure to the White House today.

The joint conference committee agreed unanimously to ask approval in both houses for a revised plan to exempt Federal employes from the District income tax if they have a legal domicile in a State.

The revision was designed to close loopholes in the Federal employe exemption plan for which Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) won 3-1 backing in the House. O'Hara's original plan had raised a question that Federal workers with domiciles outside the District would have to pay taxes neither on their salaries nor on income from private sources in the District.

Point Is Clarified

New language approved by the conference group makes clear that the Federal employes with domiciles in a State will pay no District income tax on their official salaries, or on income from outside the District. Income they received from business or a private job in the District would be subject to the local tax. The exemption will not extend to District employes.

Senate Committee Counsel James R. Kirkland said one effect of the income tax plan would be that metropolitan police would pay the tax, where Park, Capitol and White House police would not.

He said another example of different treatment would be that of two brothers moving into the District but keeping their domicile in a State. The one who went to work for the Federal Government would be exempt, and the one who got a job in a store would be subject to the income tax.

Generally, it was pointed out, persons other than Federal employes who live in the District seven months or more in the year would have to file returns here. They could deduct from the local income tax the full amount of a State income or intangible property tax they had to pay. If the State tax was higher, the District would not collect.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said he would ask the Senate to approve the revised bill to clear the revenue measure, although personally opposed to the O'Hara plan.

Senator Cain said his next move will be to introduce a bill calling for the repeal of all District individual income taxes effective next January 1, and would seek action on it early next year.

Mentions Sales Tax

District officials estimated passage of such a bill would produce immediate need for four to five million dollars a year in substitute revenue.

Senator Cain said a sales tax would be one of the "obvious possibilities" to get the revenue, but added he did not want now to commit himself to that kind of tax.

Meanwhile, the House Appropriation Committee is slated to act today on the city's 96-million-dollar appropriation bill for 1948. Members said an effort may be made to obtain House passage today, instead of waiting until tomorrow as originally planned.

As cleared for final action, the city revenue bill will:

Czechs Ready To Attend Paris Parley

Other Countries in Soviet Sphere Hold Decision on Joining Marshall Aid Talks

By Joseph E. Dynan

Paris, July 7 (AP).—Czechoslovakia was reported tonight to have decided on acceptance of a British-French invitation to attend the Paris conference which opens Saturday on the Marshall aid-Europe plan.

An Associated Press dispatch from Prague quoted semiofficial circles as saying the decision had been reached at a closed session of the Czech government.

While other countries in the Soviet sphere of influence delayed any immediate decision, sources here hailed the Prague report as a possible indication that "eastern," as well as "western," European nations would be present at the meeting, designed to start the Marshall plan rolling.

The French Foreign Ministry said tonight it had decided to wait until replies had been received from all 22 invited nations, before making any further announcements of acceptances.

Earlier, the ministry said six nations had accepted formally, and eight others were expected to do so soon. The six are Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Eire, Greece and Turkey. Acceptances "in principle" have been received unofficially from Holland, Luxembourg, Austria, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, the ministry added. Reports from the Hague said Holland definitely had accepted.

[A radio Moscow broadcast said that Romania, Po nadland Yugoslavia had decided against participating.

[Moscow quoted a dispatch datelined Bucherest as saying: "It has become known here that the Romanian government had decided not to take part in the Paris conference."

[Poland and Yugoslavia's rejections were announced by Moscow Radio under a Paris dateline, the United Press said.]

Russia refused last week to participate. However, British and French sources said they still had not given up hope the Soviets would attend Saturday's conference.

Reports from various European capitals indicated that the Marshall plan has posed a political dilemma, particularly for those governments which are Communist-dominated.

This was the picture:

Poland—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said his government was "very interested" in the conference, and would decide shortly whether to attend.

Hungary—A reliable Hungarian informant said some members of the government had drafted a note asking the Allied Control Commission for permission to accept the invitation, and that the cabinet would consider the draft tomorrow.

Yugoslavia—Marshal Tito was reported conferring in the summer capital of Bled with his lieutenants. Informed circles predicted a joint Yugoslav-Albanian answer.

Romania—The government was said to be inclined to reject the invitation, but might reconsider if Poland and Czechoslovakia decided to participate.

Austria—The cabinet was expected ot accept the invitation tomorrow, despite Communist opposition.

Italy—The government began working on the Italian approach to the conference. The Communists gave Italy's participation a conditional indorsement.

Finland—The cabinet met to

While Science Sneers

Air Forces Intelligence Joins Search for Flying Saucers

Army Air Forces intelligence yesterday disclosed it has joined the search for a flying saucer.

Bizarre reports on the whirling, high-speed discs continued to pour in, drawing an official statement from the AAF, much cynicism from science and the offer of $1000 for the first one downed.

The Air Forces, which has jurisdiction of the White Sands (N. Mex.) Rocket Proving Grounds, denied the saucers are any of its doing. "No such phenomena can be explained by any experiments being conducted," the statement said.

From the Naval Research Laboratory's Rear Admiral Paul F. Lee came the curt comment: "We concur in the Army announcement."

Neither denied existence of the discs, but the AAF said statements of witnesses are being correlated "in an effort to identify the reported objects."

With few States in the Nation without at least one flying saucer report, the AAF has a chore.

A Navy flier with five years' experience tabbed the discs as "space ships" after at first considering all reports as "crazy." He changed his mind, he said in Alameda, Calif., yesterday, after he and about 50 other persons saw a group of about "50 of the saucers in triangular formation near Auburn Saturday."

One report which won't trouble the AAF is that of a commercially operated, converted P-38, whose pilot said he had knocked one of the "pearl-colored, clam-shaped airplanes" out of the Montana sky. He admitted the story was a hoax.

In Washington, Dr. L. R. Hafstad, executive secretary of the Joint Research and Development Board and former director of the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory, said:

"Poppycock!"

Dr. Jesse Sprowls, psychology professor at the University of Maryland, said, "There is absolutely no limit to the delusion that the mind can harbor. A tremendously interesting social psychological delusion," he added.

Dr. Ivan E. McDougle of Baltimore's Goucher College, said he guessed "it's one of those phychological epidemics where people see things that aren't there."

But C. J. Zohn, 440 Mellon st., se., who works in the rocket-sonde, high altitude research section of the Naval Research Laboratory, yesterday reported he and three other men saw one "saucer" in New Mexico June 29. He described

Northern Coal Accord Averts Strike Today; Pattern Believed Set

Western, Southern Operators Expected To Fall in Line In Next Few Days

BULLETIN

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers policy committee last night ratified an agreement with the northern coal operators for a $1.20 a day wage increase but directed the miners covered by the pact not to return to work until it is formally signed at 10 a. m. EST today.

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis and the Northern coal operators last night reached a "tentative agreement," reduced to the form of a written contract. It awaited only formal ratification to become effective and thus prevent a Nation-wide strike in the coal pits today.

Ratification by both sides was confidently anticipated. Lewis' 200-man policy committee of the United Mine Workers was to vote on the question at 9 last night. Their agreement was taken for granted. Operators were also to meet last night, and a signing of the contract was expected this morning.

The agreement will probably not be reached in sufficient time to get miners back to work, after their 10-day annual vacation, on the first shift at 7 a. m. today. But the second shift, which usually shows up for work at 4 p. m., is expected to turn out.

Other Areas Unaffected

The arrangement will settle the controversy as far as 150,000 miners in Northern collieries and "captive" mines are concerned. Still without a contract, however, are some 200,000 workers in Southern, Midwestern and Far Western pits.

They, it was assumed, will simply prolong their "vacation," by declining to work without an agreement. But observers believed that operators of those mines would settle up, however reluctant they may be, within the next few days.

The Western group are expected to be the first to agree. As for the Southerners, it was believed that too many were now willing to accept the terms won by Lewis from the Northerners to permit the Southern group to hold out as a bloc. Even the die-hards, it was thought, will be forced to sign up, or risk losing their market.

Thus, there was every assurance last night that a serious, or long drawn out strike was no longer a threat.

Terms Not Officially Revealed

Terms of the contract were not immediately revealed in official form. But it has been known that the new contract gives the miners what amounts to a 31½-cent-an-hour wage increase, a working day of eight hours (to replace the former nine-hour day, a doubled employer contribution to the miners' welfare fund, amounting to 10 cents for each ton of coal mined, and inclusion of the Federal mine safety code.

These terms had been agreed to

Fewer Little Pigs to Market

Meat Shortage Next Winter Feared in Runaway Corn Price

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Department of Agriculture officials expressed growing concern yesterday over the increasing danger of a meat shortage this winter and all next year, as corn prices continued their dizzy climb.

Corn, which yesterday went above $2.17 at Chicago, has reached a point where feeding livestock may be unprofitable.

Although livestock prices are only slightly below the all-time highs reached a few months ago, they still are too low to promise a profit to feeders.

It is a time-honored rule that when 100 pounds of hogs can't buy 12 or more bushels of corn, there is no money in raising livestock.

The last official figures on the relationship between hogs and corn was figured at the Production and Marketing Administration June 28. At that time the 100 pounds of hogs would only buy 10.2 bushels of corn.

Since then corn has broken through the previous all-time high, set in 1919, of $1.99⅞. Yesterday it was 17 cents above that figure.

Hog prices have only slightly advanced since then, so that the disparity now is even greater.

The extent of the decline in the spread between hogs and corn is shown in the fact that a few months ago the ratio stood at 16 to 1.

The result, according the Charles Burmeister, hog-corn expert of the Production and Marketing Administration, is that farmers are marketing their livestock.

The marketing peak for the fall pig crop normally falls in the last two weeks of May and the first week of June.

This year, instead of the seasonal decline after June 10, swine deliveries have gone up.

In the week ending June 28, receipts at the 12 leading stockyards totaled 267,544 head; against 242,-

Summer Corn Exports Canceled for Other Grains

The Department of Agriculture yesterday canceled export during July and August of 6,740,000 bushels of corn.

Corn will be replaced by wheat, barley and grain sorghums.

The action was taken, the department said, to reserve "available stocks of corn for domestic use, in view of the reduced prospects for the 1947 corn crop.

Russian Bloc In U. N. Seeks Ban on Atom

Gromyko Lines Up Committee Majority As Press Looks On

By Peter Khiss

Lake Success, L. I., July 7.—Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, lined up a tentative majority today for complete prohibition of all atomic weapons, which would bar even the projected United Nations police force from using the dread atomic bomb.

The Soviet drive took place in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission working committee, thrown open to the press this afternoon for the first time, so that "the peoples of the world may know what is going on," as Frederick H. Osborn, American delegate expressed it.

The Soviet and Australia joined in the move to admit the press.

Favors Quota System

Earlier Gromyko in the control committee had indicated the Soviet might agree to some kind of quota control in world atomic development. Hitherto, he has proposed only that the future world control agency make recommendations and presentations to governments on the matters of the production and use of atomic energy."

There was still no indication from him today of how binding such recommendations would be, and the Soviet still objects to international operation of atomic plants.

U. S. Isn't Committed

The working committee tonight entrusted a four-nation subcommittee to drafe a bomb prohibition proposal but the nUited States was still leaving the issue open. France protested the armanent of a world force was something for the Security Council to rule upon, not for the atomic delegates.

But Gromyko, in swift movement, had obtained statements from british, Canadian, Brazilian, Chinese and Australian delegates indorsin gthe complete ban, although they coupled this with in-

Truman Again Asks Congress To Admit DPs

Message Stresses European Refugees Fear Communism

(See Text Page 8)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday again urged Congress to take speedy action to admit a "substantial number" of Europe's displaced persons into the United States. He emphasized that they were anti-Communist.

There are close to a million of these unfortunates in camps in western Germany, Austria and Italy. Most of them were slave workers in the days of Hitler. They were brought into Germany from the North Baltic area, Poland, the Russian Ukraine and Yugoslavia.

Mr. Truman, in his message to Congress, said it was unthinkable that these people should be left indefinitely in camps, and added that they could not be turned out in Germany "into the community of the very people who persecuted them."

Fear Persecution

He said that they also fear persecution if they went back to the countries whence they came, all of which are now dominated by Russia.

"Because they are not Communists and are opposed to communism," Mr. Truman said, "they have stanchly resisted all efforts to return them to Communist-controlled areas . . ."

"The only civilized course is to enable these people to take new roots in friendly soil. Already certain countries of western Europe and Latin America have opened their doors to substantial numbers of these displaced persons. Plans for making homes for more of them in other countries are under consideration. But our plain duty requires that we join with other nations in solving this tragic problem."

Immigration quotas now are a bar to admitting the substantial number which Mr. Truman thinks

Most Fail on Mental Tests

Army Rejects 1 of Every 2 Applicants for Enlistment

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army today is turning down one out of every two applicants for enlistment, its recruiting chief states.

Three out of every five men rejected failed to meet stricter mental requirements, Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, chief of the War Department's military personnel procurement service, told the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Testimony on the 1948 Army supply bill made public yesterday revealed also that General Streett feels that his job of maintaining the Army at required strength by the volunteer system won't be "tough" if civilian leaders back a "salesmanship campaign" he is launching.

"We have raised our standards—our intelligence requirements," Streett said. "We feel that we cannot have the kind of Army that we had years gone by, where the moron and the ne'er-do-well were welcome. They are no longer welcome."

The Army chief said that volunteers for the ground forces now must have the equivalent of a grammar school education, plus some high school. Air forces applicants must score 90 on their Army general classification test—10 points higher than ground force volunteers. A score of 99 is the equivalent of a high school education.

Cash-for-Leave Bill Passed by House

Measure Allows Ex-GIs to Convert Bonds After Sept. 1

The House yesterday passed without a dissenting voice legislation authorizing nine million World War II holders of $1,800,000,000 in terminal leave bonds to turn them in for cash.

A 386 to 0 record vote sent the bill to the Senate, where hearings will start tomorrow before the Armed Services Committee.

The legislation has never been definitely budgeted by the Senate Policy Committee but Senate Majority Whip Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) predicted it would be.

Bear 2½% Interest

Said Wherry: "I am speaking as an individual Senator but I expect the Senate leadership to agree to take it up and pass it."

The terminal leave authorization, compensating enlisted personnel for unused accrued leave up to 120 days, was originally passed by the House last session on a cash basis. The Senate substituted five-year bonds, bearing 2½ per cent interest.

The so-called Blackney bill passed yesterday gives former GIs the optional right to cash the bonds at face value plus accrued interest through local banks after September 1, or to hold them for interest. The Armed Services Committee estimated about a billion dollars in bonds would be cashed. The bill further extends the time for applying for terminal leave pay until September 1, 1948.

The Treasury has consistently opposed the cash-for-bonds plan, fearing its inflationary effect on already high living costs.

Suggests Veto Possibility

House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) suggested the possibility of another veto when he charged the Administration with "working both sides of the street." He said the Democratic National Committee had "upbraided" Republicans for not cashing the bonds, even while the Treasury opposed it.

"What side of the street is Mr. Truman working?" he said. "We may meet another veto."

Representative Dwight L. Rogers, author of the original terminal leave act of 1946, charged Republicans "got behind the cashing legislation when they saw how popular it is."

"This is still my baby," he told the House.

Halley and Representative William W. Blackney (R., Mich.) argued that each bond cashed represents a savings to the Treasury in interest. No specific appropriation would be required to cash the bonds, now part of the public debt.

Blackney told the House terminal leave "represents earned pay and to require the veteran to wait five years to receive his pay represents an injustice."

Army Surplus
'VD' Match Book Sales Are Halted

By The Associated Press

The Army said yesterday it has stopped the sale of surplus book matches whose covers contain information on control of venereal disease.

The War Department made public a letter from Secretary of War Patterson to Max H. Sorensen, national commander of the Catholic War Veterans, who had demanded that the Army impound the match covers and destroy them. The letter said:

"The matches to which you refer were sold to commercial concerns and contain printed matter relative to VD control, malaria control, march discipline, and utilization of water for drinking purposes. At the time of sale the stocks were not segregated. However, all book matches with covers to which you specifically object are now being segregated and you may be assured that no further sale of these items will be made by the Army."

Several slogans appear on different match covers.

They include:

"Even Snafu knows VD can be prevented!"

"You're no match for VD . . . No is the best tactic . . . the next prophylactic."

"VD easy to pick up."

Sorensen had demanded that the Army destroy the match books because they were "crude," "vulgar" and in "shabby taste."

In a telegram to Patterson he asked an investigation of Government agencies "suddenly advocating promiscuity" through the covers and deplored "so-called advertising flaunting the moral law of God."

"We particularly protest against the wiseacre copy employed to promote the use of unnatural devices and promiscuity," the telegram said.

him she talked with a man who identified himself as "either Jack or Joe, a walkie-talkie salesman" when she telephoned her brother at the Falls Church home Saturday afternoon.

The unknown guest reportedly was helping her brother "clean up the house after a Friday night party" when she called.

Mrs. Burrer, who said she made the telephone call from Marlyand, where she was vacationing over the holiday weekend, said she talked briefly with the man "in a sort of joking way," when her brother introduced him to her over the telephone.

Nephew Discovers Victim

She returned home early yesterday after her son, Donald, 19, had returned from a separate vacation trip Sunday night and found Plank dead.

Fairfax County police said last night they interrogated all the guests at the dead man's Friday night party, without learning the identity of the "radio salesman" who reportedly visited with Plank the next day. Plank, the guests said, drove them home from the party in the now-missing automobile.

Dr. Podolnick said last night he issued the suicide certificate Sunday night upon examination of the body and after preliminary investigation of the "dead man's background."

The victim, he said, had suffered recurrent attacks of an undulant fever contracted while in Army service and often complained of the malady.

Mrs. Burrer, the dead man's sister, said she left her automobile, a 1940 Buick, four-door black sedan, at a Washington garage before leaving town on Thursday. Her brother, she said, told her in the Saturday telephone conversation that he had brought the car home from the garage.

Coroner Podolnick declared he would probe for the bullet in an autopsy at Alexandria Hospital "to determine how far the gun was from the victim's head when it was fired." The coroner said there was "some evidence of powder burns."

Plank had been employed as a deputy clerk at the Small Claims Court here since January, 1944. He served in the Army from 1941 through 1943 and prior to military service was a medical secretary at a hospital in Mansfield, Ohio.

Judge Miller to Preside

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—Judge Burnett Miller, jr., of the Ninth Judicial Circuit, was designated today by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to preside in Richmond County Circuit Court beginning July 9. He will replace Judge E. Hugh Smith, who is ill.

chosen as the convention site, Creager was quoted as saying there was considerable Dewey sentiment in Texas but that it was too early to make commitments.

Governor Dewey interrupted his conferences this afternoon to visit the Will Rogers memorial shrine at Claremore in company with Lew Wentz, GOP National Committeeman from Oklahoma.

"There is no boss in Oklahoma. There is no one man who can deliver Oklahoma to any one candidate. No one can say what the delegates will do. But if you ask me what the sentiment of the Republican voters is in Oklahoma, I'd say they are for Dewey."

Dewey, his wife and two sons are on a four-week Western tour. They arrived in Sapulpa Sunday for a three-day visit with Mrs. Dewey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Hutt.

Among those with whom Dewey conferred today were editors of several Oklahoma newspapers.

Several hundred persons are expected to greet the Governor at a public reception for him and Mrs. Dewey at the Elks Club tomorrow afternoon.

The Dewey party will leave Sapulpa Wednesday afternoon for Kansas City, where they will stop overnight before entraining for Salt Lake City.

Among those scheduled to talk with the Governor at Kansas City are B. T. Mattingly and Harry Darby, National committeeman from Missouri and Kansas, respectively.

Missourians Disagree On Supporting Dewey

St. Louis, July 7 (AP).—E. W. Bromwich, treasurer of the Missouri Republican Committee, said today he disagreed with Barak T. Mattingly's prediction that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would get this State's 33 votes for the presidential nomination at the national convention next June.

Mattingly, national committeeman from Missuori, was quoted as saying he had assured the Governor of the State's support during Dewey's brief stop here Saturday.

Bromwich told reporters, "in contacting Republican leaders throughout the State I have found considerable support for former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen. Many of us feel that he would be an excellent candidate because of his outstanding record as Governor, his service in the Navy and his frankness in meeting issues squarely and openly."

that the President will reject it again. Reassurance was needed to stiffen House Democratic backs. To oppose a tax bill, that the President subsequently signed, could be politically fatal to some.

The Rules Committee approved the usual "gag" rule, barring changes in the bill on the floor. The rule, however, permits one Democratic motion to recommit. To this the Administration Minority would tie its counter proposals "instructing" the committee to change the bill.

During brief hearings before the Rules group yesterday Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.)) said the President ought to sign. Representative E. E. Cox (D., Ga.)) remarked, "I don't think he'll sign but I think both houses will over-ride his veto."

Senate GOP Not Certain

Senate Republican leaders were not so sure. They apparently have the votes to pass the House bill unchanged and send it to the White House. But they haven't yet counted, in a continuing poll, the two-thirds majority needed to over-ride.

Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) predicted the bill will clear his committee tomorrow. It will be called up in the Senate Thursday or Friday, immediately following passage of the Army-Navy unification measure. Leaders will hold the Senate in Saturday session in an effort to pass it this week.

There were no threats of filibuster, but Senate Democrats plan to offer a long list of amendments, including all of the key points in the House recommit motion.

Two of these were embodied in a substitute bill offered independently in the House yesterday by Representative J. Vaughan Gary (D., Va.). Gary said he hadn't talked with House minority leaders.

Gary's bill would raise personal exemptions from $500 to $700. He said this would remove ten million bottom bracket taxpayers from the tax rolls and grant some relief in all brackets. His bill also would give husbands and wives in all States the privilege of dividing their income equally for tax reporting purposes.

Auto Crash Kills Rohresville Man

Hagerstown, Md., July 7 (AP).—Clifford Haines, 34, of Rohresville, was fatally injured early today when an automobile went out of control and struck a telephone pole on Route 67 at Trego intersection, a mile and a half south of Rohresville.

He was brought to Washington County Hospital, here, where he was pronounced dead shortly before 6 a. m.

State Trooper Clyde Tucker said Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Shiffler, jr., of Locust Grove were taken to the hospital with injuries, and four other passengers and the driver were unhurt. Shiffler suffered chest injuries, and his wife severe lacerations of the face and head.

Short Supply Of Meat Seen

185 the week of June 21 and 247,387 the week of June 14.

This increase indicates a desire by farmers to sell lighter animals rather than continue feeding.

"In order to overcome the present shortage of meats, the department asked for a 15 per cent increase in pig farrowing this fall," Burmeister explained.

Instead, our early estimates based on June surveys indicated an increase of only 9 per cent.

"However, this corn price increase coming just at breeding time endangers even that. We are afraid it may cause the farmers to change their plans for this years pig crop."

As for the Nation's cattle supply, Burmeister remarked that the Nation right now is "living on its reserve."

Marketing of cattle have been above production for several months. In other words, more cattle are being slaughtered than calves are being born.

That means, Burmeister added, that in 1948 and 1949 there will be "less beef."

Cattle slaughter has been the highest on record, due to the strongest demand for meat ever known. This, in turn, has been due to the greatest national income in America's history.

Less Top-Grade Beef

Higher corn prices will not only cut down the intentions of farmers to corn-fatten cattle, but will result in a lower proportion of top-grade AA beef Corn is the chief ingredient making top-grade beef.

At the Commodity Exchange Authority the rapid rise in corn prices is being closely watched, but officials admitted there was little they could do.

One remarked that "there is too little corn and too many want it."

One department official remarked that this year's disastrous corn-growing weather has been overdue.

"Since 1937 to date has been the longest period of good weather we have ever known," he remarked.

Although corn has the spotlight now, it is only taking its turn in reaching an all-time peak in prices.

During the year cattle, hogs, and now corn have each reached record highs. Wheat reached a near all-time high of $3.05 in March.

Many Record Prices

Both cattle and hogs today are selling at prices unheard of before this year. Prime cattle were selling at $28 to $29.25 per hundred pounds in Chicago yesterday, against a previous high this year of around $30. Its previous high was $23.90 in 1919.

Hogs are selling around $25, against a 1919 high of $23.60.

Oats have not quite reached its previous highs. July oats yesterday reached $1.01½ a bushel aaginst a previous all-time high of $1.08½ in 1920.

Yesterday's high of $2.17¼ for July corn was 4 cents a bushel below cash corn (for delivery by July 15). Cash corn has been ranging from 5 to 9 cents a bushel above July futures.

Closing date for July futures are July 23 with delivery by July 31.

Yesterday's corn prices put corn within about 4 cents a bushel of wheat, which closed at $2.20½. This is the nearest the two grains have reached esince 1930, when corn on one day sold in Chicago at 87⅞ cents a bushel and wheat sold at 86½ cents.

Army Distributes Story of Russion Spies in America

The War Department disclosed yesterday an Army-wide distribution of copies of "Soviet Spies—the Story of Russian Espionage in North America."

It said this book, by Richard Hirsch, is a "publication of timely interest to every member of the military establishment."

About 1300 copies in a cheap paper edition are being distributed by the Troop Information and Education Division in the War Department.

A department circular relates that the book has been purchased from commercial sources and is not an official War Department document.

Chris B. Nelson

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Chris B. Nelson, president of the Annapolis Yacht Yard, who died of a heart condition at University Hospital, Baltimore, Saturday.

Nelson, who was 48, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sallie M. Nelson; a daughter, Rosamond, and a sister, Dorothea A. Haven, Annapolis. Services will be in St. Anne's Protetsant Episcopal Church.

Complaints Up 500% in Week

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett was chief of detectives.

Yesterday's survey indicated that detectives have stopped the practice. Chief of Detectives Floyd A. Truscott, who took office July 1, declined to comment.

Truscott's first order to the bureau was to eliminate that practice. The only exception permitted was where revelation would hamper detection of the criminal.

Barrett later modified Truscott's order, permitting three types of exceptions under which complaints still could be pocketed. He made only a few restrictions against the past practice.

The Criminal Justice Association, which attempts to present a true picture of the crime situation in Washington, yesterday sent a letter asking Barrett for a conference to clarify the muddled statistics.

The letter pointed out that the association's value to the community was impaired unless it had access to accurate statistics. The letter was signed by John A. Remon, association president and vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

"Iron Curtain" Descends

An "iron curtain" descended yesterday over the Police Department. Several officials, all of whom asked to remain anonymous, declared they had been ordered to keep quiet about the statistical skullduggery. Each said the order was given at the request of a District Commissioner.

Commissioner John Russell Young, who appointed Barrett to the police superintendent's post, was out of his office all afternoon, his secretary and special assistant said. He was not available for comment.

Post reporters trying to see the precinct books—a right given them and the public by law—were told at each of the 13 precincts that orders had been received from Police Headquarters which would hamper free access to the information.

The orders were that Post reporters hereafter are not to be given the records unless they state precisely what information they seek. And in each precinct a policeman was stationed at their elbow while the information was copied.

Spanish Embassy Housekeeper Robbed

Mrs. Teresa F. Menchero, a housekeeper at the Spanish Embassy, was robbed of $12 by a purse snatcher last September. She didn't want publicity. Her complaint never reached official crime statistics.

Yesterday, Mrs. Menchero's daughter, Mrs. Rosario Parks, told The Post the police had talked with her mother several times and the victim tried to identify Rogues' Gallery pictures. But the thief was never caught.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, July 7 (U.P.).—The Haitian government has the United States to pay off its deposited six million dollars with entire national debt, President Dumarsais Estine announced today.

The United States, under an agreement reached in 1933, has guaranteed the servicing of the Haitian bonds, mostly owned by United States financial interests.

2. Carry a congressional mandate for the Commissioners to keep in force through June 30, 1949, the new $2 per $100 property tax rate they have ordered. The rate will give the District $4,500,000 more a year than the old $1.75 per $100 rate.

3. Boost the gasoline tax from the present 3 to a new 4-cent-per-gallon rate. It will raise $1,600,000 more a year.

4. Double the present 50-cent fee for auto inspections, and apply the new $1 rate to both autos and trailers.

5. Increase water rates 25 per cent, to raise $800,000 a year.

6. Apply the present 5 per cent corporate income tax rate as a franchise tax to the income of unincorporated businesses over $10,000, raising some $900,000 a year.

Court Dismisses Judge's GI Claim For Federal Seat

By The Associated Press

The United States Court of Claims yesterday dismissed former Federal Judge William Clark's contention that as an ex-GI he is entitled to return to his seat on the bench.

Clark, 56, a Republican of Princeton, N. J., filed suit last May asking for $9375 in salary for the nine months since he was discharged as a colonel from the Army in August, 1945, and gave notice he was ready to return to his seat on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

The court announced that Judge Samuel E. Whitaker wrote the opinion.

Clark contended that he is entitled to his former place on the bench under the re-employment provisions of the GI Bill of Rights.

He also asserted that the late President Roosevelt did not accept a resignation which Clark proffered when he entered the Army in March, 1942.

The Government argued that judges are not "employees" and the GI bill does not apply. It also said that Mr. Rooseevit had written Clark advising him to let the resignation stand and thereafter had considered the matter closed.

Senators Chalk Up Another Blank on Vote Probe Plan

By The Associated Press

A Senate Judiciary Subcommittee failed again yesterday to agree on a proposed "thorough" investigation of alleged election vote frauds in Kansas City, Mo.

Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) who has drafted a proposed report, indicated he expected some action to be taken by the group when it meets again tomorrow. Ferguson said he would ask Chairman Wiley (R., Wis.) to call a special meeting of the full Judiciary Committee that day to follow the subcommittee's meeting.

Ferguson said Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) was "preparing a memorandum," but did not have it completed yesterday. Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) the third member of the subcommittee, has prepared a third report.

British and Soviet Clash on Aid Plan

Russians Accuse Western Nations of Seeking Domination

Geneva, Switzerland, July 7 (AP).—British and Russian delegates clashed angrily today in the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, after Russia accused Britain and France of scheming to dominate European economy "behind the back of the Soviet Union."

Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin declared that Britain and France had withheld information from Russia about the Marshall aid-Europe plan at the recent three-power economic conference in Paris.

Britain's Sir Hector McNeil lashed back quickly at what he described as Zorin's "calculated and baseless charges which insulted the United Kingdom and tired the commission."

"France and Britain cannot accept without response Mr. Zorin's offensive remarks," McNeil declared.

Zorin, referring to British-French proposals to implement the Marshall program, said Russia could not participate "in such an erroneous and wrong policy . . . quite evidently aimed at interference in the internal affairs of European countries."

He declared that Britain and France should have "considered it their duty" to inform Soviet Foreign Minister Minister V. M. Molotov about all details of the Marshall plan.

"However, this was not done," he continued. "It was only natural that the Soviet delegation suggested asking the United States to what extent European countries could depend on United States help . . . and to what extent the European countries could be sure the Congress of the United States would approve the measures taken by the United States Government."

McNeil, the British Minister of State, said no relevant information had been withheld from Molotov and that it was "ridiculous to ask assurances that Congress should ratify the proposed American help to Europe."

"Only Congress can answer that question," McNeil said.

The Briton said he did not "complain" about the Russian decision not to participate."

"What I complain of is the attempt to explain away their decision with unwarranted allegations of dishonest practices," he said.

Andre Philip of France echoed McNeil's assertion that no secret understanding existed between Britain and France at the Paris conference.

House Passes Repealer of Law Limiting Profits

By The Associated Press

House passage sent to the Senate yesterday legislation repealing the profit limitation provisions of the Vinson-Trammell Act of 1934.

The War and Navy Departments had requested the legislation, which applies to ship and airplane production. The House Armed Services Committee expressed the opinion economy would be effected by repeal of the profit limitation because the maximum allowable profit has become the minimum.

The legislation also allows the War and Navy Departments to waive provisions of the Vinson-Trammell Act requiring that a fixed percentage of construction be handled by Government-owned plants.

The Vinson-Trammell Act limits profits on construction of naval vessels to 10 per cent and profits on contracts for Army and Navy aircraft production to 12 per cent, the percentage being based on actual costs.

J. G. Peake, 88, Dies; Veteran Virginia Pilot

Norfolk, Va., July 7 (AP).—James C. Peake, sr., veteran of more than 50 years of service in the Virginia Pilots Association and oldest member of the organization, died at 7:30 a. m. today at his home here.

Captain Peake was born on Christmas Day, 1856, in Norfolk. He was apprenticed as a pilot in 1874 and received his first license the following year. In 1879 he received his full branch pilot's license, and remained active until his retirement in September, 1929.

Although he piloted many famous ships in his lifetime, he was perhaps proudest of the fact that he piloted the old frigate Constitution from the Norfolk Naval Shipyard to Cape Henry more than 60 years ago.

On October 16, 1931, his son, James R. Peake, jr., served as pilot of the Constitution, guiding her from Norfolk to Yorktown. It was the first time in 50 years that the frigate had been in Virginia waters and Peake was pleased as Punch that it was his own son who handled her then.

Party Votes Confidence In Ramadier

Socialists Approve France's Support Of Marshall Plan

Paris, July 7 (U.P.).—Premier Paul Ramadier won a vote of confidence from his Socialist Party today by 2576 to 2058 and thus received approval for his program of government without Communists, decrease in economic controls and adherence to the Marshall plan despite Russian opposition.

It was the fourth vote of confidence accorded Ramadier—two in the National Assembly and two in the Socialist Party's national conventions—and was the last political hurdle facing his new policy. There were 127 absentions.

It completed the split between the Socialist and Communist parties, who in earlier postwar French governments had worked together closely. It ended any immediate Communist hope of returning to the cabinet from which they were ousted by Ramadier.

Defending the Marshall aid-to-Europe plan, Ramandier denied leftist criticism that it violated national sovereignty.

"It does not endanger the independence of nations joining it," the Premier said. "It permits us to reconstruct a peaceful atmosphere and will constantly support our own production."

discuss whether Finland should accept. French sources in Paris said Finland had given a "provisional" negative reply "for political and geographical reasons."

Norway, Sweden and Denmark are slated to confer Wednesday on a common policy toward the Marshall plan, perhaps inserting political reservations for Sweden's benefit.

British to Offer Plan

A British Foreign Office spokesman indicated in London that his government would present a detailed plan for coordinating the economies of European countries.

The reported Czechoslav decision was taken on the eve of the departure to Moscow for political talks of Premier Klement Gottwald and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryko. The two had planned to leave Prague for the Russian capital last week, but delayed their trip pending the decision on the conference.

Prior to the receipt of the Prague dispatch, Jindirch Mosek, Czechoslovak Ambassador to France, said no decision has been made by his country, and that none would be announced until the two returned from Moscow.

A Prague dispatch said Nosak has been named representative for the conference, because the meeting will begin too soon for Masaryko to reach Paris on his return from Moscow. Masaryko will take over when he can.

Record Barley Yield

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., July 7.—A record yield of 406 bushels of barley from 7 acres was reported here today. The average of 59 bushels an acre was achieved by Boyd Kesecker on his Sleepy Creek district farm. Sheriff Guy Spriggs, thresher operator, said.

Indonesians Set to Spurn Dutch Plans

Batavia, Java, July 7 (AP).—Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin announced today his Indonesian Republic cabinet would reject Dutch demands for a joint Netherlands-Indonesian gendarmerie to police Republican areas, and urged his followers to remain "calm, united and alert."

Qualified Dutch sources here said such rejection would lead inevitably to war. They added that the Dutch army might strike—possibly within four days—unless the Indonesians accepted fully the Netherlands plan for the gendarmerie and other aspects of an interim national government.

Sjarifoeddin, speaking over the Indonesian radio station at the Republican capital of Jogjakarta, acknowledged that the situation was "grave." He expressed the hope, however, that the Dutch would show "full understanding" of the Indonesian internal situation.

The Premier said that Hubertus J. Van Mook, Dutch Governor General of the Netherlands East Indies, was dissatisfied with an Indonesian note dispatched Sunday to The Hague.

Sjarifoeddin said the republic was willing to accept Netherlands soveriegnty over all of Indonesia on January 1, 1949, but insisted that this sovereignty not be used to hamper the republic's administrative functions within its own territory.

Army Engineers Told to Find Way To Prevent Floods

President Truman yesterday assigned army engineers the job of finding means to stop the floods that have ravaged the central part of the country for generations.

Gordon R. Clapp, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, attended the 30-minute White House conference at which the assignment was handed out, but none of the participants would say whether there was any discussion of TVA-patterned organizations to administer the program.

Other at the meeting were Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of army engineers, and Brig. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, division engineer for the Missouri River.

Later, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, disclosed the purpose of the meeting. He said Mr. Truman wanted aprogram to prevent destructive floods on the Mississippi, the Ohio, the Missouri, and Red and tributary rivers.

While the long-range plan was under discussion, the Senate agreed unanimously on a more immediate proposal to use war surplus property for relief in floods and other catastrophes.

Syrian Envoy Asks U. S. Economic Aid

Syria's new Minister said yesterday, after a conference with Secretary of State Marshall, that his country needs "economic and social help" from the United States.

The Envoy, Sayez Bey el Khoury, was formerly foreign Minister and Minister to Moscow. He told reporters:

"We, as part of the Arab world, are aware of our position and our past and will do our best to renew our historical glory. This cannot be done without the help of the great nations, of which the United States is at the head."

Petrillo Says He May Halt Record Making, 'Chain' Music

By The Associated Press

James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL), said yesterday the union plans to call a halt to members making phonograph records and broadcasting over radio networks.

Petrillo, called on the congressional carpet for past actions, explained that his plans for the future are grounded on the belief that musicians don't get their fair share of entertainment money.

"As of now," he told a House Labor subcommittee, he plans to end members making records December 31. The ban on network broadcasting, if it stands, would take effect February 1.

And if it's legally possible, Petrillo said, the union itself may make and market musical recordings.

During the afternoon session, Petrillo softened his stand this much:

"I'm in hopes that somewhere along the line," he said, "we won't have to do the things I said we'd have to do this morning."

Powers Called Dictatorial

Petrillo was the first witness in an investigation into what Chairman Kearns (R., Pa.) called the "dictatorial powers" of Petrillo over his union and the music industry.

Kearns said in a formal statement that Petrillo's union has:

"Required theater owners throughout the United States" to employ standby orchestras "they did not need, want or use."

"Dictated" to broadcasters the amount of money they should spend for music.

"Engaged in a concerted effort to hold back the technological improvements in radio and in television."

Kearns, a member of Petrillo's union as a singer and conductor, said also:

"Your federation has interfered with and restricted the inalienable right of the people of the United States to enjoy freedom of religion and education."

Many Complaints Cited

On this point, the subcommittee chairman cited complaints that the union prevented amateurs from performing over the radio, required churches to pay standby fees for organists, kept "orchestras, bands and choruses in many schools" off the air, and prevented service bands of the armed forces from making records.

Petrillo said both his union and the radio and record companies are dissatisfied with present contract conditions.

"We want to allow these people who are dissatisfied to become satisfied," he grinned. "I'd like to remain in the labor business but, if we have to, and it looks that way now, we're going to go into the record business ourselves."

The hearing quickly turned to a recital of Petrillo's complaints against the radio networks and record-making industries.

These hinged on his argument that radio and records can convey the work of a single musician, or a few of them, to a Nation-wide audience—thus depriving other musicians of jobs.

Sees Musicians Jobless

Petrillo estimated that unless his union wins better working conditions—and he emphasized that his plans for next year are based on "conditions as they are now"—half the country's musicians will be jobless in a year.

"I tell you, gentlemen, it's a sad situation for the musicians of this country and we don't propose to go through with it any more," Petrillo complained.

On the network music ban Petrillo proposed to become effective after present contracts expire next February 1, he said: "We're not going to let musicians feed radio stations all over the country and prevent thousands of other union members from holding jobs."

"If they want to broadcast Harry James, let them bring Harry James to each station," Petrillo said.

At the outset Petrillo disclosed, in reply to questions, that he gets $46,000 a year in salary and $13,000 in expenses, plus an automobile he is allowed to trade in on a new one "at any time," and plus his income tax.

Bargaining Agent Vote Set at Pulaski Plant

By The Associated Press

An election to determine a collective bargaining agent for appropriate employes of the RCA Victor Corp. plant at Pulaski, Va., was ordered yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board within the next 30 days.

The employes will choose between representation by the United Electrical Radio and Marine Workers of America (CIO); the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (AFL); the United Construction Workers (UMW); or no bargaining agent.

it as a bright, silvery disc, traveling at 10,000 feet.

"It was clearly visible—and then it wasn't there."

The FBI here was noncommittal.

In Milwaukee, Wis., the FBI said it was "not interested" in what appeared to be a circular saw, rigged with a few wires, which the Rev. Joseph Brasku said crashed into his yard at Grafton, Wis. He admitted it probably was a joke, but was holding the disc for FBI's attention.

Atomic experts in session at Lake Success, N. Y., did not discuss officially the flying saucer reports, but made no secret of their interest. They were reported as "baffled."

Not so was a 34-year-old watchmaker in Chattanooga, Tenn., who said he invented the flying saucer in 1943 but "got tired of the run-around" when he tried to peddle it to the Government or an aircraft concern. His model was powered with a rubber band.

A $1000 reward was posted in Northbrook, Ill., "for the capture of a flying disc—or the true explanation of the phenomena." The offer, made by E. J. Culligan, is made "solely through an interest in science."

A theory that the saucers might be artificial satellites came from the British physicist Prof. A. M. Low. The artificial satellite, he explained, might be created by unknown scientists and could serve many purposes, such as deflecting television or radar beams.

Lester P. Barlow, a Stamford, Conn., inventor, said he believes the discs are jet-propelled missiles being manufactured for the Navy by the Martin Aircraft Co., in Baltimore.

A quick denial to this came from a Navy spokesman. He said the only thing the Navy has under construction resembling flying discs are garbage can covers—"and these fly only in a very high wind."

Army officers in Frankfort, Germany, doubted the saucers are in the weapon category.

Publishers of the Encyclopedia Britannica took recognition of the reports, saying "many optical and other illusions are perfectly normal and can be experienced by a large number of people at the same time."

French Hear New U. S. Bomb Can Blast Hole 11 Miles Wide

Paris, July 7 (AP).—The newspaper L'Intransigeant quoted French military circles today as saying a new American atomic bomb "capable of destroying Paris or Moscow" by blasting a hole 2700 feet deep and 11 miles wide had been tested in New Mexico.

The newspaper said its information came from "Paris military and political circles which received restricted information."

(Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago where the atom bomb was pioneered, said recently "America has a stockpile of new and improved bombs large enough, according to usually conservative sources, to destroy every large city on the earth."

L'Intransigeant said the new bomb, in a test, destroyed a facsimile of a large city, complete with reinforced concrete buildings, built especially for the trial.

Technical details are not available, the article continued, but it said the tests had consumed 14,000 tons of silver.

Atomic Commission Calls it 'Preposterous'

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday described as "nonsense and preposterous" the Paris newspaper report of a new atomic bomb capable of blasting a crater 11 miles wide.

Scientists at the atomic laboratory, Los Alamos, N. M., declined comment as did the Army at El Paso, Tex., and at the White Sands, N. M., proving grounds.

Higher Flying Over Mountains Advocated by Truman Board

By The Associated Press

President Truman's special air safety inquiry board recommended yesterday that aircraft be required to fly higher over mountains when the weather is soupy. The board also urged early installation of lectronic devices to show the distance of aircraft above the ground.

This double step was proposed only four days after a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on the June 13 accident in which a Capital Airlines plane crashed into a cloud-covered Blue Ridge Mountain near Leesburg, Va., killing 50 persons

The recommendations appeared to be closely tied to the possible causes of that tragedy, just as the first report of the five-man board was related to evidence compiled while investigating the take-off crash of a United Air Lines plane in which 44 persons were killed at New York, May 29.

Would Raise Ceiling 1000 Feet

The board proposed that the minimum clearance of terrain in certain mountainous areas for planes flying at night or under instrument (that is, low visibility) conditions be at least 2000 feet.

The present minimum clearance is 1000 feet under all conditions. However, the air lines generally require greater clearance than that. The air lines fly by their own rules rather than civil air regulations when their minimums are higher.

The recommendation that air lines be required to install "approved terrain proximity indicators operating on electronic principles" as soon as possible, to supplement their present pressure-type altimeters, follows by 10 days a demonstration of such a device by the Hughes Aircraft Co.

Navy to Get 100 Indicators

The Navy recently ordered 100 radar terrain indicators for installation in its transport planes, and American Airlines already has ordered them installed in the Stratocruisers which it has on order with Boeing Aircraft.

Trans-World Airline is installing the Hughes type of radar indicator in its planes. It sounds a horn and turns on a light when a plane approaches within a preset distance of an obstacle.

The presidential board can only make recommendations, but its chairman is James M. Landis, who also is chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, which makes the rules for flying. The recommendations can be made effective by having the CAB write them into the civil air regulations.

Scrapped Shell Explodes, Injures 2 at Gun Factory

Two men were injured, one seriously, when a scrapped shell exploded yesterday afternoon at the Naval Gun Factory.

Most severely hurt was Julian F. Smith, 32, of 561 23d pl. ne., who was taken to Providence Hospital with a possible brain concussion, severe burns and cuts. The other man, treated for shock at the gun factory dispensary and released, was Walter Kee, 48, of 201 I st. nw.

The two were cutting the shell case with acetylene torches, which apparently ignited a small amount of explosive left in the case when it was dismantled, officials said. The blast threw the case about 100 feet, but caused no property damage.

Odd Fellows Elect Virginia Encampment Officers

Roanoke, Va., July 7 (AP).—Officers of the grand encampment, Grand Lodge of Virginia, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, were elected this afternoon at Hotel Roanoke.

They were Leroy S. Bendheim, of Alexandria, grand patriarch; K. F. Carrier, of Waynesboro, grand junior warden; H. M. Ball, of Schoolfield, grand high priest; G. E. Childs, of Danville, grand scribe, and O. C. Rockett, of Richmond, grand treasurer.

Bendheim appointed Mason D. Reed, of Newport News, grand marshal; Grat Lawson, of Ridgelands, grand inside sentinel; and Everett Kline, of Winchester, grand outside sentinel.

Two representatives to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, which meets in Vancouver, B. C., in September, were elected also. They are Roland Craig, of Abingdon, for two years, and Z. B. Johnston, of Brookneal, for one year.

Officers of the department council were installed this morning by Maj. Gen. G. E. Childs, of Danville, department commander, and the following officers of the ladies' auxiliary to the department council were elected: Mrs. Annie Lowry, of Richmond, president; Mrs. Ethel Smarr, of Arlington, vice president; Mrs. Mary Osborne, of Jortsmouth, secretary; and Mrs. Nellie Lancaster, of Richmond, treasurer.

Officers of the grand lodge will be elected tomorrow afternoon.

Degrees will be conferred both on members of the lodge and members of the Rebekah Auxiliary tomorrow night.

3 Shot by Sheriff Waive Hearing

Jonesville, Va., July 7 (AP).—Three men jailed here Saturday night on charges of shooting with intent to kill into the home of former Sheriff Creed Carter at Rob hearing in trial justice court here today and were sent on the next term of the Lee County Grand Jury.

The trio—Albert Parsons, 20; Willard Crusenberry, 30, and his brother Hubert Crusenberry, 20—were said by Sheriff J. W. Newman to have shot into Carter's house and at his automobile shortly after he hadremonstrated with them for "being noisy." Carter said he returned the fire with a shotgun, wounding all three of the men. Parsons and the older Crusenberry required medical attention before being jailed later that night.

Private Detectives Seek Missing Actress

Los Angeles, July 7 (AP).—Private detectives were searching today for Maria San Marco, 21-year-old Manila born film actress, missing since last Thursday, her studio announced.

Studio officials said the actress, a former Japanese war prisoner, was last seen by her brother in nearby Culver City.

Macedonia Is Land of Want In Need of Reclamation Aid

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Salonika, Macedonia, Greece (By Mail).—There is frequent check by police and army when traveling on Macedonian roads. Undoubtedly this is essential because much smuggling of arms is going on to and fro. The other day an innocent-looking woman was stopped by the gendarmes. She led a donkey, and on the animal's back were two large baskets. Under the vegetables packed in the baskets the police found mines, destined to be placed on roads, to blow up the army and other vehicles proceeding on these roads.

Agios Athanasios is a fair-sized town, with 800 families living in it—about 3000 souls. An old woman came out of the cafe and complained:

"We need drainage work. The soil is too salty." Her husband, an old man called Evstratos Avtimiotis, added: "And we require fertilizers, because the fields round here are exhausted. Our cattle was driven away by the Germans."

Reclamation Needed

Arapazis Aristides is the president of the village. These government-appointed presidents now take the place of the formerly elected mayors. The president complained that the fields were very poor. "We need reclamation works," he said. "Eight hundred stremas (2200 acres) of land were flooded by mountain torrents in the spring. In the summer we had the drought. We have no proper farm machinery or tools. We have an artesian well and thus we have water, but the neighboring villages lack water, yet the only well-drilling machine was taken away by the Germans," said the president.

While he was talking, I watched a woman in the cafe door spinning her woolen yarn. She held the wool in her left and let a spool hang from her right. The turning spool, obtaining a twist by gravitation and by the woman's skillful handling, spun the yarn.

"The American is coming," shouted the crowd. He was old, blind Lucas Isac, who spent eight years in the United States, from 1911 until 1919. He worked first at Gary, Ind., and later at the Manville Shoe Works, Manville, R. I. "I still have a brother-in-law, Kosta Kritikos, in Manville, R. I.," he said.

Want No 'Temporary Aid'

The old blind man, by his appearance, was poor and senile. He suggested that what the village needed were shoes and bread. The president of the village interrupted him:

"Such help would be only of temporary nature; we want an aid which would put us on our feet."

We continued our journey on the highway known as the "Berlin Road," because the Germans invaded Greece coming down from Yugoslavia this way. Passing the town of Kaa Gefyra the railroad tracks were full of destroyed wrecks of freight cars and locomotives, blown up by the Germans. None of the railroad lines of western Macedonia are operating; the sidings are just one huge graveyard of dynamited rolling stock.

Four hundred families live in Vathilakos (Deep ditch) village, all of them refugees from Thrace and Asia Minor. Emmanuel Debezoglu, the village blacksmith, frail, dark and intelligent, thought that the American loan should be used for buying fertilizers, farm machinery, sprayers for vineyards and loans for farmers. He believed that an economic improvement problem would solve the problem of civil war. Meanwhile, naturally America's military assistance was required.

Unhappy Picture

"The crops were very bad this year. Hail destroyed the vineyards; drought finished the wheat crop," he said gloomily. As our jeep was pulling away, the young blacksmith apprentice shouted after us:

"Tell to the Americans we need money to repair the school building."

Prohoma, the next village, was already in the hills, and ever so much nearer to the fighting district. This village, indeed presented a most unhappy picture. It is populated by Greeks who fled 25 years ago from Asia Minor and from Kars in the Caucasus.

Father Hyeronimos Papadopoulos, the long, dark-bearded village priest, is a refugee from Fassa in the Pontus (Asia Minor). He named the same requirements as we heard in every village: farm machinery, fertilizers, improved seeds. Then he added in his sweet, melodious voice: "We will furnish our personal effort, but give us the tools."

Clamor for Tractors

Paraskivas Ainadiris is from Kars in the Caucasus. He fled in 1920 from the Bolsheviks, and then from the Turks. He then was 8 years old. But 70-year-old Kosta Demerdsidis was 42 years of age when he had to leave behind his farm and all his belongings in Kars in the Caucasus, a place not all too far from Joe Stalin's Caucasian home . . .

All these people clamored for tractors, farm machinery, fertilizers.

"We suffer greatly from malaria. We were sprayed twice with DDT during the last half year, but somehow the spray did not help. And we have no quinine, either," remarked the village priest.

A small, energetic, vivacious person now stepped into the ring. George Kostikas told us that he was a shepherd.

"I and my friends are nomadic shepherds. We are all the time on the move. This year we cannot go to the mountain pastures because of the civil war. We badly need credit from the bank. Fodder is scarce and we don't know how we will feed the animals during the winter."

Children Underfed

Extremely pretty, young Miss Fotine Tsimouras is the schoolteacher in Prohoma. She complained that the children were underfed.

"They are fainting, one after the other, during the classes. We have no windows to protect us against the cold or the wind that blows from the Paikon Mountains. We have no latrines. We have no chairs nor benches—the class sits on the wet and humid floor."

Despite this sad story, Miss Tsimouras refuses to be depressed and smiles. She is from Katerini, a town in western Macedonia.

I have not seen as much poverty anywhere during my travels in southeastern Europe as I saw in Prohoma, except in some villages of Yougoslav Macedonia or in certain parts of Bulgaria. But as our jeep drove on, we saw magnificent and new American farm machinery, tractors and harvesters, or entire harvesting sets complete with threshing machine, working on extensive fields.

"The farm belongs to a certain Hapageorgiou," said the peasant whom I asked at the roadside. "He is a rich man who has another farm in Thessaly."

Without a shadow of doubt, these were American machines supplied by UNRRA. How did they reach the rich farmer? Why did they not go to the village cooperatives, to the poorer communities, badly in need of such implements? This is the $64 question!

Dead in Athens Fire Now Total 9

Athens, Greece, July 7 (U.P.).—The death toll in the fire at the British headquarters building Saturday hose to nine today as six more persons succumbed to burns, the Ministry of Public Order announced today.

The ministry also said that an investigation was under way to determine whether the blaze was accidental or caused by arsonists.

Cathedral Requires Complete Rebuilding

London, July 7.—Coventry Cathedral, destroyed in one of the heaviest air raids of the Nazi blitz, was so completely demolished that no part of the ruins is sound enough to incorporate in a new structure, except for the tower and spire, the cathedral commission reported today.

The commission advised that a new cathedral be built as close to the old site as possible in the English Gothic tradition, but should not be a copy of the Fourteenth Century cathedral it is to replace.

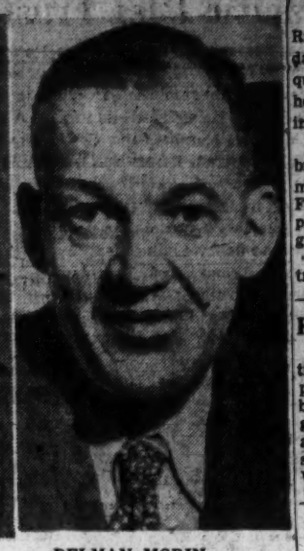
PAUL MILLER
Washington AP Bureau Chief resigns



RELMAN MORIN
Paris AP Bureau Chief comes here

Paul Miller Quits as AP's Capital Chief

New York, July 7 (AP).—Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press, announced today that Paul Miller is resigning as assistant general manager, in charge of the Washington bureau, and will be succeeded by Relman Morin, with the title of acting chief of bureau.

Miller leaves to join the Gannett Newspapers. He will have headquarters at Rochester, N. Y., working in an executive capacity with Frank E. Gannett, founder and president.

Morin leaves the post of chief of bureau in Paris, with supervision over AP's continental news operations, to undertake his newly assigned duties.

Other Changes Announced . . .

These administrative changes also were announced by Cooper:

John Lloyd, now chief of bureau in London, to take over immediate supervision of the distribution of Associated Press news throughout Europe, his headquarters remaining in London.

Preston Grover, chief of bureau for India, to succeed Morin as head of the Paris office, and G. Milton Kelly, now stationed in Bombay, to succeed Grover in charge of AP's India operations.

Morin's appointment at Washington is effective immediately. Miller will assume his duties in Rochester August 1, with the Gannett organization, which comprises 21 newspapers and seven radio stations in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Illinois.

Morin, who joined Associated Press ranks at Los Angeles in 1934 after newspaper work in California and in the Orient, has had wide experience. He has handled important news and executive assignments for the AP in virtually all parts of the world. At the outbreak of the war, he was interned in Indo-China, and subsequently served as a war correspondent in the Mediterranean and European campaigns. He was appointed Paris bureau chief in September, 1945.

With AP 15 Years

Miller, who is 40, has been with the AP 15 years, serving as chief of bureaus in Salt Lake City and Philadelphia before coming to New York in an executive capacity in 1940. He went to Washington as chief of bureau in June, 1942, and was made an assistant general manager in 1943. His home in Washington is at 4844 Quebec st. nw.

In Washington, Miller said today:

"It has been a high privilege to work in the Associated Press and under Kent Cooper. In a very real sense I am not severing my AP connections at all—I am just moving over to the other side of the fence. I expect to continue the most active interest in the AP and the great principles it represents."

Grover's home was in Washington until he went to the Berlin AP bureau in 1940.

Bus Riders Ask Order for Arnold Line to Clean House

The Arlington County (Va.) Bus Riders Association asked yesterday that the Arnold bus line be required to put its own economic house in order before any fare increase be considered.

The direction was asked in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Attorney Francis J. Ortman, association president, on behalf of the riders' group. The petition said:

"The overwhelming and uncontradicted testimony of record proves without reservation that the carrier has been and is being inefficiently managed and is continuing to render inadequate service, contrary to the best interests of the traveling public."

"The financial condition of the respondent (which does business as the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co.) results from its own uneconomical and inefficient use of past revenues."

Ortman said in further explanation that it was the contention of the riders' group that the ICC should direct the bus line company to maintain existing fares, improve service and "correct its financial operation."

"If the company does that and still finds it cannot operate at a reasonable profit, then it will be in a valid position to seek fare increases," he said.

Legal brief for the riders' association was filed in opposition to a company motion that the ICC revoke its suspension order of May 28, which prevented proposed fare increases on service between Washington and points in Arlington, Va., from becoming effective June 1.

The bus company, most commonly known as the Arnold Line, has asked cash fare increases of 5 cents a zone and an increase of 2½ cents per zone in token fares. After suspending the proposed fare increases and conducting hearings, the ICC now has the case under advisement.

ABOUT THE PRICE OF MEAT

For less than the cost of a special delivery stamp

• • • for less than the taxes on a pack of cigarettes
• • • for less than a shoeshine
• • • for a net profit (after all expenses) of less than 7 cents a week per average family of four, America's meat packing companies—

Buy livestock and pay out millions of dollars daily for it.
Operate plants, machinery and equipment (employing over a quarter million people).
Prepare fresh meat, ham, bacon, sausage, canned meats, etc.
Deliver meat, under refrigeration, a few blocks or a thousand miles, to your store.

The total net earnings of the meat packing companies average less than 7 cents per week to do all of these things for a family of four. That profit is so small that it makes no appreciable difference when you buy a pound of meat.

Meat prices, whether up or down, are determined by competition. Just as the more than 4,000 separate meat packing companies compete with each other in buying livestock and selling meat . . . so millions of shoppers select meat daily from the available supply.

And at retail, when meat cuts are in large supply, prices are lower than when they are in limited supply. The supply of one meat or another may change greatly from week to week, or season to season. This results in meat prices going up or down.

LARGEST FINANCIAL INSTITUTION IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL

"I herewith send you my draft for £850 upon my agent, Liverpool, which please sell and place to my credit . . ."
Brigham Young

Dated at "Great Salt Lake City", August 9th, 1864, the letter of BRIGHAM YOUNG, great Mormon leader, addressed to "Riggs & Co., Bankers", opened with the above statement.

In simple language, Mr. Young was "making a deposit", and his letter for that purpose enclosing the English draft traveled at least part of the distance from the Territory of Utah by stagecoach.

This year, on the 24th of July, the State of Utah is observing the centennial of the founding of Salt Lake City by Brigham Young and his staunch band of followers. The Riggs National Bank, which has numbered among its depositors many fine citizens of that State, is glad to extend felicitations on that splendid occasion.

Our facilities, long and favorably known in the District of Columbia, are perpetually at the disposal of the citizens of any and all of the 48 States when their paths bring them to the Nation's Capital for temporary or protracted periods.

Germany Needs 40 Billions In 10 Years, Economist Says

Berlin, July 7 (U.P.)—One of Germany's foremost economists said today Germany would need 40 billion dollars in new capital over the next 10 years to boost its living standard to even the mediocre level set by the Potsdam agreement.

Prof. Bruno Gleitze, chief of the statistical department of the Soviet zone, said that even if such credits were evident after first World itself in an "impossible political and economic situation."

He said Germany must realize she can contract only a certain amount of debts because "the consequences of overindebtedness were evident after the First World War."

Gleitze said he favored issuance of new bank notes "corresponding to real values left in Germany."

Another essential for restoring economy, he said, was foreign trade.

The four-power Allied Control Council, Germany's supreme ruling body, has ordered all state parliaments to adopt a law to check venereal disease, a reliable source said today.

The law provides strict control measures and stiff penalties, compulsory treatment and hospitalization.

The source said the four military governors were "alarmed" at the increasing venereal disease rate in all zones.

Pravda Talks of New State

London, July 7 (U.P.)—Moscow radio today broadcast a report from Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, that Frankfurt in the American zone may become the new capital of an independent western German state.

"The American military governor of Greater Hesse Province, Col. (James) Newman," told Russian correspondents, Pravda said, that "our immediate task is to provide for the western zones of Germany, regardless of a central government.

"It does not matter for Germany's unity where her capital will be—Berlin or Frankfurt," it quoted Newman as saying.

U. N. Board Not to Hear Pleas of Jews

Jerusalem, Palestine, July 7 (U.P.)—The United Nations Special Committee on Palestine decided in secret session today not to hear the pleas of individual Jews who seek liberation from British detention camps on the island of Cyprus.

The closed-door meeting followed a gavel-banging open session which resulted in the first words of anger heard in the committee.

The committee had recalled two Jewish Agency executives—Moshe Shertok, head of the political division, and David Ben Gurion, chief spokesman, to examine further the agency's aims in the Holy Land.

Ben Gurion, who was questioned for almost three hours, clashed repeatedly with Sir Abdur Rahman, Indian delegate, who accused him of giving ambiguous answers to Rahman's questions. Sir Abdur is a Moslem.

Rahman also argued heatedly with Jorge Garcia Granados of Guatemala over acceptance of Jewish Agency testimony.

At one time Rahman charged Ben Gurion with failing to answer his assertion that establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine would mean "a bloody war."

Ben Gurion said it was not a question of whether force would be used or not, but whether the United Nations force would be used to back right or wrong.

In answer to another question, Ben Gurion said Jews wanted to replace the mandatory power—Britain—under "a plan of development undertaken by the Jewish Agency with the supervision of the United Nations until such a time as a Jewish state could be established in the Holy Land."

Plague Threat Increases

Jerusalem, July 7.—The population of Haifa, Palestine's main port, was advised today by medical authorities to wear thick socks and long trousers, tied at the bottom by strings, as the burbonic plague epidemic reached "alarming proportions" with 14 cases and one death reported.

All government officials have been inoculated, and the spraying of civilians with DDT will start tomorrow.

Artist Charges Police Brutality In $50,000 Suit

Atlanta, Ga., July 7 (U.P.)—French Artist Paul R. Refoule, charging police brutality and other violation of civil rights during lengthy questioning of him in the slaying of his attractive wife, today filed a $50,000 damage suit against Fulton County (Atlanta) Police Chief G. Neal Ellis and five other officers.

The suit was filed in United States District Court.

Refoule charged he had been refused an interpreter or the aid of his attorney during repeated questionings, and that officers had carried on a deliberate campaign to discredit him before the public.

Senate Committee Approves Pacific Isles Trusteeship

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday unanimously approved a joint resolution accepting a United States trusteeship for the Mariana, Marshall and Caroline islands wrested from the Japanese in the Pacific war.

Acceptance of the agreement with the United Nations Security Council was recommended by President Truman last Thursday.

Secretary of State Marshall, Secretary of War Patterson, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army chief of staff, and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations, all recommended approval. Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Foreign Relations Committee said.

He added that passage of the resolution is on the "must" list before adjournment of Congress.

The agreement involves some 98 islands, with a total area of 846 square miles and 48,297 inhabitants. The area includes the former Japanese bastion of Truk; Saipan and Tinian, important waypoints on the road to Tokyo, and Wotje.

The Security Council approved the trusteeship agreement unanimously April 2.

The three island groups, under Japanese mandate before the war, is to be known as "The Territory of the Pacific islands."

Vandenberg said the committee today would take up an agreement with the U. N. on establishing U. N. headquarters in New York.

2 Gasoline Explosions Rock Michigan Resort

Sawyer, Mich., July 7 (A.P.)—Two rapid-fire explosions in a bulk storage gasoline plant rocked this little Lake Michigan resort village today and set off a fire that was quickly brought under control.

Sheriff Irwin Kubach of Berrien County said there were no casualties and that the flames consumed about 20,000 gallons of gasoline stored above the ground by Theisen-Clemens Co. of St. Joseph, Mich.

Kennedy Again Named For Railroad Board

William J. Kennedy of Ohio was nominated yesterday by President Truman for reappointment as a member of the Railroad Retirement Board for a five-year term beginning August 29.

Treason Case Move Set

Boston, July 7 (U.P.)—Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford today set July 16 for hearing a motion for arrest of judgment in the case of former Baltimore newsman Douglas Chandler who was convicted on 10 counts of wartime treason against the United States.

THE CHALLENGE: to publish a magazine at 1500 miles an hour!

THIS week a new magazine reaches the desks of aviation men all over the country...the first issue of AVIATION WEEK.

If you are one of these men, you will read the story (and see the first published drawings) of the Bell XS-2—the new airplane designed for a top speed of 1500 mph—twice the speed of sound.

We can offer no more vivid example—granted it's extreme—to illustrate the tempo of aviation. For speed is the essence of every phase of aviation development.

To meet this pace—aviation men today have a new magazine, geared to their special needs, covering both the technical and non-technical news of their business ... and delivered fast enough, frequently enough for their swift, sure decision.

Now, AVIATION WEEK's 20-man editorial team—who themselves are men of aviation—supported by McGraw-Hill's staff of editorial specialists, and its Domestic and Foreign News Bureaus, wrap up the current week in aviation and place it in the hands of aviation men early the following week.

This week, for example . . .

AVIATION WEEK reports . . . The exclusive story on NACA's program to break through the sonic into the supersonic speed zone.

. . . The newest progress in simplifying helicopter design to accelerate the practicality of the helicopter in commercial use.

. . . The first engineering story on G-E's new turbo-jet, axial flow engine, the TG-180, the powerplant to be used in most of our new military planes.

. . . Goodyear's test program for its amphibious DUCK . . . an illustrated story on the new Beech feeder-line transport . . . first details on the Siai-Marchetti SM-102 and the Breda-Zappata B2-309—other important and exclusive new features and departments.

For Advertisers . . .

AVIATION WEEK is edited for and read by the men who are vigorously engaged in advancing America's world leadership in aviation. Men whose responsibilities embrace research, design, engineering, manufacturing, distribution and utilization of commercial, military and private aircraft.

This is the market AVIATION WEEK delivers to over 200 charter advertisers. This is the market it will deliver every week to any advertiser who wants a profitable part in aviation progress.

AVIATION WEEK is sold by subscription only . . . to people with an identifiable commercial or professional interest in aviation.

Unification Urged To Prevent 'Doom'

2 GOP Senators Back Army-Navy Plan Of Truman, Declare Delay May be Fatal

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Two Republican Senators yesterday called for adoption of President Truman's Army-Navy unification plan, declaring that we will be "doomed" in another war without such a unified command.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., a tank officer in the World War II, warned the Senate that the next war would find America the target of a devastating air attack that at best would leave us groggy.

"If you don't have your unified command in operation before the blow strikes, you will never survive," Lodge said. "The first battle may well be the last."

Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. D.) chairman of the Armed Services Committee of the upper House, opened the debate on the long-pending bill by warning that "to procrastinate is to invite disaster."

Robertson Denounces It

Another GOP Senator—Edward V. Robertson of Wyoming—took the floor after the Gurney-Lodge appeal, to denounce the measure.

"The real intent of this bill," Robertson declared, "is to create a vast new military empire, one in which ambitious men will wield greater power over the military establishment than has ever been heretofore granted to nonelected individuals and one which will wield untrammeled power over the entire social and economic structure of the Nation."

Robertson's long opposition speech was halted late yesterday when an agreement was made to put further consideration of the bill over until Wednesday. He will resume his address then.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska, majority whip, disclosed that GOP leaders hope to vote on the unification bill Thursday and then immediately take up the tax bill. Passage of the Army-Navy measure is expected by a good margin.

Robertson charged that the bill actually will bring about a "merger" of the armed services, despite language in the bill declaring that "unification" not "merger" is contemplated.

The bill would provide for a separate air force, under a proposed new Department of Air Force. A noncabinet member Secretary would head the new agency, with similar officials in charge of Departments of the Army and Navy. Over all would be a Secretary of National Security, who would be a Cabinet member and exercise broad powers.

This, Robertson contended, in effect "creates a new executive department on a grand scale." Terming the proposed set-up a "Frankenstein monster," he charged that the Army still was aiming at a single service, headed by a single general staff and single chief of staff.

Senator Lodge cited testimony of various military men that the next war would begin with a surprise air attack on the United States in which A-bombs, radioactive materials and biological weapons would destroy much of our civilization.

"Unify or Perish"

"We might as well start thinking about it now because, if there is another war, that's the way it's going to be," he added, "Modern science has made unions more desperately necessary than ever. We must unify or we will perish."

Gurney described the unification bill as a "sound and modern foundation" for our national security.

"In the past," he continued "we have witnessed the fallacy of having two great executive departments of government so separated and insulated from one another that each tried in effect to become a self-sufficient national security organization. . . .

"We learned at Pearl Harbor that having two steering wheels on our defense machine can send it careening into the ditch."

Warning against further delay, Gurney said that "much of the planning of our military services has had to mark time, has necessarily had to wait for long months" while Congress debated the merits of unification.

the Army Recruiting Service will be necessary to keep the service at its planned 1,070,000-man strength, Streett said. Civilian leaders must help, he added.

"We feel that the success of recruiting is eventually going to depend upon the attitude of the American toward the Army," he declared. "We think it is a good career. We have to sell that to the American people and we have to make the majority of the American people believe it, or they will not permit their sons to go into the Army."

Urges Universal Training Law

MRS. NORTON H. PEARL, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, yesterday appealed to Congress for enactment of universal military training legislation

War Training Foes Open Up On Congress

By The Associated Press

Opponents of universal military training urged Congress yesterday to put more faith in the United Nations and in diplomacy, and to de-emphasize military might.

Opening the attack after several days of testimony by advocates of peacetime training legislation were J. Henry Scattergood, Philadelphia businessman speaking for the Greater Philadelphia Committee Against Peacetime Conscription, and Mrs. Alexander Stewart of Chicago, national cochairman of the Women's Committee to Oppose Conscription.

They testified before the House Armed Services Committee. The committee also announced receipt of a statement from Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, opposing the universal training program recommended by President Truman's special commission.

The only supporting voice during the day's hearing was that of Mrs. Norton H. Pearl of Detroit, national president of the American Legion Women's Auxiliary.

Scattergood told the committee the United Nations "is still the hope and must be the preponderant purpose of humanity."

Universal training legislation, he said, would lead to dominance of our government by the military, and would inculcate in American youths the philosophy of "authoritarian discipline" and "rule by force."

Asked by Representative Gavin (R., Pa.) "How could we get Joe Stalin to cooperate with the United Nations program?" Scattergood likened Stalin to "a trader . . . doing what he believes is in the best interests of his people."

Asks Diplomatic Offensive

If necessary, Scattergood said, he would favor forcing Russia to disarm.

"Let's get the moral forces in the world working," he said.

Mrs. Stewart called for "a diplomatic offensive aimed at building and maintaining the peace," and said it is "extremely unfortunate" that proponents of the training plan claim it would "enhance the influence and authority of the United Nations."

"Would we not be the first to cry out if Russia were to use such an argument as justification for manufacturing the atom bomb?" she asked.

Mrs. Stewart urged Congress to consider a program for international abolition of conscription, worldwide disarmament, and agricultural and industrial reconstruction.

Mrs. Pearl told the committee many youths killed or wounded in the last war "might have had a better chance of survival" if they had had training beforehand.

"There are yet aggressor nations left in this world—nations that understand only force and strength," she said.

Daniels said in his letter that development of the atom bomb changed "the whole military strategy."

Daniels, Secretary of the Navy during the World War I and editor and publisher of the Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer, called universal military training "archaic in an era that has pushed foot soldiers to third or fourth place in modern warfare."

"Compulsory military training elevates the soldier above the citizen," Daniels wrote.

McDaniel Plea To be Heard In Montgomery

Hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed on behalf of Dennis B. McDaniel, 45, paroled bank robber, charged with rape of a 16-year-old drug store clerk May 29, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today before Judge Stedman Prescott in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

McDaniel is represented by former State's Attorney James H. Pugh, who said he will attempt to have bail set for McDaniel. The defendant has been in the Rockville jail awaiting action of the Montgomery County Grand Jury since his arrest the day following the attack.

McDaniel is charged with having attacked the girl after having offered her a ride to her home near Kensington, Md. He resides at Avenel, Md.

Col. Kilian Sues News For $500,000 Damages

Col. James A. Kilian, former commander of the Lichfield, England, military prison, yesterday asked $500,000 damages in a libel suit filed against the Washington Daily News. Colonel Kilian said the News made damaging statements about him in a story con-Court to require the President to return his name to a list of Army officers to be promoted.

Text of Truman's Message To Congress on Aiding DP's

President Truman's message to Congress asking legislation to admit European displaced persons as immigrants follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

ON SEVERAL occasions I have advocated legislation to enable a substantial number of displaced persons to enter the United States as immigrants. I stated this view in opening the second session of the General Assembly of the United Nations. In the message on the state of the Union on January 6, 1947, I said:

". . . The fact is that the executive agencies are now doing all that is reasonably possible under the limitation of existing law and established quotas. Congressional assistance in the form of new legislation is needed. I urge the Congress to turn its attention to this world problem, in an effort to find ways whereby we can fulfill our responsibilities to these thousands of homeless and suffering refugees of all faiths."

I express appreciation to the Congress for the attention already being given to this problem, an appreciation which appears to be generously shared by the public with increasing understanding of the facts and of our responsibilities.

Because of the urgency of this subject I should like again to call attention to some of its fundamental aspects. We are dealing here solely with an emergency problem growing out of the wartime disposition of a specific group of individuals, victims of war, who have come into the hands of our own and the other western allied armies of occupation in Europe.

We should not forget how their destiny came into our hands. The Nazi armies, as they swept over Europe, uprooted many millions of men, women and children from their homes and forced them to work for the German war economy. The Nazis annihilated millions by hardship and persecution. Survivors were taken under the care of the western allied armies, as these armies liberated them during the conquest of the enemy. Since the end of hostilities, the armies of occupation have been able to return to their homes some seven million of these people. But there still remain, in the western zones of Germany and Austria and in Italy, close to a million survivors who are unwilling by reason of political opinion and fear of persecution to return to the areas where they once had homes. The great majority come from the northern Baltic areas, Poland, and the Russian Ukraine and Yugoslavia.

The new International Refugee Organization, supported by the contributions of this and other countries, will aid in the care and resettlement of these displaced persons. But, as I have pointed out before, the International Refugee Organization is only a service organization. It cannot impose its will on member countries. Continuance of this organization and our financial support of its work will be required as long as the problem of these homeless people remains unsolved.

IT IS unthinkable that they should be left indefinitely in camps in Europe. We cannot turn them out in Germany into the community of the very people who persecuted them. Moreover, the German economy, so devastated by war and so badly overcrowded with the return of people of German origin from neighboring countries, is approaching an economic suffocation which in itself is one of our major problems. Turning these displaced persons into such chaos would be disastrous for them and would seriously aggravate our problems there.

This government has been firm in resisting any proposal to send these people back to their former homes by force, where it is evident that their unwillingness to return is based upon political considerations or fear of persecution. In this policy I am confident I have your support.

These victims of war and oppression look hopefully to the democratic countries to help them rebuild their lives and provide for the future of their children. We must not destroy their hope. The only civilized course is to enable these people to take new roots in friendly soil. Already certain countries of western Europe and Latin America have opened their doors to substantial numbers of these displaced persons. Plans for making homes for more of them in other countries are under consideration. But our plain duty required that we join with other nations in solving this tragic problem.

These displaced persons are hardy and resourceful or they would not have survived. A survey of the occupational backgrounds of those in our assembly centers shows a wide variety of professions, craft, and skills. These are people who oppose totalitarian rule, and who because of their burning faith in the principles of freedom and democracy have suffered untold privation and hardship. Because they are not Communists and are opposed to Communism, they have stanchly resisted all efforts to induce them to return to Communist-controlled areas. In addition, they were our individual allies in the war.

IN the light of the vast numbers of people of all countries that we have usefully assimilated into our national life, it is clear that we could readily absorb the relatively small number of these displaced persons who would be admitted. We should not forget that our Nation was founded by immigrants many of whom fled oppression and persecution. We have thrived on the energy and diversity of many peoples. It is a source of our strength that we number among our people all the major religions, races and national origins.

We ourselves should admit a substantial number as immigrants. We have not yet been able to do this because our present statutory quotas applicable to the Eastern European areas from which most of these people come are wholly inadequate for this purpose. Special legislation limited to this particular emergency will therefore be necessary if we are to share with other nations in this enterprise of offering an opportunity for a new life to these people.

I wish to emphasize that there is no proposal for a general revision of our immigration policy as now enunciated in our immigration statutes. There is no proposal to waive or lower our present prescribed standards for testing the fitness for admission of every immigrant, including these displaced persons. Those permitted to enter would still have to meet the admission requirements of our existing immigration laws. These laws provide adequate guarantees against the entry of those who are criminals or subversives, those likely to become public charges, and those who are otherwise undesirable.

Most of the individuals in the displaced persons centers already have strong roots in this country—by kinship, religion or national origin. Their occupational background clearly indicates that they can quickly become useful members of our American communities. Their kinsmen, already in the United States, have been vital factors in farm and workshop for generations. They have made lasting contributions to our arts and sciences and political life. They have been numbered among our honored dead on every battlefield of war.

We are dealing with a human problem, a world tragedy. Let us remember that these are fellow human beings now living under conditions which frustrate hope; which make it impossible for them to take any steps, unaided, to build for themselves or their children the foundations of a new life. They live in corroding uncertainty of their future. Their fate is in our hands and must now be decided. Let us join in giving them a chance at decent and self-supporting lives.

I urge the Congress to press forward with its consideration of this subject and to pass suitable legislation as speedily as possible.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

The White House,
July 7, 1947.

Truman Again Asks Congress To Admit European Refugees

the United States ought to accept. Therefore, he called for special legislation limited to this particular emergency. He emphasized that he was not asking for a general revision of American immigration policy. The DPs, like all immigrants, would have to meet the regular admission requirements. Criminals or subversives, together with those likely to become public charges, would be barred.

A House committee has held hearings on the Stratton bill, which would admit 400,000 displaced persons to the United States at the rate of 100,000 a year. Up until now, however, there has been little hope that Congress will take any action on the legislation at this session.

553 Die Violently As U. S. Observes Weekend Holiday

By The Associated Press

The three-day July Fourth holiday brought violent death to 553 persons, a toll which the National Safety Council called "a high rate of interest" for celebration of independence won in a war in which fewer than 5000 were killed.

Traffic crashes caused 271 fatalities. One hundred sixty-three persons drowned and 114 persons perished in miscellaneous mishaps.

Russian Falls Ill, Halts Korea Talks

Seoul, Korea, July 7 (U.P.).—The United States-Russian joint commission on Korea called off its meeting today because Soviet Chief Commissioner Col. Gen. Terenty F. Shtikov got sick after eating canned fish for breakfast.

Shtikov was reported resting comfortably in the Soviet consulate, where he was attended by an American doctor.

Truman Signs Legislation for U. S. Agency Study

President Truman yesterday signed legislation creating a 12-member commission to investigate all agencies of the Government with a view to promoting "economy, efficiency and improved service."

Limiting expenditures to the lowest amount consistent with efficient performance of essential services.

Defining and limiting the work Federal agencies do.

Six of the 12 commission members will be from private life, with an even division of Republicans and Democrats among the 12.

Four of the commission members will be appointed by the President, four by the Speaker of the House and four by the President of the Senate.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), the Senate's presiding officer, promptly named Senators Aiken (R., Vt.) and McClellan (D., Ark.) from the Senate, and Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan and Joseph P. Kennedy of Hyannis Park, Mass., from civilian life.

A driver's license bearing the name of Joe N. Fernandez (above) of Tampa, Fla., was found on the body of a suspected bandit who was shot to death by a New York policeman on a crowded bus in a gun duel near Times Square yesterday

Robber Killed By Policeman On Loaded Bus

New York, July 7 (AP).—A 42d st. bus loaded with 40 passengers was the scene today of a grim gun battle which brought death to a young jewelry store robber and serious bullet wounds to the patrolman who killed the swarthy gunman.

One of the passengers was used as a shield by the robber after he had dashed into an open door of the halted bus while fleeing from the patrolman Daniel B. Murphy, 29. The passenger was not hurt.

The robber reportedly told Murphy "I'm going to let you have it," but in the 10-shot duel that followed, he received fatal chest and head wounds.

Murphy was taken to a hospital with wounds in the chest and abdomen. He emptied his six-cartridge revolver in the battle while the robber fired four times.

The passengers cowered in their seats as James Doherty, the bus driver, sounded his horn to attract more police. Thousands in the noon-hour mid-Manhattan crowds were attracted to the scene, a block from Times Square.

A $10,000 nine-carat diamond ring and two wedding rings in the robber's pocket were identified by two jewelry store owners as having been stolen a short time before the shooting.

The owners' shouts caused Murphy to chase the robber into the bus a block away.

Police said the robber had in his pocket a disabled veteran's card and a Florida driver's license bearing the name of Joe N. Fernandez, 23, of Tampa, Fla.

21 Superfortresses Make Atlantic Flight

Frankfurt, Germany, July 7 (AP). The United States Army Air Force said today the largest flight of giant B-29 Superfortresses ever to cross the Atlantic arrived unheralded in Germany Saturday.

Twenty-one of the Superfortresses arrived at Giebelstadt Airport, 50 miles southeast of Frankfurt. Six others were said to have been delayed en route.

The flight was described as a "routine training mission" of crews of the Ninety-seventh Very Heavy Bomb Group from the Smoky Hill Airfield, Salina, Kans.

Mme. Lupescu Slightly Improved After Transfusions, Doctor Reports

Rio de Janeiro, July 7 (AP).—One of the two personal physicians attending Elena Lupescu in the $60-a-day hotel suite of former King Carol declared this afternoon she was slightly improved and added: "Where there's life there's hope."

But he made clear that the condition of Mme. Lupescu remained grave, after "several" blond transfusions. She is suffering from a serious form of anemia.

Carol was reported somewhat relaxed after the strain of the last 72 hours.

Mme. Lupescu's deathbed appeal to marry the temperamental Carol still rested on the technicality of the Brazilian law which permits an "in extremis" marriage petition by a dying person wishing to designate a living person as a spouse.

High-Handed Tax

All hope of transforming the District's income tax into an equitable revenue measure applicable to all local residents who benefit from spending of the receipts has once more been shattered. Yesterday the Senate conferees on the District revenue bill yielded to the unreasoning demands of the House that the salaries of Government employes be exempt from the tax. In our opinion that makes it so grossly discriminatory that it should not be permitted to stand. After many futile attempts to get a fair income tax on the books for the District, we are forced to conclude that it cannot be done. The only reasonable alternative is to abolish the income tax and put something else in its place.

Senator Cain resisted the utterly selfish demands of the House so long as he thought there was a chance of inducing its members to see the monstrous injustice of what they were doing. He yielded after the House rejected the previous conference report by a vote of approximately 3 to 1, thus making it evident that the bill to raise 12 million dollars in much needed revenue would fail if he held out for fair play for voteless Washingtonians. The new formula to which the conferees have agreed is not quite as bad as the previous one. It does not exempt from the local tax income received by Government employes from private sources within the District. But it puts a blanket exemption on Federal salaries in a city where government is our only big enterprise. And it draws wholly illogical distinctions between Federal and District employes. For example, the salaries of park policemen will be exempt; those of the Metropolitan police will not be. Employes of one segment of the city's water system will have to pay the tax; employes of another segment will be exempt.

As the bill now stands, the District income tax is so shot through with inequities that it is a reproach to our democratic pretentions. Senator Cain plans to introduce a bill to repeal the entire District income tax law. Any sort of decent regard for fair play will compel Congress to accept it, and the only means left of supplying the District's pressing need for additional revenue will be the sales tax.

Leading From Weakness

The decisive argument with us for universal military training is that it is the least evil and least costly of the alternatives facing the country. It is possible to agree with many of the telling criticisms of UMT voiced by the 20 prominent Americans who have announced a strong stand against it, and still to see the stern dictates of necessity. For, although the critics object to military training because "it gives the Nation a feeling of power without the reality of power," their substitute is vapid. Two of their suggestions, for instance, are universal disarmament and the abolition of war. These, we submit, have all the earmarks and all the superficiality of a vigorous condemnation of sin.

To our mind the most impressive reason why we need universal military training as one of the facets of our national security program is that there is simply no other way of dispensing with a large standing Army. In other words, UMT on the proposed Swiss model is the antithesis of militarism. Costly as UMT would be, its cost would not approach the expense of maintaining an Army in readiness that could give an equivalent amount of protection. We, of course, do not have such an Army today, though the million-man strength is far in excess of what is envisaged if UMT becomes law. Moreover the potential of trained veterans will become virtually useless after five years. Our National Guard and Organized Reserves are in a deplorably ineffective state, without much prospect of improvement. While we agree that some things could be done to make the reserve more attractive to volunteers, the fact remains that the only way to assure a trained reserve of adequate size is through UMT.

Much of the criticism of military training centers on the contention that it would be no defense in atomic war because of the time required for mobilization. No one, of course, can say with any certainty what form atomic war would take or what countermeasures, if any, would be effective. In any event, a future war would consist of more than merely dropping bombs. A quickly usable reserve of men and equipment would be the best safeguard we could have, both in deterring attack and in providing for retaliation. And suppose that the war should not be atomic—that new weapons canceled themselves out. Then we would be back where we started. Ability to mobilize a trained Army rapidly might well be a determining factor in restraining an aggressor.

Chiang And China

In calling upon China to fight for her life against the Chinese Communists, Chiang Kai-shek is really appealing to the United States, trying to inflame the Commiphobia in our midst with the hope of winning all-out American aid for Chiang. It is to be hoped he will not succeed. In the last six months nothing has happened which calls for a change of American policy in China. When General Marshall failed to prevent civil war in China, he issued a statement, dated January 7, which became American policy, setting forth a hands-off rule for America pending a Chinese solution of China's internal quarrels. The statement conformed to realities. All-out aid for Chiang against the Communists would mean that China would absorb energies and dollars of ours which we must now conserve to reconstruct our western civilization. All-out aid, in view of the lack of spine and honesty in Nanking, would embroil this country in an endless intervention, and, even if it succeeded, would prop up a thoroughly corrupted governing clique which, in China's language, is "eating" China. The job of running the subcontinent of China is beyond the genius of anybody but the Chinese. No consideration of our own security or world leadership warrants this country in embarking upon such a quixotic and dangerous adventure.

It is often said, "If we don't move in, the Russians will." To this fear was due the Marshall mission in China for the purpose of averting civil war. At the time we doubted its validity. The Russians have more sense than to get involved again in China. They have profited by their experience in 1927, when they sought to take over China's government, only to find themselves thrown out like a squeezed orange after they had served Chinese purposes. Their policy is to keep China in turmoil by present covert doings, except in Manchuria, which the unsophisticates of Yalta, with accessory help from the abysmal lack of statesmanship of Chiang Kai-shek, virtually gave to Russia on a silver platter. Otherwise a role on the sidelines is more to Russia's advantage. From this vantage point they must have enjoyed watching us persevere with a mediation mission which at one time looked as if it might land us into the same kind of fix that almost smothered the Russians in 1927.

However, there seems to be no doubt that Secretary Marshall is becoming sensitive to the pressure for all-out aid to Chiang. The June 28 announcement of an arms consignment to Nanking showed the drift. There were, to be sure, special considerations which appeared to justify this deal. The arms and ammunition had been ordered long before the civil war broke out, and the stuff was made especially for the 40-odd Chinese divisons that were American-trained and American-equipped for the war against Japan. But the decision to ship the material had overtones of intervention which appeared to betray an anxiety that Chiang should stay in the saddle. In our opinion Secretary Marshall will lose the moral position he asserted last January if he allows himself to be pressured bit by bit into an abandonment of his January 7 stand. The all-outers in this country will demand more aid, and our anti-Chiang-ites will accuse him of intervention. A course of staying out of the war (except for the needs entailed by our formal relations with Chiang's government) is wise as well as consistent.

The statements by Chiang Kai-shek in behalf of war to the death contain a lot of bunk as well as incitements of pro-Chiang sentiment in America. He would have us believe that all his enemies are Communists and all the Communists are directly guided by Moscow. This is a line that we cannot swallow. Chiang played the Communist game by his total absence of statecraft when peace with Japan arrived in China. He sent to Manchuria an army of southern roughnecks officered by gangster warlords whose behavior lost for Chiang any support he may have had from the pioneer people of Manchuria. The Russians, to be sure, left Japanese arms to be picked up by the anti-Chiang forces, but they fell into the hands of Manchurians as well as Communists, and the anti-Chiang forces today are a bewildering medley of dissidents. This is what is making him hard pressed. When he says China's survival is at stake, he means his own, and it is our belief that his appeal will do little to stir popular action in China in his behalf, whatever it does to our own all-out aiders.

Back To Jungle Law?

The two CIO unions which have decided to submit no issue to the new National Labor Relations Board are assuming the attitude of petulant schoolboys. So long as the law required fair play on the part of employers alone they were delighted to invoke it. Now that it also requires fair play on the part of unions the United Steel Workers and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers will remain strictly aloof. Presumably they will undertake to deal with all unfair labor practices on the part of employers by direct action. This could only lead to frequent interruption of production and loss of wages to the detriment of labor and management alike.

Of course, the decision will not give either union immunity from the operation of the Taft-Hartley Act. If any union engages in unfair labor practices, it may be brought before the NLRB on charges made by an employer. What the action of the Steel Workers and the Electrical Workers seems to mean is that unfair practices by unions and workers will be punished while many of those committed by employers will go unpunished. For it is not likely that the union will be able to strike every time an employer is accused of violating the act, and if it should do so the effect would be to punish its own members, along with the employer, for an offense that was solely his.

The two unions in question appear to be saying that they do not believe in orderly procedures for settlement of charges against themselves. Only employers should be subject to the law. In pursuit of this irrational policy they are willing to sacrifice the rights of their own members to have charges against employers heard and disposed of in an orderly manner. The United Steel Workers have gone to the additional extreme of voting to eliminate no-strike pledges from future contracts because of their fear that such pledges might be enforced by lawsuits under the new Labor Act.

This reactionary attitude is akin to the last-ditch fights of some employers against the Wagner Act in 1935-37. Apparently it is based on the naive assumption that Congress can be intimidated into repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. If powerful unions create an atmosphere in which the law cannot operate, the hope of moderating its more severe provisions and correcting its defects will be sharply diminished, in our opinion. Congress will be more likely to stiffen the law. Responsible union leaders ought to beware of the danger of getting organized labor into the untenable position of fighting against all application of public authority to itself. The way to bring about improvement of the Taft-Hartley Act is to let it operate so that the public can see where its defects lie and aid in their correction.

The Disinherited

It is impossible to think that representatives of the American people assembled in the Congress of the United States can remain unmoved by the eloquent appeal which President Truman sent to them yesterday on behalf of the helpless, homeless refugees of Europe. Specifying that "there is no proposal to waive or lower our present prescribed standards for testing the fitness for admission of every immigrant," the President asked only for emergency legislation permitting unused immigration quotas to be applied to displaced persons, so that our own country can "share with other nations in this enterprise of offering an opportunity for a new life to these people." The plea should give fresh hope to those who have all but abandoned hope in Europe's tragic displaced persons camps.

On behalf of a distinguished bi-partisan group of colleagues, Senator Ferguson just the other day introduced a bill, the "Emergency Displaced Persons Admission Act," which would do precisely what the President has asked. It is a simple, sensible companion measure to the Stratton bill stranded in the House by the prejudices of some members of the subcommittee on immigration of the Judiciary Committee. The enactment of this legislation before Congress departs for its summer vacation may well mean the difference between hope and despair for thousands of human beings. "Let us," as the President urged, "remember that these are fellow human beings now living under conditions which frustrate hope; which make it impossible for them to take any steps, unaided, to build for themselves or their children the foundations of a new life. They live in corroding uncertainty of their future. Their fate is in our hands and must now be decided. Let us join in giving them a chance at decent and self-supporting lives." That chance must come now, at once, before Congress adjourns, if it is to come at all.

It is time for Congress to override the ignorance and bigotry which have represented the refugees as threats to our economy or our political institutions. They are, of course, workers who, like the millions upon millions of immigrants who preceded them here, have a contribution to make to the economic life of the United States. And they are also, of course, people fleeing from persecution—the most fearful persecution in the whole history of mankind—and seeking the religious and political freedom which are the essence of American life. They are, indeed, the earliest fighters against, as well as the earliest victims of, the totalitarianism against which we waged a titanic war.

Representative Ed Gossett of Texas declared the other day that the effort to gain admission to the United States for some of the refugees is the work of Jews, church groups and a "so-called displaced persons lobby." He includes in this roster, we suppose, the President, Senator Ferguson and Representative Stratton. If the "Federal Council of Churches and other religious groups" succeed in getting admitted some refugees (only a minority of whom, incidentally, are Jews, and Jews who want only to go to Palestine), he declared, "they will simply add to the long line of crimes that have been committed in the name of the church and of holy religion." We do not know what Mr. Gossett means by this gibberish unless it be that the granting of asylum to the oppressed is criminal and that the expression of Christian charity is un-Christian. The whole history of the United States is a refutation of this ugly nonsense.

SPRING IN THE CITY

The city wakes at last from her long dream,
Snow-hushed, ringed round with flowers of the frost.
Her lonely summits catch again the gleam
Of this pure light that seemed forever lost.
Rooted in stone and builded of the same,
Still does the garden miracle occur—
Tremble of leaf, the bud's first tender flame
Across the green's young, evanescent blur.

There is a change that can be seen and heard.
Even the heart of steel beats faster now,
Hearing today the same remembered bird
That takes a tower for his singing bough!
Spring, like a vast, indolent wave in flight
Rises, and lifts the heart along its light!

"Religion in the Schools"

The many comments brought forth by your editorial of June 8, "Religion in the Schools," are testimony to the strong feeling on this subject. The Washington Ethical Society and the American Ethical Union, with which it is affiliated, are among the groups opposed to the "released time" plan for religious education within our public school system.

The most recent instance of minority group action to use the schools for their well-intentioned purposes arose in my home community of Fairlington, Va. A meeting was called by representatives of the Arlington Council of Religious Education to announce that weekday Bible instruction would have a place in the fall curriculum of the Fairlington Elementary School.

In support of such a break with the tradition of Thomas Jefferson, the following "facts" were furnished: (1) 75 per cent of Fairlington children do not attend any Sunday school; (2) 95 per cent of the criminals in the United States come from the 50 per cent of the population without religious education. It was assumed that Bible study would aid in correcting these stated conditions.

In an atmosphere of evangelical sectarianism it seemed almost futile to recall that the first constitutional amendment guarantees the individual in his freedom from a particular brand of religion as well as freedom for all religions. Yet your readers may be interested to know that objective studies disprove any connection between moral theology and crime prevention.

Studies conducted by Dr. George R. Mursall, chief psychologist of the Ohio Department of Welfare, disclose "no significant relation between religious training and delinquent or nondelinquent behavior . . ." Professor Hightower of the University of Iowa, after testing 3000 children for lying, cheating and deception, found "there appears to be no relationship between Biblical information and the different phases of conduct studies . . . mere knowledge of the Bible is not of itself sufficient to insure character growth."

In the light of such testimony, it seems highly questionable that an hour of Bible study in the public school will promote anything except discord through the highlighting of religious differences. Committee studies now under way by the Parent-Teacher Association and the Civic Association in Fairlington should bring all of the facts to public attention so that parents will be aware of what is happening to the integrity of their public school. Parents may question the use of the public schools to eradicate religious illiteracy as a public health measure. For once that step is taken, the next is simple, for public welfare may then require State support of religious schools.

Youth Needs

The problems of the middle-aged group are constantly being considered by a middle-aged Congress. But youth, this third large group of our population, has, in effect, no opportunity to appeal to Congress in its own behalf. Children's needs are presented by their elders, to other elders, who in turn make the decisions.

Some observers claim that when our statesmen fail to see the basic needs in most of today's issues, we should not expect them to have acute enough vision to foresee the future results of shortsighted temporal economies which neglect the education and health of oncoming generations.

Every penny we pinch now in our failure to house our homeless, to provide health for our families, and to educate all our youth is the equivalent of a dime spent for the spread of Nation-wide insecurity, social maladjustment, and bitterness. EDWIN H. MINER.
Washington.

Controlless Budget

Would it be too much to ask any one of our Republican Congressmen who has successfully aided in killing off price control and for all practical purposes, rent control, to set up a budget for a family of four earning what is considered an "average" income?

Under the Government's rationing system or OPA, the wealthy were often not able to buy all they wanted; their right to share in available food supplies was limited by their ration books.

Now, under the system the Republicans have given us, or price rationing, even the middle class are often not able to buy all they need; their right to share in available food supplies is limited by their dollars.

Perhaps the wife of one of the Republican Representatives who helped institute price rationing will prepare a sample budget and show how adequate meals for an average family of two adults and two children may be served on an average income of, say, $45 a week, of which $55 a month now, $63.25 (as soon as price rationing becomes effective), must go for rent.

MRS. G. R. ATKINSON.
Cincinnati.

"Terminal Leave Bonds"

I doubt that you will print this letter, but here goes my chance to tell you what I think of you personally, and of your so-called "rag" for allowing such an editorial as "Terminal Leave Bonds" to be printed July 3.

You will say I am just one case out of millions, but there are many more in the same boat. For lack of an apartment to live in, I had to buy a house. The down payment took what we had saved, and I had to borrow from a bank to make all the hidden settlement charges which no one tells you about until the final settlement. So you can readily see what cashing my terminal leave bond might do for me. At least it would clear up my loan.

Those who did not need the money right away would not cash their bonds, but would hold them the full time as the rate of interest is greater than under any other savings plan.

Considering the long-range plan, the bonds being cashed now would not cause any more inflation at the present time than they would if cashed five years hence. If you remember at the time of the payment of bonuses for World War I, there was a slight inflation. What could possibly make you think that the cashing of bonds five years from now would not cause inflation?

And finally, consider how much money we have sent abroad in loans to other countries, the total amount making the amount of terminal leave bonds negligible. Also consider little things like our own Government destroying potatoes, thereby causing me to pay up to as high as 8 and 9 cents a pound. I personally would like to cash my leave bond in order to live. VIRGIL W. WARNER.
Washington.

Quinidine Allocation Controls

Occasionally legislation dealing primarily with business matters has a direct bearing on the lives and health of individuals. A case in point is the bill to provide for the extension of certain powers of the President under Title III of the Second War Powers Act. Under this act cinchona bark, quinine and quinidine have been allocated for essential medicinal uses ever since the Japanese cut off supplies in the Pacific.

Quinidine is absolutely necessary for certain heart conditions. People with these heart conditions will die or will be permanently injured unless they have constant or intermittent use of this drug. The supply of quinidine has been so low that patients with heart disease—or their doctors or their families—have had to hunt from one pharmacy to another for enough quinidine to fill a prescription. And this is the case today when quinidine can be supplied only on prescription to persons with heart ailments. Such prescriptions are limited to 50 three-grain tablets and they cannot be refilled.

House Bill 3647 would end all effective control of the sale of quinidine. It contains a proviso "that control shall not apply to any said materials now held or hereafter acquired by other than Government agencies." Under this, the Government stockpile of quinidine—which has never been and is not now large enough to meet the requests—could be allocated to the processor; but after it left the processor it could be used by any one for any purpose since it would be "hereafter acquired by other than Government agencies." Furthermore, the quinidine now possessed by wholesale druggists, pharmacists and processors would be freed of all controls.

Senate bill 1461, which was the subject of amendment and debate on July 3, now calls for continuation of the controls without the dangerous proviso in the House bill. This is the only form of legislation on the subject which will adequately protect the cardiac patient.

It is not strange that Senators and Representatives have been confused by the contradictory testimony which was given in support of and in opposition to the retention of controls on cinchona bark, quinine, and quinidine. However, those who have studied and lived with this problem through the war years are aware of the absolute necessity of continuing these controls until an adequate supply of cinchona and cinchona derivatives is available. The present civil war in Java is one reason for fearing a continued short supply.

Testimony of leading cardiologists, the Committee on Cardio-Vascular Diseases of the National Research Council, the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Asociation, the American Pharmaceutical Association, and of leading prescription pharmacists in all parts of the United States supports the finding that there is not enough quinidine in circulation or possibly available within the next year to permit subjecting cardiac patients to the hazard of removal of allocation in this drug. Therefore, we should continue the exacting supervision over distribution of the available supply which has been in effect.

As this legislation goes to the conferees of the House and Senate, it should be made clear to those responsible for the law on this subject that they have in their hands the lives of thousands of cardiac patients all over the United States who are not in a position to do anything about assuring themselves an adequate supply of this life-saving drug except to beg members of the House and Senate to consider their plight and retain allocation control over cinchona bark and quinidine.

Washington Calling

Leftist Isolationism

IN THE most obvious and public way, the Soviet Union has now made it abundantly clear that the masters of the Kremlin do not want the reconstruction of Europe on anything but their own terms. Those terms mean ultimately the surrender of the values at the base of Europe's civilization.

Because Molotov's performance in Paris was so crude, the perennial apologists for Russia in this country are likely to have a bad time finding a convenient rationalization. That will not apply, of course, to the avowed Communists who merely parrot Pravda and the Moscow propaganda radio.

But for those who travel on the fringes, it will be more difficult. Troubled idealists who have continued to cling to Russia's professions of good intention should after this have no difficulty in making up their minds. Those who still go along will be guilty, in the most charitable judgment, of deliberate and wilful blindness.

In his last radio talk, Henry Wallace spoke approvingly of the Marshall plan for Europe and the gain it represented, in Wallace's view, over the Truman doctrine. The radio talk followed a speech in Washington in which Wallace had made no mention of the Marshall program.

The Washington speech is an interesting document. Through it runs the hint that so long as a single sharecropper is denied the right to vote, the United States has no right to interest itself in what is happening in Europe and Asia.

THIS IS the isolationism of the left. It may well become official policy for the Communists and fellow travelers, who will do all in their power to undermine the Marshall program for European reconstruction.

There is a striking parallel for this isolationism in the recent past. From the time of the Soviet-Nazi pact in August, 1939, just before the outbreak of World War II, up until Russia was attacked on June 21, 1941, the Communists and the fellow travelers in this country were fiercely isolationist. That was the hallmark of the Communist line.

They said it was merely a war between rival imperialisms. They did everything they could to prevent any aid from going to the countries that were trying desperately to hold off the Nazis. They denounced Roosevelt as a warmonger.

In Washington Wallace spoke under the auspices of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. These isolationists, who were doing Russia's bidding whether they knew it or not, helped to keep the United States unprepared both physically and morally for that blow that fell at Pearl Harbor. We know from events of the past seven years how dangerous was that ostrich-like unpreparedness. Strangely enough, in the unreal period the Communist line was almost identical with the Chicago Tribune line.

We can work for progressive goals here at home and at the same time we can play a democratic role in the rehabilitation of Europe. In fact, the two objectives are really one and the same.

Statehood For Hawaii

The negative vote in the House on the question of statehood for Hawaii is a painful reminder that knowledge of both geography and politics is sadly missing from American education. The negative members cited as causes for what is alleged to be justification for their opposition two causes: distance and mixture of races.

As to distance, Honolulu is not so far from Washington, either as regards personal travel or official communication, as Indianapolis was from Columbus, Ohio, when Indiana was made a State.

As to mixture of races, every European and Asiatic race represented in the United States and every European or Asiatic language spoken in the United States may be found in New Mexico. Members of all these races are now all Americans, participating satisfactorily in the government of New Mexico.

There is but one kind of American citizenship. It is 100 per cent or it is nothing.

The Grea Divide

By Barnetover

A Turning Poi In History

IN A PREVIOUS column I said that at Paris, early this month, Soviet diplomacy suffered its most serious defeat in a long time.

NOVER

The fact must be noted that it was a self-inflicted defeat, deliberately self-inflicted. Neither Great Britain nor France sought to bring it about. Neither is happy over it.

The two western powers would greatly prefer to have Russia and her satellilities join with them and other nations in planning and carrying out a continent-wide program of European recovery.

Russia said no. She did so with her eyes wide open and with no lack of awareness of the possible consequences.

THE MEN IN the Kremlin must have known full well, when they ordered Viacheslav Molotov to break up the Paris conference, that Great Britain and France were prepared to go ahead without Russia if Russia balked.

They must also have realized that in taking the stand they did on the Marshall plan, Russia left herself open to the charge of being indifferent to European recovery and of splitting Europe in two.

These considerations did not deter them. They preferred to risk a diplomatic defeat rather than, by Russia's cooperation, to help advance Europe's recovery.

Why?

ONE IMPORTANT reason for the Russian stand at Paris lies in the circumstance that Europe's economic recovery, in the form it would take if the original Anglo-French-American plans were carried out, would, in the eyes of the Kremlin, be injurious to Russia's political interests.

A continent-wide program of mutual aid would inevitably re create the old and powerful tie that bound eastern Europe t western Europe. That would in evitably mean a lessening o eastern Europe's present an forced dependence on Russia.

An even more powerful motiv for Russia's refusal to join wit Great Britain and France in ca rying out the Marshall plan is be found in the Russian attitu toward the United States.

THE MEN in the Kremlin a beyond everything power wo shipers.

They have only contempt small and weak nations. Th regard Great Britain and Fra as nations that have passed th zenith and are now on downgrade.

Russia's only rival, as they it, is the United States wh power and whose resources t do not and cannot disco They are firmly convinced, h ever, that the United State headed for an economic tails

When that happens, all rope and a large part of the t the world will be wide open Russian penetration. They determined to do nothing t would postpone such a de opment. And they regard the rshall plan as a frantic move the United States to avert pending economic disaster by lding up the economy of Eu pean nations who, in conse ence, would then be tied to cle Sam's chariot.

WHAT WE NOW have in Eu pe is a tug of war.

We can be sure that Russia ll employ every form of direct litical pressure and fifth-lumn tactics to prevent the arshall plan from being suc ssfully carried out.

First of all, Russia has set an ample of abstention which her tellites are under pressure to ilitate, regardless of their eco mic needs.

Secondly, we can expect that through western Europe, and rticularly France and Italy, e Communist parties will now ek to sabotage the recovery forts of their respective gov nments. There is an offset g possibility that in doing so e Communist parties will be lit wide open.

It is significant, in this con ction, that Palmiro Togliatti, e Italian Communist leader, s thus far avoided a frontal, l-out attack on the Marshall an. The Italians are fully ware that while Russia has en milking their country rough reparations, aid can only me from the West.

In the third place, Russia can e expected to use its present arvest, believed to be a very od one, to provide its satellites ith food.

ALL THESE STRATEGEMS ill not work, however, unless he Western powers, and par icularly the United States, fall down on their job.

This country has a great op portunity to reverse the tide that has been flowing in Europe, an opportunity not likely to recur again.

Russia's greatest lever of op position to the Marshall plan is the fear that Congress will not vote the funds necessary to put that plan into effect.

If that proves true, the battle of Europe will be lost to the Russians and the diplomatic defeat she suffered at Paris during the first week of July will be transformed into a decisive political triumph.

If, on the other hand, our actions prove equal to our intentions, we shall have checkmated Russia's ambitions in Europe and put that continent on the road to real peace and real peace.

This country's responsibilities are tremendous. The opportunities now within our grasp are equally great. We are at a great turning point in history. We can either advance or retreat. There is no standing still.

Hungary to Socializ Aluminum Industry

Budapest, Hungary, July (U.P.) Minister of Industry Antal Ban nounced last night that Hung's aluminum industry including its bauxite mines—among the largest in the world—would be nationalized.

(The authoritative Statesmen's Yearbook lists Hungary's 1939 output of Bauxite, the basis of aluminum, at 500,193 tons.)

Answer On The Marshall Plan

DURING THIS week, by Saturday or before, America will hear decisive news. It will come from a small country, Czechoslovakia, but it will reveal the attitude of a large country, Russia, toward us and our Marshall plan for the restoration of Europe.

Sullivan

Editor's Note: The Czech government was reported last night to have decided to accept the invitation to participate in the Paris European Aid Conference.

By the Marshall plan, we advised the countries of Europe that they should get together for cooperative use of their own resources for self-help toward over-all recovery. We said that as soon as this is done we will contribute money and food and goods and machinery and every other possible help to recovery.

Britain and France received the Marshall plan with approval, Britain with special enthusiasm, and their Foreign Ministers conferred at Paris with Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia. Molotov tried to bully them, warned them not to go on with the plan. But Britain and France went on nevertheless. They sent invitations to 22 European countries, for a meeting to be held July 12. The answers to these invitations will tell a momentous story—how many nations and what ones are willing to go on with the Marshall plan; what ones are so under awe of Russia that they feel constrained to take her attitude. Those "we accepts" and "we regrets" next Saturday will be an epochal line-up, a division of the world into two.

OF ALL the responses, the one from Czechoslovakia will give most light. That country is not among the ones so completely subservient to Russia that their answers can be known in advance, such as Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. At the same time Czechoslovakia is so situated that it can by no means escape showing some deference to Russia. Its head, Premier Gottwald, and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, as soon as they received the invitation from Britain and France, hurried off to Moscow, troubled men on a somber errand.

In Washington, observers and officials feel that the answer Czechoslovakia gives next Saturday will reflect the precise shading of Russia's attitude. They think it possible that Russia, after a week of reflection since it abruptly flouted the Marshall plan, may have modified its attitude. If the Czech answer is an acceptance, it will be interpreted as meaning that the Russian attitude is not completely recalcitrant, that it is still possible to avoid utter division of the world into two. If the Czech answer is a refusal, that will be interpreted as meaning that Russia is prepared to go to extremes in refusal to cooperate, that the division of the world into two is definitely under way.

One feels sympathy for Czechoslovakia, a small country caught in the middle as two worlds begin to grind. In coming to decision between the two, Czechoslovakia is by her vital circumstances pulled both ways. Geographically she is a bridge between the two, economically a link between them, with no desire more poignant than to be allowed to live at peace with both. Geographically she is literally in the middle, almost surrounded by Russia and the lands Russia dominates, yet on one front in contact with the western world. Economically a small landlocked manufacturing country, she is dependent for most of her market and much of her materials on both Russia and the Western world.

AT THIS moment the pull upon Czechoslovakia to go along with Russia is balanced by a circumstance that draws her toward accepting the English-French invitation and cooperating with the Marshall plan and the United States. Some time ago she applied to the World Bank for a loan of approximately a quarter billion dollars. With this she could get her industry into high gear, without it she will be hard pressed. Whether the World Bank grants the loan must depend in large part on how Czechoslovakia decides this week. If she accepts the English-French invitation and cooperates in European recovery, she is likely to get the loan, for recovery is the object of the bank's loans. It is difficult to conceive the loan being granted if she does not accept.

The poignant picture of a small country trying to get along with great ones and with contending worlds is illustrated by a story told in Washington, whether or not an actual incident or one invented to epitomize a situation. Some years ago Foreign Minister Masaryk came to Washington to see Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State. The Czechs had just signed a treaty of alliance and mutual aid with Russia. Mr. Hull reproachfully asked Masaryk why his country signed the treaty. As reply, Masaryk leaned over, took a piece of blank paper from the desk, and carefully signed his name at the bottom. "Mr. Secretary" he said "I have just signed a treaty of friendship and mutual aid with the United States. Will you fill in above my signature whatever you think the terms should be?"

The story sounds like Masaryk. He is a pungent person. Once he said, "My country is a bridge between East and West—and you know what people use bridges for."

Action on Displaced Persons

A Communication

IT IS possible that you may recollect my name in connection with the problem of the displaced persons in Germany and with the activities of UNRRA in relation thereto. On this assumption, I make so bold as to address to you that which follows.

I was released from duty with UNRRA in August of last year and retired from the British Army in December last. Neither of these events has in any way diminished my personal interest in the displaced persons problem which, to one who has tried to deal with it on the spot at first hand, must always be unforgettable. The sight of so much human misery and fearful suffering so nobly borne cannot fail to create an impression on the mind, on the conscience, of anyone not entirely bereft of human feeling.

I have chosen this particular moment at which to address you since I have recently returned from a trip abroad of some weeks' duration, a trip which took me to a point whence it was possible to look back both at Europe and at North America and, as it were, compare their situations in certain respects.

Since, as I have said, the problem of the displaced persons of Europe must forever remain uppermost in my mind, it was inevitable that I should be struck by the apparent contrast between the respective scales of effort that have been put out by the United States of America and by Great Britain towards the solution of what is popularly known as the displaced persons problem.

THERE CAN never be doubt that the United States of America has given evidence of great sympathy towards the unfortunates of Europe, the left-overs from the late war. Expressed in terms of dollars, the United States' contribution towards relief in general has been typically generous. Never I suppose has any call for relief from distress gone unanswered from the United States.

But looking at the matter from afar, it seems to me that for a variety of reasons the outpourings of United States generosity in this instance have canalized themselves into the particular channel that affords relief to Jewish persons, those of them that have survived Hitler's holocaust and have become displaced during and since the war.

I should be the last to suggest that the Jewish displaced persons are not in need of relief. Having seen for myself, I know how dire is their need both physically and spiritually. Religious persecution is no new thing in this wicked world. Our European history tells us an almost unending story of martyrdom on account of one faith or another. We had prided ourselves that the Dark Ages were dead, until Hitler showed us that we were falsely optimistic.

I wonder how many of your readers, how many newspaper readers in the United States appreciate the fact that the Jewish displaced persons of Europe constitute quite a small minority of the sickening total of all those who are still suffering as a result of the devilish activities of our late enemies. There are very many devout Christians who are equally deserving of the help that the less unfortunate are able and I am sure willing, to give, if the matter could be put before them.

THIS HELP that is so sorely needed by so many is no longer as it was in the first instance simply a matter of what is understood by the term "relief." Thanks to the generosity of the relief measures already undertaken by a heartening variety of agencies, the back of the relief problem one may say was broken some time ago. But to this problem, there succeeds that no less urgent of what one may term rehabilitation or resettlement.

Difficult though the relief problem was, this next one must be infinitely more so, for its solution is not only a matter of the provision, transportation and distribution of money or of goods to specified recipients. It becomes now a matter of finding new homes, indeed new lives, not only for individual men, women and children but for family groups or even larger groupings.

As you will see, this cannot possibly be any comparatively cold-blooded matter of cash and calories. There is called for here a corresponding generosity in human kindness, of help both practical and spiritual to be given in such a manner that the recipients thereof may be given a chance to restore themselves to life from the very brink of death, physical and spiritual, where they have precariously existed for so long.

When from afar one contemplates this aspect of the further problem, it is most striking to perceive what has been done and what is being done by this little island, Great Britain, and its people whom so many apparently believe to have passed or to be passing their greatness. I wonder once more how many newspaper readers in your country appreciate the great work that has been done in Britain and is still patiently being carried out on behalf of a very large proportion of the unfortunate former inhabitants of Poland.

I wonder how many realize that for some time past there has been a steady flow into Great Britain of displaced Baltic people and Ukrainians. These latter, it is true, are being found employment in trades and occupations that cannot for the moment be filled by British labor, but nevertheless it must, I think, be counted for righteousness to the British that they are indeed accepting these people from abroad to share the meager resources of their war-battered homeland. They are being received, not as slaves, not as inferiors in any way, but as human beings just as entitled as are any of us to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

YET WHEN one turns to look for some equivalent activity on the part of the United States of America, which has at its disposal such immeasurably greater material resources and no less great resources in human kindness, it is curious to find that so little that is practical seems hitherto to have been done. Something, it is true, has indeed been accomplished by the prompt reopening of the annual European immigration but I must admit that it does appear somewhat anomalous that the quota fixed should, I understand, include a preponderance of Germans. I do not suggest that our late enemies, the Germans, are not in dire need of help but it seems arguable that, for the time being at any rate, priority of rescue might more equitably be accorded to those, our friends, who have not so much as the security even of a shattered homeland.

There is, I am fully aware, much more at stake in all this than immediately meets the eye. Life in the world today has become so complicated that it is possible for each one of us to think up on the spur of the moment a hundred apparently good reasons for not doing this or for not doing that. It is easy, it is often deceptively easy, in the world of today to take the line of least resistance, to do nothing, to stay put, to let sleeping dogs lie and to brush the dirt under the carpet.

It is easy, that is to say, if one is able to stifle the sometimes painful twinges of the conscience. So many of us have formed the habit when confronted with a present-day problem of diving at once into its mathematical intricacies instead of, as I believe more rightly, pausing for a moment to ask ouselves simply, what is right and what is wrong. And I believe further that there are indeed very few problems either of today or of any other period to which the right answer is in fact to do nothing.

TO SAY that nothing has been or is being done for Europe's displaced persons is, of course, very far from the truth. But I believe the question we should each one of us now ask ourselves is, "Are we doing enough for them?" It is my understanding that were the full truth of the distressing situation of these unfortunate people, free from all speculation as to possible complications, be they political, ethnographical, sociological or any other, put before all of those who are in a position to give the help that is so urgently and so heartrendingly needed, it would at once be given. The whole business could then be settled in a very short while, to the detriment of none and to the great gain of both giver and receiver.

In conclusion, may I please refer you to my opening paragraph that gives you some detail of my present, personal situation. From this, you will perceive that I take the liberty of writing to you simply and solely as an individual Briton who has in the recent past had the privilege of serving not only his own government but yours as well. I write on behalf of no organization or organized society. I do not, if you can believe it, have the support in this matter even of a subcommittee. I write not for my own benefit in any way but on behalf of those so displaced by misfortune that there is no constituted authority to whom they can make appeal. I write, in fact, on behalf of the displaced persons of Europe.

Peanut Price Jibes Arouse Farmers Union

A facetious letter by a House Appropriations Committee expert about Government support of peanut prices, has aroused the ire of the National Farmers Union.

James G. Patton, president of NFU, yesterday sent a copy of the letter to the Senate Appropriations Committee, now considering appropriations for the Department of Agriculture.

The expert is Howard Friend, an employe of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, loaned to aid the House committee in determining how much money the Agriculture Department should have.

In his letter Patton referred to Friend as a "bitterly antifarmer employe" of the Indiana Chamber, who took part in investigations for the House committee leading to "virtual wreckage of the national farm program."

'Star Chamber' Hearings Charged

His letter called upon the House to "abide by the law, the Legislative Reorganization Act, and put an end to star-chamber closed hearings of the Appropriations Committee."

"I have discovered," Friend is alleged to have written to his former Indiana employers, "that we (meaning the great and wise U. S. A.) are planning to spend, or rather to lose, 16 million dollars next year on peanuts we don't need.

"It seems that during the war peanut production went up because somebody wanted peanut oil for something.

"Now we don't need the oil, but peanut producers still like the idea of producing lots of peanuts whether anybody wants peanut oil or peanut butter or not.

"Of course, we can't let the price drop because maybe peanuts would go back to a nickel a bag, or if it stayed at 10 cents a bag, peanut eaters might get too many peanuts for a dime and thereby get the bellyache.

Might Feed the Squirrels

"Besides it wouldn't be any fun producing too many peanuts unless somebody like Uncle Sam spent a bagful of money (and we don't mean just a dime peanut bagful) to keep those old prices up where we hike them.

"Perhaps someone will suggest that the surplus is needed to feed the monkeys and squirrels. That should make the taxpayer look and act more like their alleged ancestors.

"Bob (Robert Hammer, another Indiana C. of C. employe loaned to the Government) and I have in mind recommending that a peanut oil having all virtues and what not of castor oil be developed. Then feed it Mussolini style to the guys who dreamed up the 16-million-dollar grow-more-but-eat-less peanut deal."

The price support law, under the so-called Steagall amendment, requires that the Government support the price of peanuts, along with many other farm commodities until the end of next year.

VFW Un-American Hearings to Start

First of a series of public hearings sponsored by the un-American activities committee of the District department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Hotel Willard.

Adelbert W. Lee, member of the District Board of Education, will appear before the committee to "disclose Communistic activities and infiltration of red doctrines in the public schools of the city," according to Charles S. Sullivan, jr., chairman.

The VFW committee, Sullivan said, is seeking cooperation of civic, patriotic and other veterans organizations in a plan to "expose and combat subversive and Communist activity in the District."

75% of Spain's Voters Back Franco Regime

Madrid, July 7 (AP).—The Franco government announced today that more than 75 per cent of Spain's qualified voters had approved the new law of succession confirming Francisco Franco as chief of state and establishing procedure to name a king or regent as his successor.

Approximately 16,185,000 persons were eligible to vote in the referendum on the new law, the first balloting in Spain in 11 years.

[Rumors spread through Madrid, the International News Service said, tonight that Franco may step out as Spain's premier but retain his posts of chief of state and head of the armed forces. The possibility of a cabinet shake-up was reported after it was learned the generalissimo had summoned his ministers to a special conference.]

Newsmen Grill French Minister On Press Statute

Paris, July 7 (AP).—Pierre Bourdan, Minister of Youth, Art and Letters, met a barrage of critical questions today at a news conference on the government's bill for a press statute to prevent "economic influence" over France's newspapers.

At the same time it excludes anyone from owning shares who has a controlling interest in another business capitalized for more than 10 million francs (about $80,000).

Bourdan said the measure was necessary to "limit the control of the press by enterprises having nothing to do with the press and which often see in it a means of pressure."

New York Cotton

New York, July 7 (AP).—Cotton futures weakened on late liquidation, with the decline accentuated by stop-loss selling. Final prices were 60 cents to $1.75 a bale under last Thursday's close. The reaction was attributed to expectation that the Government cotton acreage report tomorrow will show a sharp increase compared with last season. Average trade ideas were for a 16 to 20 per cent gain over last season's plantings.

Mill buying and short covering rallied the market to gains of almost $1 a bale in early dealings influenced partly by the prompt stopping of 14 July transferable notices.

Like to rent our your spare room—but not so sure you could find the kind of a tenant you want? Mrs. Charles W. Anderson, 5005 11th Street South, Arlington, can tell you how to solve that problem. She advertised her room in The Washington Post and had so many replies she was able to choose her tenant.

"People kept calling me back to see if I'd decided on the new occupant," reports Mrs. Anderson, "one woman called three times; I selected a tenant first day, but the incoming calls hardly gave me time to phone and kill my ad."

Find the right person to fill your spare room vacancy. Find the person fast with a low-cost, result-getting ad in The Post. You needn't come downtown to place your ad. You needn't even write it. Just phone The Post and let an ad writer word your notice with professional skill.

Bank Earnings Gain Largest In 19 Years

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net current earnings of the 465 member banks in the Fifth Federal Reserve District showed an increase of 35.5 per cent in 1946 over the previous year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Eighteen of Washington's 19 banks are Federal Reserve members.

The gain was the greatest in the past 19 years, the Richmond bank noted in a special survey. Net current earnings last year aggregated $41,848,000, as compared with $33,356,000 in 1945.

Gross earnings in 1946 totaled $108,275,000, a climb of 17.9 per cent over the previous year. Total expenses of $66,427,000 were 13.6 per cent higher.

Commenting on the impressive earnings record in this region, the Reserve Bank said:

"The greatest increase in earnings came from the loan portfolio; the 29 per cent increase in loans outstanding that occurred during 1946 brought with it an increase of 36 per cent in interest and discount received. All other forms of earnings showed increases with the exception of service charges and commissions on loans, which declined somewhat from the 1945 level."

Also noted were decreased profits and recoveries on securities which caused a drop in contribution of so-called non-operating factors to profits, "yet profits before income taxes were 15.7 per cent above the 1945 figure and net profits showed an almost identical increase."

TWA Elevates Schulte

Francis H. Schulte of Alexandria has been appointed Washington station manager for Trans World Airline. He succeeds Thomas Needham, who resigned last month.

Schulte

Schulte joined TWA in February, 1940, and has been in Washington since July 1, 1943. He formerly served as chief passenger agent and assistant station manager. He is married and has four children.

Rails' Net Continues Rise

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that the Class I railroads has an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of about $46,600,000 in May.

This compared with a net deficit of $36,300,000 in May, 1946, a period marked by a railroad strike and other labor disturbances.

The carriers' estimated net income for the first five months of this year is $167,000,000, compared with a $37,000,000 deficit in the corresponding 1946 period.

Total operating revenues in the first five months of 1947, according to Association statistics, amounted to $3,452,989,710 against $2,965,598,484 in the same period last year, or an increase of 16.4 per cent. Operating expenses in the first five months of 1947 are listed at $2,698,178,627 compared with $2,568,041,993 in the corresponding 1946 period, or an increase of 5.1 per cent.

Stettinius on Bank Board

Edward R. Stettinius, jr., former Secretary of State and now rector of the University of Virginia, has been appointed a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday. Stettinius now lives at Rapidan, Va. His term as bank director will last until December 31, 1949.

'Slave' Tells Of Kissless Love Affair

San Diego, July 7 (U.P.).—Dora Jones today told a Federal court jury of a kissless three-year love affair with Mrs. A. W. Ingalls' first husband, Walter Harmon of Washington, D. C., and said, "I tried to get out of the way but he always overpowered me."

The 57-year-old Negro maid who the Government charges was kept in slavery by Mr. and Mrs. Ingalls for nearly 30 years, told the court she had described the affair to Mrs. Ingalls.

"I told her he came down early when I was at work. He'd come down and grab me," Dora said. "He was dressed in a bathrobe and had on a night shirt. He never got into bed with me. He never showed any affection on his part. He never kissed me.

"It wasn't as if he'd run up against a glamorous woman or something like that. I told her that all my part was giving in. I tried to get out of the way but he always overpowered me."

Dora testified that these affairs occurred infrequently for three years and that even after she became pregnant and underwent an abortion at Mrs. Ingalls' insistance, Harmon still "made advances but we never had anything to do with each other."

Miss Jones said that during sugar rationing, Mrs. Ingalls told her that she (Dora) had diabetes and could not have any sugar, candy, pie or cake.

She testified that she occasionally had worked for some of Mr. Ingalls' clients and was paid for it. "Just so much a day, I think." She said she never actually saw the money but assumed that Mrs. Ingalls had put it in the bank for her.

Boy, 15, Sentenced For Hanging Playmate

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Carl de Flumer, 15, was sentenced today to serve from 20 years to life in Clinton Prison for the "impulse" hanging of his 8-year-old playmate, Robert Wahrman.

The nude body of the Wahrman boy was found hanging from a tree in a wooded suburban area last March 15.

Mrs. Weaver Freed on Bond In Pistol-Slaying of Husband

Comely Mrs. Katherine Virginia Weaver, 39, Cottage City, Md., housewife, yesterday was freed in $3000 bond pending county grand jury action on charges that she shot and killed her mate of 22 years.

Police charge she pumped five shots from an old, Frontier-type Colt into her husband, Joseph M. Weaver, 43, filling station operator, climaxing an argument over another woman. Wounded in the head, chest and abdomen, Weaver died 10 minutes after arrival at Prince Georges County General Hospital.

Judge Charles C. Marbury, Prince George County Circut Court, issued a writ of habeas corpus and set the bail at $3000 after no objection was raised by the prosecutor, State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie.

Writ and bail was asked by Robert W. McCullough, the wife's attorney, who pleaded that her services were needed at home, 3802 37th ave., Cottage City, to care for her two children, Nancy, 8, and Mary, 20. His client, he said, had lived there 12 years, and "would make no attempt to leave" the court's jurisdiction.

Bail was promptly posted by Cabana Club, 3105 Naylor rd., Silver Hill, Md.

Except for wiping her hands periodically on a crumpled handkerchief, Mrs. Weaver appeared composed at the circuit court proceeding and an earlier hearing in police court, Hyattsville, Md. Her counsel entered a plea of not guilty and waived reading of the warrant and a hearing on the charge at the police court proceeding.

The husband, who operated a gasoline station at 3327 M st. nw., was found dying in the kitchen of the family home last Wednesday after neighbors reported hearing a burst of gunfire and a woman's shriek.

Lutheran Group Elects Officers, Urges Aid to DPs

Lund, Sweden, July 7 (AP).—The executive committee of the Lutheran World Federatin, meeting here today after the closing of the general assembly Saturday, elected Dr. A. Wentz of Gettysburg, Pa., first vice president of the federation and Dr. Ralph H. Long of New York, treasurer.

The committee requested in a resolution that all churches do all in their power to persuade the governments of their countries to adopt a suitable measure for bringing effective help to displaced persons and refugees, "without regard to origin, language, nationality or status."

Before adjourning to meet in Amsterdam in July, 1948, the committee voted to set up five departments around the world: Missions, work on behalf of displaced persons and refugees, relief, young activities and social problems.

Penn State Soccer

State College, Pa., July 7 (AP).—The Penn State College soccer team will play eight games this Fall, including a tilt here October 25 against Navy.

Cumberland Man Declared Suicide

Cumberland, Md., July 7 (AP).—Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, returned a verdict of suicide today in the death of T. Raymond Peterman, 62, whose body was found in the bedroom of his home this afternoon. Deming said death was caused by a self-administered .38 caliber bullet wound below the heart. He was reported to have suffered from ill health for the past several years.

Does YOUR Dog "SCRATCH?"
If He Does, He Is in TORMENT

The best dog in the world can't be truly happy when he must continually scratch, dig, rub and bite himself, seeking relief from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. He is in frenzied torment—can't help himself. But you may. Try giving him, as thousands are doing, Rex Hunters Dog Powders, once each week. Note the quick difference. Learn why a glad purchaser wrote: "I surely was pleased, as the 25c package helped my dog immediately. He has practically quit scratching, has more pep and his hair is glossy again." NOW, OVER 56,000 OWNERS of Kaiser and Frazer Cars—

MORE THAN 12,000 CARS BUILT IN JUNE!

Yes, Willow Run has reached a production rate of more than 12,000 Kaiser and Frazer cars per month—better than a car per minute! One hundred and twenty million dollars worth have been sold at retail. And the public buys the factory output every month—and asks for more. Production is being increased!

The reason for the phenomenal success of these 100%-postwar automobiles is easy to discover. The 56,000 proud owners who have driven them millions of miles are the best salesmen we have! They are enthusiastic—and tell their friends. They know they have something new and different. They know they have styling and design far in advance of the rest of the industry. And they know they enjoy a ride no other car can equal!

Drive either of these cars. Compare the ride with the best you have ever known. You will want to own a Kaiser or a Frazer. Then place your order! Increased production means that we can now give you early delivery.

KAISER

KAISER SERVICE FRAZER
Both cars are serviced with genuine factory parts—wherever you go—by one of the four largest automobile dealer organizations in the world.

FRAZER

THE PUBLIC LIKES THE KAISER AND THE FRAZER

1. Because they are beautiful! They look like what they are—the newest things on wheels! They set the fashion for all future motor cars—in body lines and colors.

2. Because they are roomy! The whole width of these cars is inside! Both seats are more than five feet wide. Six adults have room to spare. And then, too, there is 27 cu. ft. of space in the luggage compartment!

3. Because they are safe! Extra low center of gravity and stabilizer bars both front and rear, cut sway to a minimum. They hug the road! Superlative vision in all directions. Smooth, positive braking action.

4. Because they perform! The economical, 100-hp., six-cylinder engine provides a very high horsepower-to-weight ratio. Sensational acceleration. Unbelievable gasoline economy!

5. Because of the ride! Owners say there never was a ride like this! No car designed before the war can even compete. This you must experience! Compare the ride, today!

American Stars 6-5 Favorites Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, July 7.—The American and National leagues are leveling in this fourteenth All-Star game that is down for decision tomorrow at Wrigley Field. It's serious business this year with the league officials who in past seasons were reluctant parties to the All-Star game, which wasn't their idea in the first place.

POVICH

President Ford Frick, of the National League, has forcibly reminded his All-Star manager, Eddie Dyer, that league prestige is riding on the result. The National doesn't want to get licked again by the American, Frick has told Dyer, and "It's not just an exhibition. We've taken too many beatings in this game—the American League is too cocky."

The American Leaguers have won nine and lost only three of the games thus far, and Frick told Dyer the 12-0 defeat at Boston last year was disgraceful.

"Rip Sewell had no business telling Ted Williams he was going to throw him that blooper Williams hit for a home run at Boston. Let's have no more of that nonsense, Frick said.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, for the first time in years, boasts the biggest name in the All-Star business this season. He is Ewell Blackwell, the Ichabod Cranish right hander who has already turned in a no-hit game, and won his last 12 in a row. And they have No. 2 1947 sensation in Johnny Mize, knocker of 24 home runs thus far.

Manager Joe Cronin, of the American League, on the trip to Chicago last night, took the philosophic view of Blackwell, however. "Hell, we aren't scared of him. He can pitch only three innings, you know," Cronin said. "We'll probably turn Spud Chandler loose against Blackwell, and what's so rough about that, for us?"

Cronin has a private incentive for winning tomorrow. When last seen in competition with the National League, he was losing the 1946 World Series to the Cardinals, managed by his foe of tomorrow, Eddie Dyer. That was a blow to the American League prestige that Cronin is eager to erase.

THE POWER PENDULUM has swung to the National League, it would seem, after 13 years of competition in which it was traditionally National League pitching vs. American League hitting. This year the National League boasts not only Blackwell, but the more dangerous distance swingers, it would seem.

In a year when the American League hitting is off, with Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio having unsensational seasons and Charley Keller out of the game with injuries, the National can put up a powerful slugging front. Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper, Enos Slaughter, Dixie Walker and Harry Walker are a more impressive array than the American League can muster.

The National League, however, has learned not to discount American League power at any time. They need only to flip the calendar back to 1943 at Philadelphia where with Morton Cooper holding a one-run lead, the American League found a home-run hitter in eighth place on its batting order. That was Bobby Doerr who produced a three-run homer and won the game, 5 to 3.

FOR TED WILLIAMS, tomorrow's affair is his third All-Star game and he will probably be dealt with more carefully than any other American League hitter. Williams hasn't failed to do the sensational thing yet, in All-Star competition.

He hit the most historic blow in All-Star history that day in Detroit in 1941 when with two out in the ninth and the American trailing by one run, he clouted a three-run homer to win that ball game. And in the 12-0 victory at Boston last year, he slugged two homers, one off a blooper pitch.

In previous years, the National League managers took the game lightly, making mid-game lineup changes to give all their players a chance at All-Star competition. In contrast, the American League managers played to win. They used to put Jimmy Foxx at third base to capitalize on his hitting power, remember? Well, the National League has finally caught on, at Frick's urging. No more trifling.

Locke Has 68 Against Oliver's 71

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Bobby Locke, playing his shots like a machine clicked a four-under-par 68 today to fashion a three-stroke lead over Ed "Porky" Oliver at the hole playoff for the Tam O'Shanter end of the first round of their 36-$7000 professional title prize.

Some 3000 spectators followed the International Golf Show down around the 6825-yard course, frequently applauding as each performer scored a share of sensational shots.

Locke, the South African seeking his fifth tournament triumph in 10 meets since landing in the United States, fashioned five birdies, and went over par on only one hole in authoring a pair of 34's against par 36—36.

In Rough Only Once

Only once did his tee shots drift into the rough, while Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., who is the Nation's sixth leading money winner with $8490, caught the tall grass on at least five holes in posting 37, 34—71.

In taking a three-stroke lead at the turn, the knickered Johannesburg visitor pulled one of the most amazing recovery shots of the entire tournament on the ninth. His third shot on the 520-yard hole was half buried in a deep sand trap at the side of the green. He blasted out one inch from the cup to match Oliver with par 5.

Locke, who has won $9730 since hitting these shores, picked up three strokes on two successive holes with birdies. He needed only a four-foot tap for a 3 on the seventh while Oliver took a 4. Then he dropepd a 17-foot putt for a deuce on the 245-yard eighth. His opponent was 20 feet over the green and two putted for a 4.

Locke Gains Big Lead

While Oliver was matching par, Locke methodically gained a five-stroke lead with a four-foot birdie putt on the long tenth for a 4, and a three footer for a birdie on the 13th after unleashing another of his consistently accurate iron shot approaches which throughout the round more than compensated for his being out-distanced by Oliver's drives.

The strapping 215-pound Oliver gained on the 15th with a birdie 4 after taking two pokes from the rough and holing a 20-foot putt.

Oliver blew a chance to gain on the 215-yard sixteenth by missing a 4½-foot putt as each made par 3s. But the chubby gallery favorite shaved Locke's advantage back to three strokes on the eighteenth by planting his approach two feet off the flag and ramming it down for a birdie 3.

Both required 30 putts for their first round.

Locke, who has made five straight sub-par trips in the tournament, will face Oliver in the closing 18 holes tomorrow starting at 2 p. m. (CDT).

Heart Attack Fatal To Hurler During Tilt

Benton, Wis., July 7 (AP).—Richard McCrea, 28, New Diggings, died of a heart attack yesterday while pitching for the Benton team in a Pecatonica Valley League baseball game. After making an eighth-inning pitch, McCrea toppled forward on the mound and died instantly.

Chicago, Ill., July 7 (INS).—Thompson (Mickey) Livingston, 32-year-old catching veteran of six years in the major leagues, went from the Chicago Cubs to the New York Giants tonight for the $10,000 waiver price.

2 Share Lead In Maryland Women's Golf

Match Play Starts At Kenwood Today

Mrs. Betty Meckley of Kenwood, and Miss Mary Ann Downey of the Baltimore Country Club, posted 81s to tie for medal honors as the twenty-sixth annual Maryland State Women's Golf championship tournament began yesterday at Kenwood Country Club.

Forty-four qualified for the five-day tourney which continues from today through Friday with match play in three flights. Mrs. Meckley and Miss Downey, who won the Baltimore Women's Golf Association championship in 1946, will be paired in an 18-hole playoff later in the week for medal laurels.

Miss Downey is paired today with Mrs. Walter R. Stokes of Manor, in what may develop into the best match of the tourney. Mrs. Stokes, who fired an 84 yesterday, is trying to complete a sweep of the three major area women's titles involving area golfers. Mrs. Stokes has already captured the District and Middle Atlantic crowns.

Mrs. Meckley, the only women who has already made the clean sweep of the three tourneys in one year, is matched with Mrs. C. E. Richards of the Country Club of Maryland, who posted an 84 yesterday. Mrs. Meckley won the three big championships during the 1935-36 season.

Defending champion, Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore's Woodholme Club, posted an 83 yesterday.

Griffith Is Not Planning Change In Nat Manager

Chicago, July 7.—"Nothing to it."

That was Clark Griffith's comment today on a report that Ossie Bluege would be replaced as manager of the Washington Club by Catcher Rick Ferrell.

"I'm not going to change managers. I never do in mid-season," said Griffith. "This talk of a new manager is just a consequence of our six-game losing streak, and I haven't given a thought to making a change."

The 77-year-old president of the Nats acknowledged that Bluege's contract expires at the end of this season, but declared "if I make any change in managers it won't happen until the season ends. Ferrell hasn't entered into my plans anyway."—Povich.

Hollywood Outdoes Itself—Makes Offer for Bob Feller

Chicago, July 6 (U.P.).—Bob Cobb, vice president of the Hollywood baseball club in the Pacific Coast League, offered to buy Bob Feller from Cleveland today in an effort to strengthen his league's appeal for major league status.

Cobb, here with four other officials of his circuit, made his offer too Bill Veeck, co-owner of the Indians.

"We're willing to buy him and to pay him the same salary you're paying him," he told Veeck, "if we're safeguarded against the draft for from three to five years."

Veeck told Cobb and his associates, that he had no objections to a third major league "or even a fourth or fifth."

He asked, however, whether they were willing to pay the same salaries that the National and American Leagues pay and whether the Pacific Coast League could continue to operate on a major league basis.

2 Baltimore Golfers Pace Publinx Play

Two Baltimoreans named Bill paced the field of 41 golfers in the 36-hole Public Links Sectional qualifying round yesterday at the East Potomac Golf Course with scores of 144.

Bill Collins, 18-year-old former Marine, shot a 69—75—144, while Bill Cole, 35, a salesman, went around the wind-swept layout in 72—72—144.

The other two qualifying positions were captured by a pair of Washington golfers, Andy Oliveri, a veteran of five public links tournaments, who shot a pair of 74's for 148 and Earl Marcy, 43-year-old cement mixer operator, with 76—73—149.

Johnny Bowers, a correction officer at the National Training School, suffered a bitter disappointment, when the committee disqualified him after he had finished third with a 72—75—147.

Philly Players Slightly Hurt in Train Collision

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Three members of the Philadelphia National League team en route to the major league All-Star baseball game here tomorrow were slightly injured late today in a train collision.

Pitcher Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, Manager Ben Chapman and his wife, and Second Baseman Emil Verban, all of the Phillies, were shaken up when the Baltimore & Ohio "Shenandoah" stremliner collided with a switch engine near Chicago's Grand Central station.

The players said later they felt "ok" and would be able to play, according to a railroad spokesman. Mrs. Chapman suffered a bruised head and was taken to a hospital for a check-up.

Maddox New Bullis Coach

John L. Maddox, former football and lacrosse star at Duke and Rutgers, yesterday was signed as head football coach at Bullis Prep, succeeding Jim Castiglia, who resigned after serving in that capacity for one year.

Maddox quit as football, baseball and basketball coach at Valley Forge, Pa., Military Academy, a job he had held for five years, to accept the post at the Silver Spring school. Assisting Maddox with his football chores will be Charlie Guy, former Navy athlete, who was appointed athletic director at Bullis thre months ago.

Lon Shine, end on Catholic University's Orange Bowl football team in 1940, was also signed as assistant football coach yesterday. Shine entered the Marines in 1941 as a private and was honorably discharged in 1946 as a captain.

The 1947 Bullis team will play an eight-game schedule, four taking place for the first time, on the new Bullis field.

The schedule: September 28—Perkiomen, Pa., Prep, home; October 3—Allentown, Pa., High, there; 11—Georgetown University Freshmen, home; 18—La Salle Military Academy of Oakdale, Long Island, home; 24—Army Plebes at West Point; November 1—Fork Union, Va., there; November 8—Open; November 13—Valley Forge, Pa., Military Academy, home; November 22—Navy Plebes at Annapolis.

Bub Worsham Leads Field in Junior Trials

Marvin (Bubby) Worsham, winner of The Post Schoolboy Golf tournament six weeks ago, scored a four-over-par 74 yesterday at Manor to lead six qualifiers into the Junior National Championship which takes place at Mt. Hawley Country Club in Peoria, Ill., on July 29-August 2.

The five other qualifiers were Stan Mouser and Eugene Wolfe with 75s, Bob Wolfe with 78 and Eddie Reagh and Jim Frizzell with 79s.

Worsham fired a sparkling 34 over the first nine, but slumped to a 40 on the back course when his putting went haywire.

Mouser, a teammate of Worsham on the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High team, would have gained medal honors but for a bad break. The 16-year-old checked in with a 73, but was penalized two strokes when he revealed that his caddie had twice kicked his ball accidentally.

Reagh has won the D. C. Junior championship for the past two years. He's a graduate of Coolidge High, and will attend Kiski Prep in Pittsburgh next semester. Bob Wolfe, fourth among the qualifiers, failed to make the B-C. C. team last year. Eighteen-year-old Frizzell is a student at Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania.

Junior Scores

Blackwell, Chandler Will Start

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 7.—On its fourteenth birthday, the major league All-Star game returns tomorrow to the city where it was created, with American League ruling a slight 6-5 favorite to renew its superiority over the National League's best.

Forty-three thousand fans—representative of the millions who picked the two teams by popular ballot—will jam Wrigley Field for the contest which pits the World Series Managers of 1946—Eddie Dyer and Joe Cronin—in the managerial roles with the top stars of their respective leagues at their call.

To the pitching mound at the outset will go Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, 38-year-old veteran of the Yankees, who was chosen this morning by Cronin as his opening pitcher, limited to three innings duty.

Lanky Ewell Dominant Figure

But dominating the pre-game pitching scene is Cincinnati's long-limbed Ewell Blackwell, top sensation of the 1947 season, who, as expected, was Eddie Dyer's starting choice.

Chandler has won nine games thus far, with four defeats, and completed all of his last 13 starts, but his record pales before the 14-2 of Blackwell, who was the hero of one no-hitter and was only two putouts away from a second during June.

It was with some contempt for the lefthanded hitting power in the National League lineup that Cronin named the righthanded Chandler. He is expected to bring out Southpaw Hal Newhouser for the second bracket of three innings, however.

Masterson May Get In

Cronin's third pitcher could be Walter Masterson, of the Nats. He has at his call Rookie Frank Shea, of the Yankees, the league's leading hurler, but he may be reluctant to use two Yankee pitchers in the midst of the pennant race.

For the first time since the game was born in 1933, the balance of hitting power would seem to be with the National Leaguers, going in. They will present Johnny Mize, of the Giants, at first base, and his 24 home runs dwarf the efforts of the American home run leaders.

Backing Mize will be Walker Cooper, slugging catcher of the Giants, Dixie Walker, of the Dodgers, Harry Walker, of the Phillies, and Whitey Kurowski, of the Cardinals.

Following Blackwell's appearance, Dyer is expected to call on Warren Spahn, of the Braves, but his third pitcher is as yet uncertain.

Spence Sub for DiMag

Cronin's American League lineup will contain Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Lou Boudreau, as its top batting threats. The infield features the Cleveland pair of Boudreau and Gordon at second base, and George Kell, Detroit, undisputedly the best of the league's third basemen.

Washington, one of the more heavier-represented clubs on the American League squad, will have only one starter—Rightfielder Buddy Lewis, who led the fans' balloting for the spot. But Centerfielder Stan Spence, second to Joe DiMaggio, is also expected to see action. Early Wynn, a late replacement for the ailing Bob Feller, may not be called on.

'Extra' Money Out If May Signs PGA Pact

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—The Professional Golfers Association of American today reminded George S. May, colorful president of the Tam O' Shanter Country Club, that he could avoid confusion over the paying of "appearance money" in his future tournaments if he signed a PGA contract.

George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, PGA tournament committee chairman, said after a closed meeting of PGA officials that if May held his Tam O' Shanter meet "under PGA regulations, no requests for appearance money could have been made."

This would have avoided such a situation that occurred when such players as Lew Worsham, of Washington (1947 National Open Champion) Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret (leading money winners) were absent from the field, Schneiter said.

These three were reported to have passed up the Tam meet when May gave a substantial "guarantee" to South African Bobby Locke to complete.

Before the tournament started last week, Worsham said he would not enter unless may "gives me a substantial guarantee."

Kapilow-Hursey Winner to Meet Topflight Foe Here

Promoter Goldie Ahearn last night announced that the winner of the 10-round boxing feature involving Smuggy Hursey and Danny Kapilow at Griffith Stadium next Monday night will meet an "outstanding fighter" at the ball park on Monday night, August 24.

Al Weill, manager of Kapilow, already has confirmed this date while Mel Stevenson, manager of Hursey, last night flatly stated that Smuggy will be prepared to box any opponent selected for him by Ahearn.

Goldie said that he will make every effort to bring in Rocky Graziano on that date, and that Irving Cohen, manager of Graziano, was willing to have him appear here after the Zale bout July 16 in Chicago.

Should Graziano not be available, Ahearn hopes to match the Hursey-Kapilow winner with Charlie Fusari, Pete Mead or Tony Janiro.

John Bowers Learns He Can't Caddie at 30 and Be Amateur

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Johnny Bowers was the saddest golfer in Washington after his fine 72, 75—147 score was ruled void by the tournament committee at yesterday's Public Links sectional qualifying round at East Patomac.

He would have placed third and gained one of the qualifying berths, were it not for the fact that Johnny caddied for Professional Dutch Harrison in the recent National Capital Open.

Acting as a caddy for Harrison and accepting pay for his services made Johnny, 30, a pro in the eyes of the United States Golf Association.

Never having caddied before, Johnny said he didn't know about the USGA rule forbidding amateur golfers to caddy for money when they are over 18.

Bill Cole, one of the co-medalists, was a fine golfer before the war, but was seriously wounded in action while serving with the tank corps in Germany. A little more than a year ago Cole could hardly walk, much less swing a club.

But his determination to play golf again conquered his phisical handicaps and once again he is shooting first rate golf. Bill says he is just a weekend player, as his job with the Arrow Oil Co., of Baltimore, takes up most of his time. . .

Bill Collins, whose first 18-hole score of 69 was the only sub-par round of the day, is only 18 years old. Discharged from the Marine Corps three weeks ago, his best previous golfing performance was in 1945, when at the age of 16, he was runner-up in the Baltimore Open.

Andy Olivieri, one of the four qualifiers, will be making his sixth trip to the Public Links Tournament. He has qualified twice in the tournament proper. . . Earl Marcy, the oldest qualifier at 43, played in last year's tournament at Denver.

Biff Jones to Box On Zale-Rocky Card

Herbie (Biff) Jones, Washington's up-and-coming lightweight, boxes Al Gomez of Chicago, in the six-round semi-windup on the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano middleweight title bout in Chicago July 16.

Jones, idle since his two-round kayo of Lew Hanbury at Griffith Stadium last month, will probably appear in Washington again August 4 against Johnny Bratton, the hot-stuff Chicago Negro lightweight contender.

Browns Hosts To '48 Game

Chicago, July 7 (U.P.).—Major league club owners voted today to assig nthe 1948 All-Star game to the St. Louis Browns, who will be hosts to the annual classic for the first time.

Setting the site fo rthe game was the only major action taken by the club-owners in their joint league meetings which preceded the fourteenth annual All-Star game at Wrigley Field.

The most important matter brought before the magnates, recognition of the Pacific Coast League as a third major league, was referred to the executive council headed by Commissioner Happy Chandler. Action was tabled until the December meeting.

This Claxton Boy on Way To Big Show

ED CLAXTON

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

FANS WHO GO OUT to Griffith Stadium on July 18 to see the Brooklyn-Washington Boys Club All-Star baseball game will get a look at a boy for whom veteran observers predict big league stardom some day.

He'll be the youngest player on the field, but Coach Joe Branzell will start 15-year old Ed Claxton at third base without any misgivings.

Always big for his age, the ninth-grade student at Paul Junior High has been playing in the company of 17 and 18-year olds since he was 13. He has been 6 feet tall for two years, and now weighs 165 pounds.

The high schools have been making a fuss over Ed since last year when he played regularly at third and in the outfield for the Government Printing Office American Legion championship team for 17-year olds.

Every member of the Interhigh championship Coolidge team played for G. P. O. but Ed, not yet in high-school was able to gain a regular spot, and hit .340.

Ed lives in the Brightwood section of town adjacent to Coolidge, but has decided to go to Gonzaga, continuing his ninth-grade education there. His brother, Dick, played first base for Gonzaga, and made sure that Ed will go to his alma mater.

ED IS PLAYING on three sandlot teams, and is near the top in the hitting department in all three leagues: For GPO in the 17-and-under American Legion loop, his average is .355. For GPO, in the 19-and-under Junior City League, he is belting .400. And for Federal Storage Co. in the Boys Club of Washington, Western Division League, he is batting an even .500.

He hits to all fields, has a good arm, and is one of the speediest men on the sandlots.

His greatest hitting performance came a week ago when he clouted the offerings of 18-year-old Bobby Jones, All-High at McKinley Tech, for two home runs and two singles.

A righthanded batter and thrower, he has played every position on the field this year including pitching. He has won six games and lost two with the aid of a good fast ball and steady control.

A quiet thoughtful fellow, young Claxton has his future already carefully planned. After he graduates from Gonzaga, he hopes to enter Georgetown University. And after that? "The big leagues of course, if I can make it," says Ed.

Shirey Beats Out Nertney In Duel

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 7. Bob Shirey, a Pennsylvania boy who began his riding career at this meeting, piloted four winners on the Monday program.

He was tied with Jockey Willie Nertney for honors by winning the seventh race and then came back to take the eighth with J. H. Whiteley's Flying John, a $6.40 favorite.

Nertney, a Baltimorean, carried his successes into the Carter Purse, the day's feature, winning with E. R. Hansen's Grey Del. Second in the field of six was Mrs. Arthur White's Nobby, with A. S. Moore's Balloon third.

Track Muddy

Grey Del, a winner on the Maryland milers this year, was a $4.60 favorite and was clocked in 1:23 4/5 for the six and one-half furlongs over a track that became muddy after intermittent rain.

Grey Del assumed command early and just could not be taken off the top. Nobby and Balloon, as well as Lady Romery, made moves, but the black colt had too much push for his rivals.

Both Nertney and Shirey had a hand in the $97.60 pay-off on the Daily Double. Nertney won the first with W. C. Ensor's Betty Twig, a $21.60 shot, while Shirey booted P. O. Bowman's The Huntress home ahead of the pack in the second at $6.60.

Cast Out Pays $10.40

Shirey took the third event with Cast Out, owned by W. J. Peach, jr. The $10.40 shot lead virtually all the way and had E. Rinaldi's Don Liston and J. K. Wankoop's New Chum closest at the end.

Nertney took the fourth with the Oak Hill Farm's Grey Prince in a photo finish at an $8.40 mutuel. Shirey completed his four-bagger for the day aboard R. H. Herring's Wage Signal which paid $8.20.

Laurel Track Directors Vote $200,000 for Improvements

Baltimore, Md., July 7.—The Directors of the Laurel Race Course today approved the expenditures of approximately $200,000 for refurbish and repair the extensive racing plant. This was made known by Harry A. Parr, third president of Laurel, who presided over a directors meeting attended by Bruce Wing, Vice President John O. Needles, secretary and treasurer, Rigan McKinney and Breckinridge Long.

Parr also revealed that Charles J. McLennan was appointed racing secretary and J. Gilbert Haus, assistant racing secretary and in charge of steeplechase racing. McLennan is one of the best known racing officials in America, serving in a similar capacity at Pimlico, Hialeah, Havre de Grace, Garden State and Atlantic City. Haus is racing secretary at Delaware Park, timonium and secretary for steeplechase racing at Pimlico. In addition he has served in various officials capacities at numerous race tracks throughout the country.

In announcing the immediate expenditure of almost $200,000 at Laurel, Parr pointed out that most of this money would be spent in the stable area.

It was found that immediate attention must be given to the stable area. As a result Laurel is spending $110,000 on roadways and drainage in the stable area, $30,000 on the surfacing of the parking areas most frequently used, $18,000 on painting of the barns, portions of the grandstand, the paddock and the jockey and administration building. Another $18,000 will be spent on manure pits for the stable area, $6000 for a watering truck and $5000 for a new surface to the main floor under the grandstand, $9,500 has been approved for repairs to stable roofing.

All work contemplated is within the rules of the civilian production administration governing race tracks properties.

Tandberg Gets Brushoff as Title Contender

150 Playgrounds Register Students in Tennis Clinics

So much interest has been shown in tennis clinics sponsored by the Recreation Department and The Post that registration may be made at any playground in the District.

Originally it was planned to enroll students at 10 selected locations in the District but it was decided yesterday to register players at all of the Recreation Department's 150 playgrounds.

This will make it convenient for persons interested in the schools to enroll at playgrounds near their homes, saving considerable travel in many instances.

All you have to do is stop in at your nearest playground any time between 9 a. m. and 8 p. m., today, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, and sign up.

When you register the recreation official in charge will assign you to one of the 19 locations where clinics in fundamental play will be conducted July 12, 19 and 26 and August 9.

If you are unable to enroll before Saturday's opening clinics you may register that day, but it will be to your advantage to sign up before then.

Balls and racquets will be supplied by The Post, so all you actually need in order to participate is the desire to learn to play better tennis. Outstanding players will serve as instructors.

Mixed Doubles Finals Reset

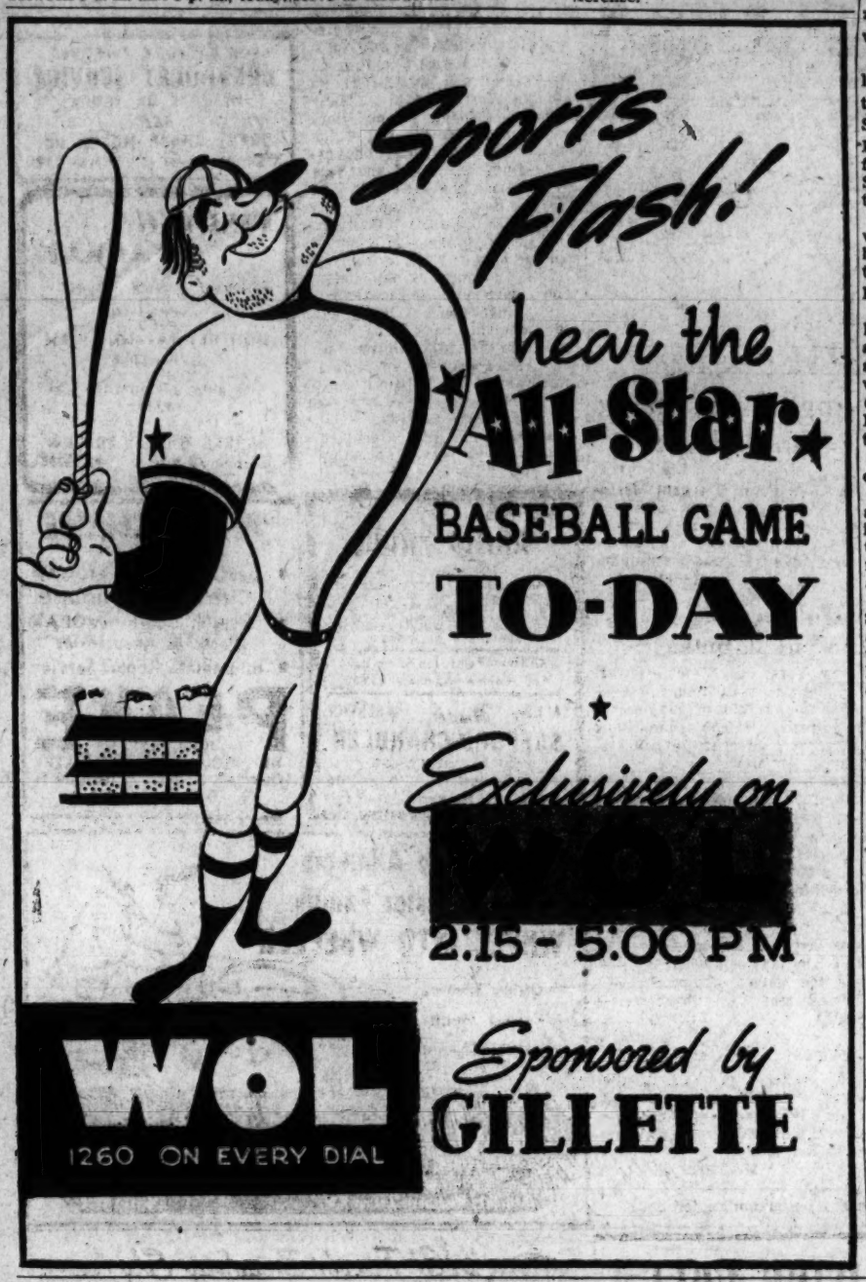
Mixed doubles finals in the District tennis championships will be played off Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. at the Kenwood Country Club.

Presentation of trophies will take place at 6:30 o'clock.

Don Leavens and Miss Libby Prince were leading Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Smith by one set, 7—5, when rain Sunday interrupted play and caused a postponement until Wednesday.

Grid Yanks Get Back

Berea, Ohio, July 7 (U.P.).—Fred Cardinal, Baldwin-Wallace backfield ace, has signed a pro football contract with the New York Yankees of the All-American Conference.



Charles-Ray Winner May Fight Louis

New York, July 7 (AP).—Jacobs Beach climbed off the merry-go-round long enough today to pass up both Ollie Tandberg and Joe Baksi as challengers for Joe Louis, and to start working, instead, on a title bout for the winner of Ezzard Charles' coming clambake with Elmer (The Violent) Ray.

The complete switch was outlined by Sol Strauss, acting director for the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, even while the Bash Boulevardiers were still spinning from the victory the swatting Swede chalked up over Baski yesterday in Stockholm.

Everyone had thought Baski would cake-walk in and then come home to tangle with Louis in September.

Baksi's Judgment Questioned

The fact that Tandberg figured he earned no better than a draw, and that ringsiders generally were saying it was too bad the officials were suffering from poor vision, didn't change the opinion that Baksi wasn't exactly a genius in taking on this bout.

The surprise package created caused the following shifts:

1. A return match between Ollie and Pennsylvania Joe August 22 in Madison Square Garden, just to see if yesterday's rabbit really did pop out of the hat, and will to stay out.

2. A September 19 Yankee Stadium title bout between Louis and the winner of the July 25 tussle here between long-armed Ezzard Charles, a light-heavy out of Cincinnati, and Elmer (The Violent) Ray, from Florida by way of Minneapolis, provided Strauss insisted, the winner turns the trick "decisively."

Louis Has Big Say

The heavyweight title situation is a bit more delicate, so Sol will wait until Louis hits town July 15 to talk over the whole situation, and will propose the Charles-Ray winner to the head man then. It's doubtful if Louis, who has his big say in the matter, will want to take on a challenger who doesn't figure to make any large splashes in the gate receipts department.

"A Louis vs. Charles or Ray Bout," he explained, "would not draw what Baksi and Louis would have drawn. But the gate should be sufficient to warrant Joe's defending his title. And it seems the most logical match now."

Someone pointed out that a Tandberg-Louis party might not be so bad because there are 50,000 Swedish-Americans in New York and wasn't Tommy Farr once imported and built into a title challenger?

Grass Shrimp Bait Lures 300 Fish

By Jack Bell

When Capt. Wallace Shope, who was on a fishing "vacation" with us, docked his boat, the "Stella," to W. T. Shorter's pier at Benedict, Md., late Saturday night, our combined catch of more than 300 striped bass, weakfish and few croakers caught Friday and Saturday created quite a lot of excitement and speculation among fishing guides at that famous croaker (hardhead) fishing port.

Bottom fishing for croakers by both commercial men and rowboat fishermen has always been the mainstay in the Benedict area. However, with a shortage of croakers and evidence that striped bass (rockfish) and other fish can be attracted to a baited hoofi by using live grass shrimp to chum the fish near an anchored boat, fishing guides there are going to make a real try for stripers.

Striped bass have been seen recently breaking in the Patuxent over many bars in the vicinity of Benedict.

There is every possibility that the fish can and will be caught by chumming with live grass shrimp. Certainly there is a bountiful supply of shrimp in the extensive grass beds along the shores of Swan and Indian Creeks near Benedict. It may be soon possible for rowboat fishermen to obtain the bait at Benedict, opening up a new sport there on the Patuxent.

With the capture of the first white marlin at Ocean City, Md., by Lawrence J. Hamlin, Parsonburg, Md., the lid is off the famous "Jack Spot." Last year the first marlin was caught at the well known white marlin fishing center, by Gibson L. Wright, Washington sportsman.

Fish are not biting any too well at Cape Charles, Va., but it is evident that Cobia are showing up. A. F. Willinsky of College Park, Md., it is reported caught a 44 pound tarpon off Cape Charles. Tarpon is a fish rarely seen so far North.

Joe Massoletti, New York sportsfisherman with a lot of time is going to spend a month off Hatteras, N. C., on his cruiser the "Coco." Massoletti landed a tarpon off the coast last year, and he is convinced there are many to be caught there. Frequently tarpon are caught at Hatteras in nets from June to September.

Horse Stands for 46 Hours On 6850-Mile Plane Journey

New York, July 7 (AP).—The foreign threats in the July 19 $100,000 Empire City International Gold Cup race checked in today after the longest flight ever made by a race horse and those aboard reported it really wasn't much of a ride except:

Endeavour, the Argentine champion, was so fractious at first he tried to kick the side of the plane out, actually did kick a strip of metal loose shortly after boarding at Buenos Aires and then, rearing in his specially-built stall, hit his head against the side of the ship so hard he skinned a stretch over his eye.

Ensueno, the Brazilian champ, had to be loaded in pitch-darkness at a Zeppelin base at Santa Cruz because the shadows thrown by the only available illumination—a spotlight at the top of a hangar and some automobile headlights—scared him so he kicked up a fuss, and they had to be blacked out.

"We tried to lead him, and coax him and shove him, but he wouldn't have any of it," explained Frank Long of Newton, Ill., the only member of the Pan American crew to make the entire two-day trip.

"Why, we even tried to have a boy ride him up the ramp onto the plane, but decided against it, because the boy might have been killed going into the side of the ship, and the horse might have kept right on going through the other side. Then we turned out the lights and he made it easily."

Otherwise, there was no excitement during the 6850-mile trip for the South Americans who will tangle with such as Assault and Stymie for the big pot a week from Saturday at Belmont.

The horses were tired from their long stand. Ensueno was on his feet for the entire 46 hours, 6 minutes from Buenos Aires, and Trainer Alfonso Salvati explained he's not the kind of horse who sleeps standing up too well.

New Fishing 'Tackle' Gets 'Em by Tail

Fort Erie, Ontario, July 7 (AP). Witnesses say Robert H. Carlson, 13, of Buffalo, N. Y., dived in after a fish had broken the surface of the water here, grabbed it by the tail and came up with a 7¼-pound, 30-inch pike. About 50 persons were there.

Blues Sell Pitcher

Kansas City, July 7 (AP).—The Kansas City baseball club announce today Pitcher Charles Haag has been sold conditionally to Newark of the International League.

NOTICE OF CHANGEOVER TO Natural Gas TO ALL CUSTOMERS IN SECTION 3

. . . AS SHOWN ON THIS MAP

The section to be converted to natural gas July 16 through August 14 is designated as Section 3 and has been divided into 26 districts numbered 81 through 106.

The Schedule for Section 3 is:

DICTRICTS	SCHEDULE
81 through 84	July 16 through July 19
85 through 90	July 21 through July 26
91 through 96	July 28 through August 2
97 through 102	August 4 through August 9
103 through 106,	August 11 through August 14

This map used through the courtesy of the D. C. Department of Highways and Public Roads Administration.

The schedule shown above is an estimate based on a normal work week of Monday through Saturday. Every effort will be made to complete the districts within the period shown on the schedule. In some instances it may become necessary to vary the schedule by a few days. However, you will be individually notified approximately one week and then again about two days prior to the actual changeover of the gas appliances in your home. In each notice you will be furnished with complete instructions for the operation of your gas appliances during the changeover period. For additional information call REpublic 4500.

For the purpose of conversion to natural gas the city has been divided into four sections. Portrayed here is Section 3. A map showing Section 4, the last and final section to be converted, will appear in the newspapers well in advance of the changeover in that section.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

The three-man home rule subcommittee of the House District Committee yesterday leaped to the defense of Dr. George B. Galloway, an authority on Government, who is its acting staff director.

Kluttz

A staff member of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, Galloway is one of several Library employes who were criticized in secret hearings of the legislative subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. Chairman Noble Johnson of that subcommittee said Galloway had made "sarcastic" remarks about members of Congress in his book, "Congress at the Crossroads."

The Johnson attack on the Library employes is said to have stemmed from a discredited, repudiated, and unofficial report made last December to the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Referring to the story of the Johnson grilling of Library officials that appeared in this column on Sunday, Chairman James C. Auchincloss of the home rule group said:

"I have been closely associated with Dr. Galloway for the past three or four months. There is no one in my acquaintance of greater loyalty and greater ability than Dr. Galloway. As far as his loyalty to the United States is concerned—it's better than mine and mine's damn good."

He was followed by Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) who described Galloway as an "unusually fine character with great ability." Deane said he has read Galloway's book, and that it was well-written and in good taste.

The third subcommittee member, Representative John J. Allen (D., Calif.) remarked that everything he knew bore out what his two colleagues had said about Galloway.

Meantime, it was learned that several other members of Congress plan to speak out in defense of the Library employes. As one member said: "The charges were so silly and so ridiculous that the story in The Post was hard to believe." He added that if the record bore out the story that he would be "shocked."

All I can say is this—the member had better brace himself for a shock.

RETIREMENT: The Jones bill was approved yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate. It would permit any employe with less than 10 years of service to withdraw his retirement contributions, plus 4 per cent interest, on leaving the Federal service.

No employe may now withdraw money from the retirement system if he has had five or more years of service

The Jones bill would be retroactive to January 24, 1942, the day the retirement system was amended and the five-year provision became law. Speedy action is promised on the bill in the Senate.

ACTION: The House passed and sent to the White House a bill to create an additional Assistant Secretary of Commerce. The job will go to David K. E. Bruce who will handle foreign and domestic commerce. Bruce is now a special assistant to Secretary Harriman . . . COAST GUARD: The House also approved the bill for the integration of personnel of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation with the Coast Guard . . . GOLD STAR: However, a bill to give veterans preference to widowed mothers of boys who were killed during the war failed to pass. Representative Buck (R., N. Y.) objected, saying the bill was opposed by Civil Service. Civil Service was, but is not now, opposed to the bill.

RETIREMENT: The House Rules Committee today will take up the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill. The worthy bill must get by this group or it'll be a dead duck for this session of Congress.

WAR: Its officials have urged the Senate Appropriations Committee for additional funds to retain 42,071 employes of whom 3548 would be in this city. The House budget for the department would require it to cut out about 76,000 jobs.

EMPLOYMENT: This city had 212,616 Federal workers here on May. 31, a drop of 2594 during the month, and a slump of more than 75,000 from the wartime high of 287,000.

However, the over-all decrease was only 15,666 during the month to bring total employment in this and foreign countries to 2,212,000. The wartime high was 3,700,000.

The next two Civil Service reports—for June and July—are expected to disclose the release of more than 100,000 employes.

Syria Holds Election, First in Three Years

Damascus, Syria, July 7 (AP).—Syria's first general election since the end of the French mandate and the withdrawal of French forces in 1944 began today and will continue through Tuesday, with all indications of victory for Government-sponsored candidates.

The election is to choose 138 members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Candidates Face Inquiry In Arlington

An undetermined number of candidates for the Arlington County, Va., Democratic committee, were officially questioned last night on their qualifications for candidacy.

An also undetermined number of candidates refused to appear at the closed session for varying reasons. One expressed reason was that the session was "an inquisition to purge Progressive Democrats from the county slate."

56 Are Registered

Fifty-six candidates, an all-time record number, are registered as committee candidates. Many of that number received registered mail summons to testify under oath and before public stenographer on their qualifications before a special subcommittee of incumbent committee members.

Harry Grant, county committee chairman and a member of the five-member subcommittee selected to quiz the candidates, declined last night to discuss proceedings behind the closed door of committee chambers in the Rucker Bldg., 3179 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

Called "Nothing Unusual"

"There is nothing unusual about this," Grant told a Post reporter. "It's just a routine matter."

Grant stressed the fact that the subcommitee was no auhorized to take any action "but to ask questions and receive answers." The county committee, he said, will later "take any action it deems necessary."

He said that in years past it has been the custom of the committee to investigate qualifications of candidaes. Recent preliminary investigations, he said, revealed that at least one candidate was not a registered voter, several has not paid poll taxes, and a number "but recently moved into the county."

Donald Smith Begins Term In Curley Case

Donald Wakefield Smith, former National Labor Relations Board member, surrendered himself yesterday and began serving a four to 12 month sentence for mail fraud conspiracy.

Smith was convicted together with Mayor James M. Curley of Boston of complicity in the Engineers Group, Inc., a war broker firm here.

Last minute attempts of Smith's attorney to get Smith probation were denied by Justice James M. Proctor. Smith contended that he never profited from the enterprise and that it was due to his efforts that it was disolved and the case brought to trial.

He was out on bond pending reviews since early last year when a District Court jury convicted him, now both in Federal prison.

Smith, in a public statement protested his sentence. He said:

"The consciousness of innocence can never be destroyed. An unimpeachable lifetime of honesty, integrity and fair dealing can not be wiped out by justice miscarried.

"When the Government prosecutor and the principal Government witnesses declared that my conviction was unjust, there is no need for me to further reiterate my innocence.

"It is further demonstrated from the record. When that record is finally examined by the Chief Magistrate of this Nation, my vindication will be complete and unqualified.

"Those friends, clients and acquaintances who have assured me of their confidenee may be certain that it is not misplaced. My conscience is clear. It has never been otherwise."

Desperate for a place to sleep, a former Marine couple, with three babies and a collie dog, tried to settle down in a shelter half-tent they raised in Lafayette Park last night. Three Park policemen immediately converged on the family to tell them they could not stay.

Head of the homeless family was Thomas J. Ahearn, 26, a butcher for a Safeway Store in Arlington. He told the officers he had been unable to find a home since his dissharge in April, except for an Arlington house sold out from under them yesterday after a four-week stay.

Ahearn related his plight as Mrs. Ahearn, 27, a former Marine herself, clutched 3-month-old Frederick in her arms. Thomas, jr., 3, and Timothy, 20 months, played on the grass oblivious to the crowd which formed.

38 Months Overseas

The ex-staff sergeant, who has had 38 months of overseas service, is from Connecticut, but his wife lived in Arlington and at 923 22nd st. nw. before the war.

He had thought of returning to his home State, he saih, but his father, who lives in Waterbury, wrote that he was being evicted himself and could not provide a home for him. His father is a former Marine officer, Ahearn said.

Pay from his job and subsistence for on-the-job training give him enough income to pay $50 or $60 a month for rent, Ahearn declared, but landlords will not take the children, he explained.

"We have slept in the Union Station,in bus terminals and in other parks here," said Mrs. Ahearn, who described how she used a thermos bottle and hot water from restaurants for mixing the babies' formulas.

Child Became Ill

Ahear nsaid one of the babies almost had pneumonia from sleeping out before they found their temporary home in Arlington.

Mrs. Ahearn broke down as the policemen talked with her husband. Park Police Sergt. George R. Shibley called an Emergency Hospital ambulance to provide treatment for shock.

Sergt. Shibley, aided by Pvts. Paul Padwin and Lee Dodd, bundled the family, their dog, Queenie, and their belongings—a baby carriage, food and suitcases—into two Park Police cars. At headquarters a temporary resting place was arranged at Washington Tourist Camp.

Homes for Totally Disabled Soldiers Win Approval

By The Associated Press

Senator McCarthy (R.,Wis) said yesterday the Senate Banking Committee had unanimously approved a bill to provide homes for veterans of World War I and II who are totally and permanently disabled wheel chair cases.

The Government would pay one-half the cost of the homes, which would have ramps instead of stairways, specialy designed bathrooms, doors wider than normal, and special exercise rooms.

McCarthy said the cost of caring for such cases is between $6000 and $900 a year each, and added that the construction of homes would save the Government money as well as give the disabled veterans a semblance of normal living conditions.

Senator Robertson (R., Wyo.) joined McCarthy in sponsoring the measure.

Don Cossack Chorus To be Heard Tonight

Washington's concert by the Don Cossack chorus and dancers with the National Symphony at the Watergate, twice postponed because of rain, will be held tonight in combination with the regularly scheduled Tuesday program.

The entire Don Cossack program will be given. In addition, violin virtuoso Jan Tomasow will play the "Tschaikowsky Concetto." Tickets held for either Sunday's or tonight's program will be honored.

Colmar Manor Mayor Sure Of Reelection

Torvestad Unopposed For 7th Term as Voters Cast Ballots Today

Colmar Manor, Md., citizens are expected to return Mayor John N. Torvestad to office today for his seventh consecutive 2-year term.

Torvestad

Mayor Torvestad is unopposed in the election, to be held in the Town Hall from noon to 9 p. m. Before being elected mayor he was a member of the town council for four years.

Also without opposition is Councilman Andrew C. Tackitt in the third ward. A write-in vote will be needed to decide the first ward council seat, because no candidates filed before the June 22 deadline. Incumbent Councilman Joseph Terenyi has said he will serve again if elected.

Two councilmen, Robert V. Yost, second ward, and Harry W. Hill, fourth ward, have another year to serve and are not included in today's balloting.

Mayor Torvestad, long a bitter opponent of the numerous taverns and package liquor shops that line Baltimore blvd., Colmar Manor's main thoroughfare, was the unsuccessful Republican nominee for Prince Georges County State's Attorney in last November's county elections.

Beauty Contest Entry Deadline Set Tonight

Applications for entry into the annual "Mis Greater Washington" contest must be postmarked not later than midnight tonight.

Ben Strouse, general manager of WWDC which conducts the contest, said yesterday that first eliminations are scheduled for July 15, at WWDC, when 27 contestants will be selected for semi-finals. Elimination contests will be held at the Atlas theater on July 18, the Naylor theater on July 25, and the Apex on August 1. Date for the finals has not been set.

Teacher Pay Bill Signed By Truman

Annual Increase Of $150 Effective July 1; 2 Salary Groups Planned

President Truman yesterday signed the Washington school pay increase bill giving most teachers an annual boost of $150.

The increased pay scales are dated to start July 1.

Besides the pay increase the bill sets up these two main salary groups:

Teachers without a master's degree, salares from $2500 to $4000 a year.

One group of about 30 teachers, previously drawing extra pay for a "superior" rating, are frozen at $4150 under the bill.

One effect of the new salary schedules is to give elementary school teachers extra pay for having a master's degree. This benefit had been denied grade school teachers under the old law.

Truman Asks $181,000 For Howard University

President Truman also asked Congress to appropriate an extra $181,000 for the current fiscal year to bring Howard University salaries into line with new District teaching salaries.

$100,000 Tax Liens Placed On Car Dealer

The Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday filed notice of $100,000 in tax liens placed against Vollmer H. Campbell, used car dealer at 50 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The liens are for non-payment of income taxes due between 1941 and 1945.

Campbell refused to comment, referring reporters to Joseph Lyman, his attorney. Lyman said the Government was acting under "mininformation" filed at the Internal Revenue Bureau.

He said, "Campbell never even saw that much money." Lyman insisted it was a routine matter that is now being settled.

The back taxes due, the lien notice says, include $27,049 in 1945; $31,265 in 1944; $31,331 in 1943; $7386 in 1942 and $2966 in 1941. The lien notice filed in the District Court was signed by L. Alfred Chamberlin, deputy collector of internal revenue in the Baltimore office.

North Sea Crash Fatal to Navy Pilot From Annapolis

Lieut. Reginald Clair Lamb, jr., a Navy pilot, son of Reginald C. Lamb, 149 Monticello ave., Annapolis, Md., was killed June 30 when his fighter plane crashed into the North Sea, according to word received here yesterday.

The Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean Naval Command told the Associated Press in London that the crash occurred as Lieutenant Lamb was trying to land his plane on the aircraft carrier Randolph.

Surface vessels and a helicopter made a long search without finding a trace of the pilot or the plane.

Coast Guard Officer Limit of 2250 Voted

The House yesterday passed and send to the Senate a bill authorizing a maximum of 2250 commissioned officers in the Coast Guard.

Time for Rabies Shots

3 Gas Stations Fall in Line To Avert Budding Price War

A one cent a gallon increase in gasoline prices by Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, at two company-operated stations here, averted a possible price war among independent dealers last night.

Standard's two stations, which sold gasoline a penny cheaper than independent stations, announced the increase effective at 12:01 a. m. today.

The corporation's action caused John W. Wrathall, gasoline dealer at Colesville rd. and Georgia ave., Silver Spring, who was the center of the gas dispute, to raise his price one cent also.

Wrathall advertised "D. C. Prices—Esso 20 1/10, tax included" last week. This was the same price charged by company-owned Esso stations, but one cent less than most District independent dealers. He took down the sign last night.

Maryland Tax Starts Skirmish

This step apparently marked finis to the furore which Wrathall created among District and Maryland dealers, who charged that his publicized price was slicing their business to shreds.

The pricing skirmish which had not been generally known because the "public is not price conscious at the moment," according to the Association of Retail Gasoline Dealers of Washington, began last Tuesday when most of the Maryland dealers jumped their price a penny to provide for the new State gasoline tax.

Wrathall did not. Instead he posted his sign. For 20 years, he stated that his station would meet District prices, and the added tax did not change the situation, he declared.

Urged to Fall in Line

The Association of Retail Gasoline Dealers of Washington urged Wrathall to pull down his sign, since 90 per cent of their members were selling gasoline for 21.1—a penny higher—according to Wallace S. Linfoot, association president.

Wrathall disclaimed any desire to create a "gas war" and said he was only interested in informing Marylanders that the new gas tax would not mean they would have to pay more in Silver Spring than in the District.

The Standard Oil Co., which did not change its wholesale price, said the cent rise at its two company-owner units at 5th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne. and 2d st. and Constitution ave. nw. was "because we're out of line with other dealers."

Wrathall said the change was because of pressure by other dealers.

Washington Birth Rate Rises 30% During First Half of Year

The District's birth rate jumped nearly 30 per cent during the first half of 1947 as compared with the same period of last year.

This was learned yesterday with publication of a report by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, listing 14,041 live births for the first 26 weeks of 1947, as compared with 10,814 for the same period of 1946. Of this total, 10,021 were white and 4020 were Negro births.

Death Rate Stable

Death rate per 1000 population remained nearly the same over the period, 10.5 for 1947 and 10.6 for the same period of 1946. The Negro death rate, however, was 13.1 while the white death rate was 9.4.

The health officer reported a total of only 3617 communicable disease cases for the first half of the current year, as compared with 6966 for the same period of 1946. Deaths were 460 for the first 26 weeks of 1947, compared with 480 for the similar period of 1946.

Chicken Pox Leads

Largest incidence of communicable disease reported so far this year has been in chicken pox, with 1163 cases listed by the health department. Running a close second was tuberculosis, with 1012 cases reported.

Tuberculosis was the number one killer among commicable diseases in the District both the first half of this year and for the first half of 1946. A total of 269 such deaths were reported for the first six months of this year, and 284 for the comparable period of 1946.

Virginia Reports Curing Case of Rare Black Fever

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—One case of an Asiatic or semi-tropical disease, so rare it has seldom if ever been diagnosed and treated in this country, has been found—and cured—in Virginia, the State bureau of communicable disease control said today.

The disease, kala-azar (black fever), was diagnosed as such by physicians of the University of Virginia Hospital at Charlottesville after the victim, a 7-year-old boy who had come to this country from Greece seven months earlier, had suffered for three months with the ailment which baffled physicians of his home town, in Southwest Virginia.

The disease, in the from in which it afflicts youths, is called splenic anemia of infants, according to Dr. W. A. Browne, bureau director. Dr. Browne said, "although I won't say it hasn't occurred before in the United States, available medical descriptions of the disease make no mention of its having been found in this country."

U. S. Officials Back Present D. C. Setup At Hearing

House Committee Told System Shou Be Kept to Guard Federal Interests

Federal officials declared in testimony before the House District Reorganization and Home Rule Subcommittee yesterday that the present setup with which they direct District activities should be maintained.

District Engineer Donald C. White, whose office controls the city's water supply, said the present administrative setup should continue. Under it the District distributes the water, collects and pays the bills, while supply is under the War Department.

Colonel White said it was problematical whether efficiency would be increased by turning the supply job over to the District Water Department. He said the Federal interest would be safeguarded by the present setup.

Federal Security Administrator Watson B. Miller said both employes compensation and vocational rehabilitation activities here could be transferred from his agency to the District government. He said, however, that the cost would be increased.

Miller and Michael J. Shortley, of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, explained the Federal government now pays about 88 per cent of the expense for vocational rehabilitation in the District.

Average in the States, Shortley said, is about 70 per cent Federal, 30 per cent State money.

George P. Larrick, of the Food and Drug Administration, said his agency now works closely with the city Health Department. He said the present system gives stronger protection to the public than could over its District work to the local be obtained if his agency turned government.

Ward Boote, general counsel of the Bureau of Employe Compenshould continue to handle comsation, said the Federal agency pensation for the District.

Court Backed On Adoption Investigations

Montgomery Bar Group Indorses Use Of Probation Officers

The Montgomery County Bar Association yesterday unanimously indorsed the Montgomery Circuit Court's selection of probation officers as investigators for adoption cases instead of trained social workers.

A resolution adopted by the association stated "it is of the opinion that the court's action is for the best interest of the efficient and expeditious administration of the adoption laws."

The resolution further stated that the Association recognized the need for prompt investigation and reports in cases of proposed adoption and that the association has every confidence in the judgment and discretion of the judges of the Circuit Court.

Court Given Choice

The action followed an explanation by Circuit Judge Stedman Prescott, who said that under the law the court could use its own investigators or trained social workers. He asked the Bar Association for its feeling on the matter.

Recently organized groups have criticized the court for using probation officers. Judge Prescott said he did not know the court's decision offended any group until he read about it in the newspapers.

The court is holding a conference today at 2 p. m. in Rockville to discuss the matter with the Community Chest and Council, which will ask the judges to try a few investigations by social workers and compare the reports with those of probation officers.

Typing of Deeds Reference

A committee was named to urge the city commissioners to continue the practice of the county treasurer in typing the reference to deeds on county land taxes. The Association declared that the cuonty treasurer is not carrying out this policy, and therefore makes a hardship on title searchers.

Another committee was named to find out all particulars regarding a new law which requires that new plats be outlined in red to distinguish them from old subdivisions in the land records of the circuit court and to determine whose responsibility it is to enforce this procedure.

Inverchapel Stresses Anglo-American Amity

Southampton, England, July 7 (AP). — Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States who arrived today for a two-month leave, said British-American relations are "better than ever."

British journalists asked him what he liked best about America.

The Ambassador replied:

Juvenile Delinquency Declines in Virginia

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—Juvenile delinquency in Virginia is on the decline, but every other type of delinquency is still climbing, the State Board of Corrections revealed today in its summary of jail commitments between uly 1, 1946, and May 31, 1947.

The report showed that 27 per cent fewer juveniles were jailed in the State during the period, but commitments for all other offenses were up 14 per cent over the corresponding period between July 1, 1945, and May 31, 1946.

Total juvenile commitments decreased from 3613 to 2548 for the 11-month period while total jail commitments were 89,661 compared with 78,884.

Sharpest increase was noted in drunk driving, which was up 34 per cent, and careless and reckless driving—up 35 per cent.

Commitments for May, the summary showed, were greater than any previous month since 1943 except for August, 1946. The May total was 8748.

Arrested After Wild Chase

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Edward Marshall, 22, of Powhatan Beach, was arrested by Annapolis police today after his car plunged into an embankment to end a 15-mile chase.

During the pursuit in which two police cars joined over city streets and up Ritchie Highway to Jones, Patrolman Anthony Howes reported he fired a shot toward Marshall's car in an effort to stop him.

Police said they started after Marshall's sedan after receiving a complaint at 3:30 a. m. of loud "horn blowing." Marshall eluded them until his car came to a stop in the embankment at West Annapolis.

He was arrested on a warrant charging him with reckless driving, speeding, turning his lights off to avoid identification and driving under the influence of liquor.

Kitten Enjoys Stay in Wall

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Mike, a 3-week-old Persian kitten, purred contentedly today.

The little fellow seemed none the worse for spending 12 hours trapped between two walls in the home of his owner, Mrs. Orville Hatfield, on Fairfax road here. In fact, Mrs. Hatfield allowed he'd gained half a pound.

She said the kitten slipped down the wall opening from the attic, where his mother was bringing up her four newest offspring. Mrs. Hatfield tried to fish him up with a crab net, but it was too short.

West Annapolis firemen finally extricated the kitten. They had to dislodge a heavy coal stove and pry off a floorboard to do it.

Ferry Busy Over 4th

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—B. Frank Sherman, general manager of the Chesapeake Bay Ferry System, reported today that the Sandy Point-Matapeake ferry boat run over July Fourth weekend was 20 per cent busier than in any previous similar period.

Sherman said beginning Thursday, schedules were broken and boats shuttled between the Eastern and Western Shore until 3:30 a. m. Friday.

Sherman said over the long weekend there was a total of 10,234 cars containing 38,306 passengers and drivers carried between Sandy Point and Matapeake. Meanwhile, 677 trucks also made the trip.

On the Romancoke-Claiborne run, there were 1417 passengers carried in 413 cars and 13 trucks over the weekend.

Odd Fellows Install

Roanoke, Va., July 7 (AP).—Officers of the department council, Grand Lodge of Virginia, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, were installed this morning by Major G. E. Childs, of Danville, department commander, retired, at a convention of the order being attended by aproximately 450 persons at Hotel Roanoke.

The new council officers, who were elected in March, are: Maj. Gen. T. Paul Ragon, of Martinsville, president; Brig. Gen. H. L. Kent, of Marion, vice president; Lieut.-Col. Oscar G. Ross, of Arlington, secretary; Lieut.Col. C. V. Robinson, of Warrenton, treasurer; and Lieut.Col. G. F. Lochstampfor, of Portsmouth, chaplain.

Tuck's Aide Takes Post

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—Carter Lowance, former Associated Press reporter, took up his duties today as executive secretary to Gov. William M. Tuck.

M. W. Armistead 3d, who has been doubling as executive secretary and secretary of the Commonwealth, will leave here Wednesday for Roanoke to become a news department executive for the Times-World News Corp.

H. L. Rush Rites Held

Winchester, Va., July 7.—Requiem mass was said at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church here this morning for Harry L. Rush, 75, retired horticulturist of Frederick County, who died Friday after an illness of several years. A native of Culpeper, Mr. Rush was an orchardist for more than 50 years here and in Clarke County. He leaves his wife and four daughters.

Father Held in Son's Death

Danville, Va., July 7 (AP).—Rozier James Thornton, farmer, charged with shooting and killing his son, William Thornton, last Friday night, will be arraigned for a preliminary hearing tomorrow morning at Chatham, Sheriff Archer Overbey reported today.

The sheriff said that he had not been able to find a reason for the shooting. Overbey said that his inquiry revealed that it was not the first time he had fired upon members of his family.

The victim, accompanied by his wife and two children, was walking toward the porch of the parental home for a Fourth of July gathering when, the sheriff says, the father rose, drew a shotgun and fired three times at his son, hitting him with each load of buckshot.

Winchester Selected

Winchester, Va., July 7.—This city has been selected for the 1948 State convention of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, according to Carl Campbell, who was elected vice president representing the Winchester District at the twenty-sixth annual meeting in Portsmouth.

800 Turkeys Roasted

Frederick, Md., July 7.—Eight hundred young turkeys were destroyed when fire swept one of the buildings of the Hillcrest Poultry Farm at Thurmont last week. Firemen succeeded in preventing spread of the flames to nearby pens containing several thousand other turkeys. Ross V. Smith, proprietor of the farm, placed the damage at approximately $2000.

Three Miners GivenPlasma

Clintwood, Va., July 7 (AP).—Blood plasma rushed from Richmond was being utilized by doctors at Clintwood Hospital today in an effort to save the lives of three Trammell, Va., miners critically burned last Wednesday in a mine explosion at the McCoy Coal Co.

Hospital officials said the three—Carl Counts, 31; Claud McMillan, 29, and Clyde Laforce, about 30, were "holding their own" this morning and that the plasma was still being administered.

A fourth victim of the explosion—Bascom Keith, 33, also of Trammell, died Saturday night of injuries and burns suffered in the blast.

Doctors said Counts, McMillan and Laforce received first and second degree burns covering from 50 to 75 per cent of their bodies.

$100 Monthly Pension Urged To Aid Nation's Blind People

By The Associated Press

A proposal to grant blind persons in the United States a $100 monthly pension was advanced tonight by J. Robert Atkinson, vice president of and managing director of the Braille Institute of America, Inc.

Speaking at the opening of the twenty-first biennial convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind in Baltimore, Atkinson suggested that half the pension be furnished from Federal funds and half from State funds.

In addition, Atkinson, who is retiring president of the association, advocated that each blind person be allowed to earn $100 by his own talents without having his government aid decreased.

The Los Angeles executive declared, "No one can convince me that such assistance to the civilian blind would cause them to drift into indifference . . . without any effort toward . . . self-support."

Atkinson, who lost his sight as a cowboy in Montana 35 years ago, told the group that blind persons want a chance to keep employed, rather than charity. "Their enforced idleness is their worst enemy," he said.

"However," he continued, "the majority of our blind citizens are today at the age in life when the sighted citizen is thinking of retirement." Explaining that 80 per cent of American blind are over 50 years old, Atkinson said to expect them to rehabilitate themselves for lucrative employment is "both unreasonable and inpractical."

Attending the convention were more than 400 delegates, at least half of them blind.

The principal speaker was to have been Helen Keller, internationally known deaf-blind leader, but a trip to the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., prevented her appearance, convention officials said.

The present convention was originally scheduled for 1945, having been postponed in that year because of wartime limitations on transportation, and in 1946 because of the fire in the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, where the meeting was to be held.

Rape Attempt Charged

Winchester, Va., July 7.—Police Chief J. Thomas Boyd has reported the arrest of Lee James Mahoney, 44, of this city, on a charge of attempted rape of an 8-year-old girl. A preliminary hearing has been set for this week.

Train Hits Two Men

Norfolk, Va., July 7 (AP).—Two Norfolk & Western Railway signal workers were reported seriously injured when they were struck about 7:35 a. m. by a train on the bridge across the eastern branch of the Elizabeth River.

Norfolk & Western offices gave the names of the men as J. L. Stone of Crewe, signal supervisor, and S. H. Pugh of South Norfolk, signal maintenance man. Both men were taken to Norfolk General Hospital, where they were reported in serious condition.

Sales Tax to Be Topic

Leonardtown, Md., July 7.—J. Joseph McDermott, an official of the Maryland Retail Sales Tax Division, will address St. Mary's County merchants tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the St. Mary's Courthouse to explain the new sales tax. A question period will follow the talk.

Heads Society

Blind Vendor Of Treasury Is Elected

For the last 10 years, Wade H. Mitchell, manager of a vending stand in the Treasury Building, has demonstrated to Washingtonians that a blind man can run a successful business.

Now, as new president of the National Society for the Blind, he will have a greater opportunity to aid blind persons all over the country in finding useful and productive work.

Mitchell was elected to the national office yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors at the Continental Hotel. Previously a vice president, he succeeds Earl W. Shinn, who recently resigned, as president.

Blind since childhood, Mitchell was educated at the Virginia School for the Blind, where he was trained to be a piano tuner. In 1927, he was graduated from George Washington University Law School, and for 10 years practiced law in the District.

When the Randolph-Sheppard Act, permitting operation by blind persons of stands in public buildings, was passed in 1937, Mitchell was chairman of a local committee working for the blind. He was persuaded to take over one of the two posts in the Treasury Building in order to prove to Federal officials how successful the venture could be.

Mitchell has been on the job for nearly 10 years now, and has seen the program accepted in Washington, and copied by agencies all over the country.

He and his wife, an employe of the Justice Department, live at 3542 Hertford st. nw. Both of them are active in the Moose Lodge. Mitchell has been a member of the National Society for the Blind and of the Washington Society for the Blind ever since they were organized in 1938.

Other officers elected at the meeting yesterday were: Francis J. Cummings, Delaware, vice president; Merle E. Frampton, New York, secretary; and Alfred H. Lawson, of the Washington Loan and Trust, treasurer.

It was announced that Walter K. Handy, longtime executive director of the society, would resign. He will remain with the organization until someone is found to take his place.

Accidentally Shot

Frederick, Md., July 7.—David H. Curry, 32, who lives near Frederick, was in Memorial Hospital today with a bullet wound in his thigh as the result of an accidental shooting yesterday at Braddock Heights. State Police Sergeant Walter K. May said Carl Bartholow, jr., 18, a deaf mute, picked up the .25-caliber pistol discarded by Curry, and while examining the weapon, caused it to discharge. The bullet struck Curry in the thigh.

Md. Arterial Roads Unsafe, Truckers Say

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—The present condition of Maryland's arterial highways is "unsafe," the Maryland Motor Truck Association declared in a resolution today.

The resolution said the association is opposed to the unnecessary routing of through trucks over light-duty highways, but asserted that many of the main highways are badly surfaced and routed.

The association also said that trucks and buses represent only 16 per cent of the total Maryland motor vehicle registration, but pay more than 40 per cent of registration receipts allotted to read construction and maintenance.

As a "partciularly flagrant example," the resolution pointed out the York road, a main highway from Baltimore to York and northern Pennsylvania, which it termed "a menace to traffic even if width and surface conditions were good, which they certainly are not."

The group also urged the city administration to eliminate the problem posed by a low overhead crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad over the old Annapolis road south of Westport.

Copies of the resolution were sent to Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., the State Roads Commission, and other officials.

Paul O. Summers

Frederick, Md., July 7.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Williamsport for Paul O. Summers, 29-year-old Frederick County native, who was struck and instantly killed by a Western Maryland Railway locomotive while at work on the railroad near Paramount, Md.

Summers was a veteran of World War II. Fellow employes said he was working with a crew laying ballast and apparently did not hear the approaching locomotive.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bertha Hooper Summers, his widow, Mrs. Sarah Summers, and four children.

Taxis Get 2-Way Radio

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 7.—The Orndorff Taxis Service has equipped its fleet here with two-way radio, permitting constant contact between cab-drivers and the dispatcher's office, Burman Orndorff, proprietor, announced today. He said his firm was the first in the State to install the equipment.

Richmond Hearing Set

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—The Virginia legislative commission on administrative agencies announce today that it would hold its regular summer hearings in the State Capitol on July 21. The meeting will be open to the public. A number of revisions to the regulations of the State Board of Veterinary Examiners are on the docket for commission consideration.

H. L. Boxwell Elected

Berryville, Va., July 7.—Harry Lee Boxwell has been elected a member of the electoral board of Clarke County to fill the unexpired term of R. C. Chester, jr., who resigned.

All-Day Meeting Set

Manassas, Va., July 7.—The Missionary Society of the Manassas Baptist Church will hold its annual all-day meeting tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert A. Hutchison of Richmond ave., Manassas.

Gen. Munson, Army Shoe Designer, Dies

Brig. Gen. Edward L. Munson, 79, U. S. Army ret.), the man credited with putting relative comfort in GI shoes, died yesterday afternoon at his New London, Conn., home following a lengthy illness.

A physician by profession, General Munson headed the Army's morale branch in World War I and originated the "Munson last" Army shoe, providing blunt toes to replace the narrow, toe-pinching type then in vogue. The shoe type, generally, was later accepted by civilian shoe manufacturers.

General Munson retired from military service 14 years ago to take a position as professor of preventive medicine at the University of California. He retired in 1940.

He leaves his wife, Marta Jane Munson; a son, Edward L. Munson, jr., who left Army service in January as chief of Army Pictorial Service here to accept a position with the motion picture industry, and one daughter, Katherine M. Carter, wife of Col. W. A. Carter, research executive of the research and development laboratories, Army Engineers, Fort Belvoir, Md.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11:30 a. m., Thursday, at Arlington National Cemetery, followed by burial there.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Ives

Mrs. Elizabeth Skinner Ives, wife of Senator Irving M. Ives, (R., N. Y.), died yesterday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary E. M. Skinner, in Bainbridge, N. Y., after a two-year illness.

Funeral services will be held in the Norwich, N. Y., home of the Senator but arrangements have not been completed. The Senator left by automobile early yesterday for New York.

A graduate of Wellesley College, Mrs. Ives was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Her illness had prevented her from taking part in her husband's congressional campaign, and she had not been able to come to Washington since his election.

Mrs. Ives was a native of Bainbridge. The couple had been married since 1920 and have a son, George, a veteran who now is a student at Cornell Law School.

Senator Ives was elected to Congress last year after he had served for ten years in the New York Assembly.

Money Lender Swears To Loan and Falls Dead

Bangalore, India, July 7 (U.P.).—Bad es Ab, a money lender, testified before a village court today that the headman had not repaid half of a 72-rupee ($21) loan.

To prove he wasn't lying, the money lender went into a religious temple and swore he had not received payment.

He fell dead.

Game Refuge Approved

Leonardtown, Md., July 7.—A wild life refuge will be established shortly on six acres of the bayside farm lands of J. B. Abell at the head of St. Clement's Bay in St. Marys County. Food and protection will be provided for wild fowl and game.

The area, donated by Abell, is the first of a number to be approved by the County Soil Conservation Department, headed by Kenneth Stone. Other areas offered by farmers are being inpected.

Tyree C. Wright

Lynchburg, Va., July 7 (AP).—Tyree Cornelius Wright, 65, field supervisor for United States emergency crop and feed loan office, died suddenly today at his home here.

He is survived by his widow, Bessie Lawson Wright; a son, Tyree Lawson Wright of Plainfield, N. J., and four sisters, Mrs. O. B. Parker sr., and Mrs. F. J. Davis, both of Lynchburg; Mrs. Douglas Moose of Charlotte, N. C., and Miss Virginia Tolley of Florence, S. C.

Md. Judge Picks Pin Feathers of Young Night Owls

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—Young people who turn night into day and keep their elders awake until the wee hours were the subject of judicial disapproval today in an opinion handed down by Judge John B. Gontrum in Baltimore County Circuit Court.

Judge Gontrum suggested that a restaurant on the Frederick road in Catonsville discontinue curb service after midnight, following complaints by nearby residents who said they could not sleep because of noise.

"When fantastic customs and the ebullient spirit of youth undertake to turn night into day, there is no obligation on the part of the . . . residents of a staid community to sacrifice their rest and health to permit this departure from . . . sane living," Gontrum said. . . . "This business of permitting children to stay up all night is silly."

Testimony in the case consumed

Andrew J. McCarthy

Funeral services for Andrew J. McCarthy, 41, chief clerk to the general passenger agent of the B. & O. railroad, who died Saturday, will be held at his home, 1332 Richie pl. ne., tomorrow at 9:30.

A native of Washington, Mr. McCarthy was educated at old Business High School. For the past 24 years he has been with the B. & O. He was a member of Holy Name Society and Washington Passenger Association.

His wife, Mrs. Catherine Dawson McCarthy, two sons, Edward J. and John T., and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson survive him.

Spruce up Home for Summer

A lovely and practical hooked rug like the one shown costs almost nothing to make. The only equipment needed is a simple 14-inch by 14-inch frame—make it yourself—and a hook. For foundation use burlap or sacking, and your material for hooking can be salvaged from old clothes or blankets.

You can make this rug square or rectangular, any size you like, by adding blocks. These may be all alike or with alternating designs. This type of rug is especially easy to handle because each square is hooked separately and then joined.

Complete directions for making hooked and many other types of rugs are found in our Reader Service booklet, No. 94. Includes crocheted, woven, knitted, braided, French knot, tufted, Navaho and Oriental styles. Tells how to prepare your material, plan your design and make the rug. Mary Haworth's Mail

In Private, Man Is Quietly Devoted to Wife And Her Family; But for 25 Years, He Has Poked Fun at Her in Public; She Wonders Why

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our case is not serious but I would like to know why my husband enjoys teasing me in public when he never does so in private; nor is he given to telling jokes or teasing others.

We've been married 25 years and in private he compliments my looks, my cooking, etc., and also my family, whom he seems to admire. In fact, he is as loyal and agreeable as one could wish, although he is sensitive and tends to be suspicious of others' motives—to a mild extent.

I have been teased all my life by my family and haven't resented my husband's doing so. I don't get upset or sulky, so he can't be doing it to get a rise out of me. But I am interested in knowing just what prompts him to say rather foolish and untrue things about me in public.

Is He Resentful, Subconsciously?

BOTH of us were reared in a mountain region and he will tell persons who are virtual strangers to us both that I never wore shoes before we married, that I practically starve him to death, throw things at him, am extravagant, and other such hill-billy yarns.

All this is said in a semi-humorous manner, but it strikes me as strange and out-of-keeping and I am sure others often feel the same. I've always been puzzled by it and lately I've wondered if for some reason he has resented me subconsciously. I have more drive about home affairs than he. Perhaps your insight into human nature can give me the clue to his behavior. G. S.

In Early Years Man Was Jealous

DEAR G. S.: In all probability your husband's attempts to be a droll Ananias at parties, fishing for laughs at your expense, were motivated originally by a blend of inferiority feelings.

I daresay he has wellnigh outgrown these feelings by now. At least, I should imagine, the acute discomfort they once gave him has waned. But his early efforts to wear a false front of cheerio became a fixed habit long since—something he does almost unawarely, for no particular reason at this late date; just as some folks, for instance, invariably put on the right shoe before the left.

Now, back to the motivation which built the habit: It strikes me that in the beginning he felt spurred by nervous anxiety to act at ease in company, not knowing how.

Presumably he had no proficiency at light conversation in a throng, yet lacked the assurance or savoir faire to keep faith with his shy introvert temperament and let others do most of the talking.

But why did he essay the role of cut-up foreign to his nature, and especially why did he make you the butt of his outlandish yarns? Because blended with his social gaucherie was a worried jealousy to keep up with, or tie a string to you socially, in situations which embraced mixed company. That's my theory.

Resented Wife's Greater Assurance

THE FACT that you've always taken his clumsy public joshing in stride, though aware that others haven't cared much for it, signifies that you're well invested with poise. And I think at first it bothered him considerably that he hadn't your sang-froid in company,—perhaps your knack of getting along fine with others from scratch.

So, trading on your good humor, and maybe unconsciously taking his cue from your family's practice of teasing you, he strove to register rollicking insouciance by trying to wax funny about his home life. But also he was advertising himself as your husand, and broadcasting his proprietary status in terms that served to deflate your natural ebullience for the time being.

In brief, he felt inferior to you as a social being and was nagged by fear of potential rivals eclipsing him in your regard. But 25 years' marriage surely have put such anxieties to rest,—hence my conviction that his party-patter has no underlying meaning any more. M. H.

Play Fair Teaching Fair Play

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHEN a mother says, "I make my boy give up his toys when other children want them because I don't want him to be selfish," she is doing by force what should only be done voluntarily.

There are so many such situations in which a mother takes advantage of a child's weakness and this is one of them. If her boy is playing with his baby sister and she grabs his toys, it is wrong to force him to give them to her. To shame a child for not permitting a younger child to take possession of his property is to develop a burning sense of resentment because his mother is showing favoritism and because the younger child is getting away with such behavior.

Pretense Unimportant

IT is more important for the younger child to learn to respect the possessions of others than it is for the older one to make a pretense of unselfishness.

If the baby cannot be persuaded to stop taking what belongs to her brother, then the older child's property should be protected. Give the boy a drawer or closet in which he can lock his toys when not in use. Give him a play place in the basement or attic that is his very own. Put the baby in a room with a gate or in her playpen so that she will not be able to destroy what does not belong to her.

When a child goes out to play he is certain to associate with children who will want everything he has, because they lack possessions of their own or are acquisitive.

Force Is Wrong Method

EVERY mother wants her child to be a polite and unselfish host. However, everyday play with everyday companions is not the place or the persons for whom a child must give up his own cherished toys. He goes out to play with his own things and if he wants to share or trade that is his affair. If he does not it is unfair for the mother to interfere and force him to give them to others. That is very seldom a 50-50 proposition.

Children learn to be unselfish if they live with and play with persons who are generous and fair. But a child feels only resentment and no desire to be unselfish just because his mother turns his bike over to the first child who says, "I want to ride."

Peruvian Diplomat To Be Feted

SEVERAL official parties will be held this week in honor of Peru's Foreign Minister, Enrique Garcia, who arrived in Washington yesterday, and is a guest at Blair House.

First major event on his social schedule will be the luncheon given today in his honor by the Secretary of State, Gen. George C. Marshall. Tomorrow Senor Garcia will be guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Inter-American Bar Association at the University Club. The Foreign Minister, a well known lawyer in his native country, is a former professor of law at San Marcos University, Lima.

The Ambassador of Peru, Jorge Prado, will honor the visitor at a dinner at the Mayflower tomorrow evening. Foreign diplomats and their wives and members of official society have been invited. Thursday there will be a special session of the Pan American Union, followed by a luncheon in honor of the Peruvian minister. In the afternoon, Dr. Sayan will leave for New York, returning to Peru on July 16.

Argentine Embassy Party Honors Bruces

THE Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Ivanissevich entertained last evening at a small dinner party in honor of the new Ambassador to the Argentine and Mrs. James Bruce. Also at the party were the Argentine Ambassador's son, Willie Ivanissevich, and the United States Ambassador's daughter, Miss Louise Bruce.

Other guests were Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Weickner, jr. The party was kept small at Ambassador Bruce's request, so that he and Ambassador Ivanissevich could "have a good talk."

'Siamese Evening' At United Nations Club

FORMER Ambassador and Mrs. Paul McNutt were among those who attended the highly successful "Siamese evening" at the United Nations Club Sunday. Native dances, modern and classical, were given and a program of native music included a composition of the Ambassador, Prince Van Waithayalon.

The Military Attache, Col. Kharb Kunjara, was master of ceremonies. The Ambassador and Princeess Van Waithayakon were on hand for the festivities, with their young daughter, who led some of the dancing.

At dinner and in the audience afterward were Mrs. Rudolph Huntington Miner, Mrs. Abbot Low Moffat, Mrs. Harold Walker, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Clarence Hewes, George Williams.

Mrs. Ernest Becker Luncheon Hostess

MRS. Ernest Becker, jr., wife of Captain Becker, USN, was hostess at a small luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel. Guest of honor was Miss Barbara Coyle of Norfolk, Va., who is the house guest of Capt. and Mrs. H. T. Dietrich.

The party was also a farewell for Mrs. Becker who leaves this week for California where the captain will take command of the cruiser Springfield.

Among the guests present were Mrs. John L. McMillan, wife of South Carolina's Representative; Mrs. George Grant, wife of the Alabama Representative; Mrs. H. T. Dietrich, Mrs. George L. Menocal, Mrs. Alexander Rhea 3d and Mrs. Jackson Davis.

Recent arrivals in Washington are the new Secretary of the Swedish Legation and Mrs. Per Lind. Mrs. Lind is shown here with her daughter, Ajneta, and son, John. Political Apathy Scored at BPW National Board Meeting

French Lick Springs, Ind., July 7.—A sharp warning against political apathy was issued here today by Miss Mary H. Donlon, chairman of the New York State Workmen's Compensation Board, to leaders of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

"Politics and public affairs may not safely be left to schemers or dealers," Miss Donlon told a national board meeting of the federation, adding that "there is political work that must be done by successful men and women who have demonstrated, in their own business and professional careers, the capacity to get work done.

"Increasingly, such men and women should make available in politics and public service the intelligence and work—drive and willingness to cooperate and the practical know-how that have achieved their own personal success.

A Leader's Duty

"Why is it," she asked, "that American business and professional women do not understand their tremendous political power, and how to use it."

She warned her audience that they were faced with "the challenge to a leader's duty" to "resist the onrushing tide of reaction." Freedom and free institutions are threatened from without and from within, she declared," menaced by foreign ideologies, both of the right and of the left."

"Freedom is also threatened," she said, by individual indifference to the political processes that determine governmental policy and by our failure or refusal to function in political organizations."

Asserting that France was conquered in 1940 as much from the political weakness of her people as from the Germans' might and that the armed political strength of the British was the key factor in their successful resistance, Miss Donlon urged that all women "function as citizens."

Political Work Needed

It is not enough for women to concern themselves with economic and social causes, she said, "for economic and social status seeks and finds the level of political status, whatever that may be."

Urging political activity by women in their local communities, Miss Donlon pointed out that the difference between a totalitarian state and one where individual freedom is recognized is that in the former, public policy is made at the top and forced down; in the latter policy is effective only when supported at the local level.

Prominent members of the Australian colony in Washington attended the christening Sunday afternoon of young John Richard Harry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harry. Another child, aged 3, is named Virginia.

Mr. Harry formerly served as Second Secretary at the Embassy here. He is now a member of the Australian mission to U. N. He and Mrs. Harry are leaving Washington soon to take up residence in New York.

The Rev. C. W. Lowry officiated at the christening which took place in All Saints' Church, Chevy Chase. A delightful al fresco luncheon in the garden of the Harrys followed the ceremony.

Miss Dorothy Stirling, sister of the Australian Minister, Alfred Stirling, was godmother. Guests included the Australian Minister, the Commercial Counselor and Mrs. Garside, the Economic Counselor and Mrs. Brigden and Press Attache and Mrs. Bridges.

Prince Abdullah Coming

The visit of Prince Abdullah of Yemen to Washington has been delayed. The royal visitor is expected next Monday. He will be a guest at Blair House.

Florida State Alumnae Plan Anniversary Party

Florida State College Alumnae Club will celebrate its 10th anniversary at a garden party, Saturday, July 12, 5 p. m. at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rowland Snyder, 4840 47th pl. nw. A feature of the program will be an informal discussion, "Changes in Our Alma Mater," led by Miss Mary B. Settle, national director of Service and Veterans' Hospitals, American Red Cross.

The speaker is a graduate and former faculty member of the college. One of the largest colleges for women in the United States, Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee recently changed its name to Florida State University and opened its door to men.

Mrs. O. H. Beasley of 3555 S. Wakefield, Arlington, is president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter. Other officers include Mrs. G. H. McEwen, vice president; Mrs. F. W. Poos, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. E. F. Sunderman, assistant secretary and treasurer.

Miss Patricia Moore To Be Autumn Bride

Mrs. John F. Moore announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Patricia Anne Moore, to John Lamb Crawford, son of Mrs. Charles A. Crawford of Terre Haute, Ind., and Washington and the late Mr. Crawford. The late Mr. Moore was a well-known Washington attorney.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Holy Cross Academy and attended Rosemont College, Rosemont, Pa.

Mr. Crawford attended Indiana State College and Loyola University. He was graduated from Columbus University here where he received the Bachelor of Laws and Master of Laws degrees. During the war he served with the Army Engineers and is now with the Department of Agriculture.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Political Apathy Scored at BPW National Board Meeting

French Lick Springs, Ind., July 7.—A sharp warning against political apathy was issued here today by Miss Mary H. Donlon, chairman of the New York State Workmen's Compensation Board, to leaders of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

"Politics and public affairs may not safely be left to schemers or dealers," Miss Donlon told a national board meeting of the federation, adding that "there is political work that must be done by successful men and women who have demonstrated, in their own business and professional careers, the capacity to get work done.

"Increasingly, such men and women should make available in politics and public service the intelligence and work—drive and willingness to cooperate and the practical know-how that have achieved their own personal success.

A Leader's Duty

"Why is it," she asked, "that American business and professional women do not understand their tremendous political power, and how to use it."

She warned her audience that they were faced with "the challenge to a leader's duty" to "resist the onrushing tide of reaction." Freedom and free institutions are threatened from without and from within, she declared," menaced by foreign ideologies, both of the right and of the left."

"Freedom is also threatened," she said, by individual indifference to the political processes that determine governmental policy and by our failure or refusal to function in political organizations."

Asserting that France was conquered in 1940 as much from the political weakness of her people as from the Germans' might and that the armed political strength of the British was the key factor in their successful resistance, Miss Donlon urged that all women "function as citizens."

Political Work Needed

It is not enough for women to concern themselves with economic and social causes, she said, "for economic and social status seeks and finds the level of political status, whatever that may be."

Urging political activity by women in their local communities, Miss Donlon pointed out that the difference between a totalitarian state and one where individual freedom is recognized is that in the former, public policy is made at the top and forced down; in the latter policy is effective only when supported at the local level.

Now's the Time for Green Salads

Summer's the time when the endless variety of tossed green salads run rampant. Although we serve them 'most every day they are still popular at the end of the season. Vary the dressing a bit and vary the ingredients as you may, but essentially the salads remain the same. Roadside stands and markets are filled with greenery of all descriptions.

Try a combination of chicory and romaine which you BREAK into pieces rather than cut. With this will go thin question-mark slices of calavo cut from a calavo half shell and slices of hard-cooked eggs. Use a thin French dressing made with either lemon juice or vinegar and garlic oil. Season to taste with plenty of freshly ground black pepper and salt.

Paradise for Keeping Fit

"A Figure Salon which is attracting much attention because of its successful methods.

"We have just returned to our office from one of the finest reducing and health salons we have ever seen, located in the heart of Hollywood," so writes the Fashion Editor of the Los Angeles Herald and Express about our famous Hollywood studio.

You Won't Have Luck Picking 4-Leaf Clovers in Ivy Patch

By Ida Jean Kain

DON'T look now, but the blonde over there in that cute play-suit, searching for a four-leaf clover, is blissfully unaware that she is strolling through three shiny leaves. Well, she'll know it tomorrow. Ah, she's found one . . . maybe this is her lucky day. She likes the new boy friend and hopes he'll ask her to go dancing. That's what she's thinking as she bends over right in a patch of shiny leaves to retie her shoelace, and then crushes the curls up off her face. But she won't look pretty tomorrow . . . covered with poison ivy.

Unfortunately, three leaves of poison ivy are a lot easier to come across than a four-leaf clover. It's everywhere, and deceptively variable in appearance. It may be a low shrub, or a rambling vine on the ground, very innocent-looking and pretty; or a climbing vine twining around trees, covering fences and decorating stone walls. But it is always three shiny leaves, notched or plain, and the best preventive is to be able to recognize it in every form, and steer clear of it. Walking through it bruises the leaves, gets the poison on shoes, and from there to hands, and face . . . and it spreads. Blondes are more susceptible because of thinner skins.

Bliss to Blisters

AND that lad over there, the one baring his pale chest to the summer sun, is asking for trouble, too. This appears to be his first outing, and he's taking full advantage of the golden opportunity to get a rich mahogany coating. It's 11:30 in the morning, the sun is warm and wonderful and there is just enough breeze for comfort. He doesn't feel the burn for the breeze and stays out a couple of hours, soaking up health . . . he thinks. He'll feel less healthy tomorrow. He will be red, oh, quite red. But if it's a hazy day, he may stay out most of the time . . . the breeze soothes his sunburn. What he doesn't suspect is that the misty and cloudy days are the worst burners, the rays come right through the vapor.

He Who Gets Slapped

THAT night he won't have much appetite for dinner, or sleep worth a hoot. But he won't discover the blisters until Monday morning when someone slaps him on the back and asks if he had a nice holiday.

Take it easy, pal, take it easy. And remember the best time for a sunbath is from dawn until 9:30 in the morning . . . or after 4 p. m. in the afternoon, standard time. At other times, 15 to 20 minutes is enough exposure until you get a protective tan. Get out of the sun the minute your skin feels hot to the touch. And remember, leaves three . . . let it be.

Susie Q

'Mad Hatters' Planning Fall Millinery

By Sara Yokley

This devilish mode is a result of millinery's newest twist—breadth rather than height. And the wider hats get, the more they look like antlers from a sportman's den.

John Fredericks, who specializes in the bazarre, has whipped up the neatest of these antler bonnets in deep rose velvet iced with black lace. The crown is small and rounded, but things take a dip for the worse. On the sides the hat juts out to form a lovely pair of curved velvet and lace antlers.

Modest, Not Mild

Laddie Northridge's version, an exaggerated bicorne, is a little less extreme. Made of dove-gray felt, it pokes out to form slim, rounder horns on each side. Bird wings, shaded from beige to brown, cover the entire front of the hat.

Walter Florell, third member of this male triumvirate in hatland, uses wide folds of copper and silver-striped ribbon for an antler effect. The bows are perched on each side of the wide brim of a war copper-colored belt.

The ladies in the high fashion hat league, apparently have not been similarly inspired by specimens of wildlife, but the results are equally eerie.

Lilly Dache prefers Halloween for inspiration—a squashed-in witch's hat and a pumpkin number. The black felt witch's hat rims the forehead, then drapes up and back for a good foot or so. It is topped off by a scalp lock of curled aigrette feathers.. The pumpkin model is a deep crowned hat of pumpkin colored felt, edged in a winde and black plaid ribbon. For the record, Madam Dache claims her inspiration was the 1911 period, back when things were progressive.

Back to the Factory

Hattie Carnegie, on the other hand, is in a more modern mechanized mood, with a street version of the welder's helmet. She takes a gold-colored felt derby and drapes it fore and aft with matching grosgrain ribbon. For convenience, she cuts out an oval in front for those who wish to see and breathe.

The old-timey lampshade, bedecked with gee gaws, gives inspiration to hats by both Carnegie and Florence Reichman. The Carnegie version is an ornate evening hat, about the size of a big pressure cooker. It is made of pleated taffeta, trimmed with spangled lace and has an open crown. Mrs. Reichman's hat is of billiard-green felt, with uncurled ostrich—destined to tickle many a male nose—set in discs of felt around the front of the brim.

Spark Pork Flavor

Pork-sweetness and fruit-tartness make a perfect flavor combination. Here's a new twosome—pork steak or chops baked in apricot sauce! And it's simpler to make than it sounds. Heat a can of apricots, adding two teaspoons of lemon juice and one quarter of a teaspoon of cloves. After the steaks or chops (three for this amount of sauce) are browned, pour the sauce over them and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 35 minutes or until tender, or let them simmer in a covered skillet on top of the stove.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I remove deep scratches and white marks from a walnut desk? How do you refinish walnut? What can I do to revive an old gilt picture frame? It's a solid frame with carving on it, and is very dirty and tarnished. F. R.

Deep scratches may be darkened by applying a matching wood stain with a fine brush. Iodine will often darken the stain satisfactorily. After the stain is dry, apply white shellac with a fine brush until the crack is filled, letting each application dry thoroughly. Then polish over the crack.

White watermarks on wood can often be removed from waxed surfaces simply by removing the old wax with liquid wax, then applying a fresh coat. If your desk isn't waxed, rub the stains with rottenstone or powdered pumice and raw or boiled linseed oil, in the direction of the grain.

The first step in refinishing walnut furniture is to remove the old finish with paint or varnish remover. Apply the remover generously to a small area. Allow it to stand until the finish is softened, then lift off with a putty knife. Use burlap and steel wool to remove the finish from turnings and carvings. Repeat the process until all the old finish is removed from the piece. (Be sure to wear rubber gloves to protect your hands.)

Wash away the residue of the remover with turpentine, then sand with No. 2/0 sandpaper wrapped around a block of wood. Sand with the grain wherever possible. Finish with No. 4/0 sandpaper. When the surface is completely smooth, apply a thin coat of fine grade white shellac. Let dry thoroughly, then sand lightly with No. 4/0 or No. 6/0 sandpaper. Wipe clean with dry lintless rag. Apply a coat of four parts white shellac and one part alcohol. Let dry thoroughly, sand lightly, and polish.

Gilt frames require very careful treatment as they cannot stand much rubbing. Petroleum jelly is sometimes used to clean them. Coat the frame with the jelly and let it stand for 10 minutes. Then remove it carefully with a clean cloth. If you wish to refinish the frame, materials for this purpose can be obtained in paint stores.

How can I remove mildew from a pair of riding boots? C. N. W.

Mildew can be removed from leather by wiping with a cloth wrung out in diluted alcohol. Use a cup of denatured alcohol mixed with a cup of water. Dry in a current of air. If necessary, wash with thick suds of a mild, neutral soap or saddle soap. Wipe with a damp cloth and dry in an airy place. Then polish the boots with a good wax dressing.

I have been given an electric blanket which is in good condition except that it is quite soiled. How can I clean it? O. C. C.

Manufacturers of electric blankets recommend that they be washed either by hand or for a short washing time in a washing machine in exactly the same manner as all-wool blankets. Be sure to dry the blanket very thoroughly before using. Electric blankets should never be dry-cleaned.

Factory Serving Best Meals Gets Results, Dietitian Says

New York—Hearty, colorful and tasty meals served at moderate prices in industrial plants is a long step on the road toward perfect employer-employe relations, in the opinion of Mrs. Clare Guthrie.

Mrs. Guthrie, home economist and head dietician for a firm of industrial cafeteria managers (Industrial Food-Crafts, Inc.), is responsible for about a million meals a day, served in plant cafeterias all over the United States.

MRS. CLARE GUTHRIE
. . . for happy workers.

"Good food," she said, "will keep happy, enthusiastic workers trooping to work every day, cut down waste, accidents and absenteeism. It will also increase production."

Color on the walls or on the plate is one of her favorite themes. She likes to serve a green leafy vegetable or two a yellow vegetable and a red vegetable, along with meat, Spanish rice, or macaroni and cheese.

She has studied regional food preferences closely, and is able to verify what casual observers have long suspected: New Englanders prefer clam chowder, baked beans and brown bread, like saltwater fish better than freshwater, like pie for breakfast and pour maple syrup with a heavy hand. Southerners want fresh hotbreads thrice daily, like hot corn pone and corn muffins, dark cane sirup or molasses, strong coffee pork frequently, hot grits, lots of rich gravy and salt pork seasoning with almost all vegetables. Midwesterners enjoy heavy substantial foods, heaps of buttter, pastries and potatoes.

Did You Get Yours, Junior?

Did you eat 16 quarts of ice cream in 1946?

If not, you didn't get your share of the popular food. According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica 1947 Book of the Year, the average American consumed nearly 20 pounds of ice cream in 1946—about twice as much as he ate each year before the war, and 5 pounds more than he had in 1945.

More ice cream was produced in the United States last year than in any other year on record, according to estimates in the Britannica Book of the Year. The total for 1946 reached about 750 million gallons, compared with 471 million gallons in 1945 and a prewar average of 315 million gallons annually.

Pennsylvania made more ice cream than any other state in 1946, followed by New York, Ohio, Illinois and California in that order, the Britannica Book of the Year reports.

As usual, nearly 2½ times as much ice cream was produced in July, the peak of 1946, as in January, the low month, figures in the Britannica Book of the Year show.

Theta Sigma Phi Chapter Wins Honors

National Capital Chapter, Theta Sigma Phi—honorary fraternity of women journalists, has chalked up several honors recently. First Miss Jeanette Harrington, chapter member, was elected national president of the organization. Now comes word that the local chapter has been named winner of the 1947 award for professional advancement. Maj. Gretchen Thorp, president of the local chapter, will announce officially the latest award when she returns from Los Angles this week where she attended the recent national conclave. The award prize, a two year subscription to The Matrix, official organ, will be sent to the National Press Club Library.

Again, National Capital Chapter comes into preminence as the home group of one of the three headliners named for the Nation. These are individual members cited for outstanding work in their own fields, and Washington's headliner is Mrs. Frieda W. Everett, chief, documentary article section, Office of Information and Cultural Affairs, State Department.

DAR Girl Homemakers' Sponsor Camping Trip

The Girl Homemaker's Committee, Daughters of the American Revolution, will send 12 children to Merrick Girl's Camp, Wild Rose Shores, Annapolis, for a two week period. This group, which will leave July 23, is from the club that meets each Saturday at the Westminster, Presbyterian Church, 7th and E sts., sw.

Funds for the children's outing came from voluntary contributions of District chapter members. This year the response was so generous that more children will be sent than in previous years.

Mrs. William H. Schreinert, state chairman of the D. C. DAR Homemaker's Committee, is in charge of the training program, designed to teach the girls of this country better homemaking and home keeping.

Something Borrowed But Nothing New

British Film Studio Rents Gowns to Couponless Brides

By Barbara Wace

LONDON.—A white wedding is no longer just a dream to countless couponless British brides.

For that important day at least, in spite of shortages and rationing, she can dress literally "just like a film star" in borrowed finery from her favorite picture.

Gainsborough Film Studios, which began a hire service for the film and theatrical industry when clothes rationing came in in 1941, lent a "props" wedding dress to a WAAF as a kindness, never thinking what they'd started.

Letters poured in upon jovial Ernest Beha, wardrobe manager and sentimentalist. Within a week he was the fairy godfather to hundreds of brides-to-be, who beseiged his office with requests for wedding dresses, otherwise, with the coupon shortage, a definite impossibility.

"We don't try and make a profit," said Beha, smiling from behind a foot-high pile of one day's mail. "We charge around £2.10.0 to £4.0.0 ($10 to $16) for a week, just to cover expenses and cleaning, according to the original price of the dress, which is often as high of £90 ($360)."

Convertibles

"We use the stars' dresses, and make up chorus dresses into wedding gowns, and often we piece together several when they begin to get worn out."

LET THE WEDDING BELLS RING . . . 20-year-old Jane Blake, London typist, gets final fitting on wedding gown selected at Gainsborough Film Studios

Upstairs, in a room lined with hundreds of wedding dresses, 20-year-old June Blake, London typist, poked her head through a billowing cloud of white satin, and smiled happily as the long skirt fell round her feet. Downstairs a long queue of anxious brides-to-be waited their turn to be fitted.

"This one's perfect," she said as she fixed the zipper on a beautifully cut wedding gown. "It's been worn in two films. And I've got Jean Kent's headdress, mantilla type, which she wore at her own wedding."

June pulled on a pair of plastic high heeled shoes and surveyed them with satisfaction. Hire charge is 80 cents for a week. They are "export only" surplus, unprocurable in the retail stores.

"I've 32 coupons to last from this month until November. I've spent 18 on a going away suit, seven on a pair of walking shoes, and seven on one cotton dress for my honeymoon in Devon."

June looked at her utility stockings with disgust.

"My fiance, who is Canadian, is bringing me some nylons when he comes next week from Kingston, Ontario, so now I'm all set," she said. "Just imagine, for no coupons and only £4.13.6 ($18.85), I've got the dress, the headdress and the shoes."

Stockpile Depleted

And the future Mrs. James Ruddell, handkerchief between her lips to keep the lipstick from her dress, disappeared again to the folds of white satin as she struggled out of it.

Gainsborough has headaches in their role as fairy godmother.

"We've hundreds of dresses," Beha explained, "but we need many more, and we just haven't enough in stock."

He smiled broadly. "Then there are the service girls—romantic at heart, but stocky in figure after good feeding."

"They come in here and ask, for instance, for the dress Dulcie Gray or Anne Crawford wore in "Two Sisters" and it's only when they have insisted on trying them on and find they can't do them up by five or six inches, that they believe me when I say their figure is just slightly different.

All the Accessories

Joe Shelton's wedding dress from "Waterloo Road" is a great favorite—but only the slinky can wear it. Margaret Lockwood's cobweb lace affair from "Love Story" is the most expensive; worth £100 ($400) new, it can be hired for under £5 ($20).

Gainsborough provides also such luxuries as wedding cake ornaments, bluebirds, orange blossom headdresses, and even bust improvers. "We've got none of these at the moment," said Beha, "they are all out, every single pair."

Three hundred girls got married in Gainsborough dresses over Easter weekend alone. Thousands have had their "white weddings" since the scheme started a year ago. Hundreds of thousands of coupons have been saved.

"One of our brides came back in last week and asked for a christening robe for her baby," Beha explained. "We made a beauty for her out of a wedding dress which was really too far gone to wear again. It looked lovely."

Be Smart

DOTS AND DASH—a pleasing combination indeed when it comes to newest looking summer blouses. A wise choice of lovely batiste, sheer lawn, or crisp muslin insures the easy way to maintain flower freshness through quick laundering.

Breakfast on the Porch

BRIGHT Sunday mornings are good times to yield to the temptation to have breakfast out-of-doors. And it's a wonderful feeling to eat a leisurely breakfast within full view of summer flowers. If you have an open porch, by all means set the table there. If not, enlist the aid of strong arms and move a table and chairs right out in the yard.

If you use the tray system, there won't be much additional work or many extra footsteps. Put the necessary china and silverware on trays and let the family help with the carrying. Use gay paper tablecloth and napkins and decorate the table with a bowl of garden flowers.

Sunday breakfast often takes the place of two meals. So it's best to plan the menu with a few extras to make it hearty. But make it a simple, help-yourself type of meal—you can enjoy it as much as the rest of the family.

Bowls of fresh peaches and cream
Eggs scrambled in a double boiler
Hot baking powder biscuits
Jam jelly and preserves (right from the jars)
Hot coffee

As a timesaver, the fresh peaches can be eaten right from the hands. Cook the eggs in a double boiler until not quite firm. Then carry the double boiler right out to the table. The eggs will finish cooking and stay hot for second helpings. The biscuits can be baked in advance and kept hot in a convenient bun warmer.

'Okla.'s' Staying Month This Trip

By Richard L. Coe

"OKLAHOMA!" will relight the National Monday night, August 11 . . . This will be the National Company, now playing Philadelphia . . . The run will be for four weeks . . . Which means that by Saturday night, September 6, that most lovable of America's musical plays will have done a full two months in the National Capital . . . The first two weeks were for the Guild subscribers and the second two-week engagement hit an all-time high at the National's box office for mail orders received . . . As though in honor of this news is tonight's Watergate concert . . . The National Symphony will play excerpts from the Richard Rodgers score . . . Cellist-Golfer Howard Mitchell, the orchestra's associate conductor, will, as we say in "Oklahoma!" beat time . . . We can't think of anything nicer than sitting at the Watergate and drifting away on Rodgers' purty toons.

FORMER SECRETARY of State James F. Byrnes told us the other day that a lot of folks seem to think he's now completely in the movie game . . . 'Tain't so . . . The South Carolinian says he's "engaged in law practice and like any other lawyer has many different clients." . . . Though he is a counsel to Eric Johnston and the MPA, and another of his clients is Twentieth Century-Fox, he's emphatically not a movie man in the ordinary sense, despite some stories to the contrary . . . He's a member of Hogan & Hartson in the Colorado Building . . . and his voice has that combination of charm and force you get from all good "sand-lappers."

WARNER BROTHERS are readying their own newsreels for release this autumn . . . They're hoping to have natural color in 'em, a trick tried as early as 1929, but the color processes of that day weren't quick enough . . . It will be interesting to see just how much of a house organ these newsreels become . . . Too often, under the guise of "news," plugs for the home team are inserted with the real stuff . . . As in Metro's "News of the Day" we caught with the opening of "Fiesta" at the Palace . . . Between the Midwest flood and the Paris conference we were fed a juicy dose picturing a new sign above New York's Loew's State . . . 'Twas said this is unique for its height, though it didn't look any bigger than Broadway's other torch-holders . . . Will Warners go along with this newsreel trick and sandwich in puffs for their coming attractions as events of shattering import?

SAUCERS IN THE SKY, for all we know, might be plugs for "The Hucksters" . . . When you call Loew's Capitol, Palace or Columbia these days you get Marie Cannon's breathless voice saying: "LovethatHucksters Loew'sTheaters justaminuteplease." We won't go into the story about the lady who called up and said: 'Wait a minute, there's someone else on the line talking about hucksters. I want to speak to Loew's Theaters."

LILY LODGE is so neat a name to find on a theater program you almost feel it's a dreamed-up stage monicker, a combination worked out for a fictional character, say, by Edith Wharton . . . But it's a real one . . . And last night made its first showing on the programs of the Westport (Conn.) Country Playhouse . . . She was a minor player directed by John C. Wilson in "French Without Tears," starring Hollywood's William Eythe . . . Lily is the 17-year-old daughter of Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge and we hope she'll some day be able to see that mellifluous name in lights.

DIRECTOR WILSON, by the way, will be one of the first producers on the National's schedule next fall . . . With the Theater Guild, he's pretty well set for the two weeks beginning October 6 for "The Winslow Boy," the Terence Rattigan play which has just won the Ellen Terry award in London for the "Best British Play of 1946."

"SIMON BOLIVAR" is at last to be filmed by RKO-Radio, Production Chief Dore Schary announces . . . "At last" because Dore was working on that one here before the war . . . He was writing screenplays then and did a lot of research with the Bolivian Embassy while on a Washington visit . . . Now, after so many years, he's resumed the project again and promises an all-out effort on this "George Washington of South America."

TONIGHT: Two openings and miles apart . . . Nancy Carroll takes over the Olney stage with "Too Many Husbands," the Somerset Maugham comedy . . . And out at Bailey's Cross Roads, the Cross Roaders' barn theater will bring forth John Patrick's comedy of Allied warriors, "The Hasty Heart."

"ODD MAN OUT." Kathleen Ryan and James Mason in a scene from the Carol Reed film opening Thursday at the Metropolitan. Mason plays a leader of Belfast's Irish Republican Army hunted by the police

It's All So Simple For Bernard Baruch

New York.—Bernard Baruch expressed his optimism to some friends last week. He compared the public's present morale to a Wall st. bear market. "When the bear market hits bottom, that's when people are always more disturbed than at any other time. Yet, that is the bottom. From then on, it goes up." . . . Baruch added: "There is a simple solution to the economic problems of the world. It's this: You work and produce, and I'll buy. I work and produce, and you'll buy."

Bernard Baruch

George Summerlin, the State Department's Chief of Protocol—who died last week—was confronted with countless diplomatic problems during his career. He confessed that his most difficult one was in greeting the man Italy sent to Washington as its Ambassador, after its capitulation to the Allied forces . . . "When you greet the Ambassador of a country you've been at war with," Sumerlin was asked, "what's the first thing to do?" . . . "The first thing to do," said Summerlin, "is to forget it."

During the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., this month Serge Koussevitzky will be host to a group of eminent musicians and critics who will participate in a stunt launching a new record-reproducing instrument. The new machine, built by RCA-Victor, will be matched for fidelity of tone against a full symphony orchestra . . . The Boston Symphony Orchestra will play a feew measures, and the machine will play a recording of the same measures by the same orchestra—and the critics will try to identify the original and the recording. The instrument will be called the "Berkshire." Two hundred will be sold to raise funds to be used for 200 Koussevitsky scholarships.

In the Stork Club the other night Charles Cambridge Green, the jeweler, was expressing his customary skepticism about all people and people's behavior. "But take a man like Einstein," said Paul Stewart, the director. "In 1903 Einstein predicted that in the last week of June, 1947, a new star would appear in the sky" . . . "So?" Green scoffed . . . "So," said Stewart, "last week the scientists looked in the sky with their big glasses, and there was the star" . . . "Proves nothing," Green stated. "The kid was guessin'."

Ferenc Molnar tells of a night in Venice years ago, when Morris Gest gave a party on a boat he had hired for the Canal Festival, in the Grand Canal, where 4000 gondolas and other craft were participating in the festival. Gest noticed a man he knew standing at the rail of the next boat. He shouted greetings, to Charles Evans Hughes, and then added: "Meet Ferenc Molnar, the famous playwright and wit" . . . Hughes bowed in acknowledgment. "Say something to Mr. Hughes," whispered Gest. Molnar, mindful only of the Venetian moon and the music, finally said something to Hughes. He shouted: "Sing 'Valencia'" . . . "And if I ever meet Charles Evans Hughes again," sighed Molnar, "I must ask him something which has puzzled me ever since. For all I saw was his beard moving. I don't know whther he was singing 'Valencia,' or saying that he didn't know the words."

Merle Miller has been named the new managing editor at Harper's magazine . . . Michael Todd says that the new musical he will produce in the fall will feature tall girls and low gags . . . Henry Morgan, the radio star, is writing a film musical . . . Mary Pickford has her business eye on the Goldwyn studio. She says his lease on the property expires shortly . . . The mobs, who once controlled the area and dumped their victims into the lakes there, are trying to move back into Sullivan County. Governor Dewey has ordered the State Police to maintain night patrols . . . Richard Dyer-Bennett has opened a school of minstrelsy in Aspen, Colo. It's the first in America, and the first since the sixteenth century.

Herman Shumlin, Howard Fast and the others of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee who were convicted of contempt in refusing to answer questions by the House Un-American Activities Committee, will appeal to the Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia . . . Veteran court observers expect that Dr. Edward Barsky, chairman, will be sentenced to six months and a $1000 fine, while the others will be sentenced to three months and a $500 fine—and that all of the jail sentences will be suspended.

'The Voice' Can't Make Body And Soul Meet on the Screen

Hollywood.—Our latest feud is over Elliot Lewis' voice. Seymour Nebenzal, who wanted a new screen voice, got him to narrate "Heaven Only Knows." Then Enterprise snagged him to do the same thing for "Body and Soul." So Nebenzal figures he won't have the chance of debuting the voice on the screen. But the only one who should be angry is Elliot, our No. 1 radio actor, who doesn't get his face in either picture. . . . Who says sin doesn't pay? "Duel in the Sun" is reported to have brought in eight million dollars already.

Jesse Lasky, who has been searching for an unknown to play the lead in "The Miracle of the Bells, finally has signed David Selznick's discovery, Valli, who certainly will not be unknown when "The Paradine Case" is released. So, instead of Jesse building up a star for himself, he'll help Selznick build up Valli. Suzanne Cloutier was a high runner-up for the part. . . . Mike Curtiz and Warners are again planning to produce "The Life of Marilyn Miller"—this time with Mike's new discovery, Doris Day, and that wonderful comic dancer, Ray Bolger. The latter will be here within two weeks to huddle with Curtiz on the picture. Doris was dancing with a Fanchon and Marco unit at 14 years of age. Then she broke her leg; and while it was healing, she learned to sing . . . Diana Douglas, Kirk's wife, took the role offered her in "Sign of the Ram," but not a salary cut that the studio wanted to give her. Atta girl, Diana!

How It Works

Albert Glasser, 31-year-old studio composer-conductor, formerly was an usher at the Hollywood bowl, where he'll share conducting honors with Paul Whiteman at the Gershwin memorial concert Saturday. . . . When Mary Jane Ward received the check for the movie rights to her book, "The Snake Pit," a friend said, 'you certainly hit the crack pot." . . . Miss Amena Peacock of Tampa, Fla., writes: "Just heard 'Margie' on 'This Is Hollywood,' and was thrilled by Marjorie Rambeau's performance as grandma. We've all missed her so much on the air and screen."

Souvenirs—of What?

A friend of mine rented a house that formerly belonged to Wendy Barrie, and on taking possession discovered four drawers filled with bullets of all sizes. It is thought that they belonged to Bugsy Siegel. . . . Fred Quimby is mighty happy because his "Cat Concerto" got the grand prize for technicolor cartoons at the Brussels world film festival. . . . Jesse Lasky, who owns the movie rights on the John Galsworthy story, "Apple Tree," thinks that Rene Ray would be perfect for it. Rene read one of her poems to Lasky. "And," said he, "as hard-hearted as people think I am, she brought tears to my eyes." Rene's has a tragic life. Both her father and fiance were lost in the London blitz.

First Things First

Jan Clayton turned down Redgers and Hammerstein's new musical, "Allegro," to remain with her husband, who is studying law at Loyola. . . . Joseph Von Sternberg was color coordinator on "Duel in the Sun," which means that he took care of Jennifer Jones' lush close-ups. . . . Gracie Allen and George Burns will head for New York and a round of gayety, while their children are in summer camp. . . . Betty Smith, who wrote "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," will soon have another novel on the stands. It's titled "Tomorrow Will Be Better." I hope her prophecy comes true.

Underwriters Laud District Fire Force

A comprehensive survey of Washington's fire department, by the National Board of Fire Underwriters declares the local department is a "strong and effective fire force, under good supervision."

The study, began last May at the request of Fire Chief Clement Murphy, makes nine recommendations for changes in the department, however.

The report, and its recommendations, will be placed before the D. C. Commissioners this week by Commissioner John Russell Young.

Other recommendations include establishment of four new pumper companies; annual testing of all pumpers; more prompt use of salvage equipment where practicable at fires; the same response to telephone alarms for fires in buildings as for boxes unless it is definitely known that the fire is small; and eventually, additional space to relieve the crowded condition of the department's repair shop.

The report declared that newly developed areas of the city make additional pumpers and ladder companies necessary, although distribution of equipment otherwise is good.

P-TA Conference To Start Today

The three-day conference of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers is scheduled to get under way this morning at the University of Maryland at College Park.

Representatives of the congress' 40,500 members will hear Mrs. Robert G. Doty, president, deliver the introductory address, "The Keynote of the Conference," at 10:15 a. m. This year the annual summer affair is featuring the general theme "Assignment for Tomorrow," with the accent on juvenile problems.

Car Shortage Crisis Due in Late Summer

This will result from continued high-level business activity and expected bumper crops, it said.

A department statement said there were 24,000 fewer freight cars in operation today than at the beginning of 1946, with "unprecedented peacetime demands" being made on transportation systems.

"Indications are that the shortage will not quickly be ended," the statement said.

The department said that although a program was drawn up to produce 10,000 domestic freight cars a month by the middle of this year, car builders reported recently they expected to ship only about 7000 cars this month. The builders, said the department, reported lack of steel as the principal retarding factor.

Riots Kill 23 And Hurt 138

London, July 7 (U.P.).—A Daily Telegraph Calcutta dispatch reported tonight that 23 persons were known killed and 138 wounded today in the most violent Hindu-Moslem riots in months and that casualties were still pouring into hospitals.

Rioting started when Moslems marched through the streets carrying the body of a Moslem police officer slain by a Hindu gunman Sunday night.

Police dispersed the procession with tear gas and shots when rioting started, the dispatch said, but by that time fighting had spread over an area too wide to control.

Streetcars were stopped and passengers dragged out and beaten, the dispatch said. The cars were set afire.

A curfew was imposed tonight, the dispatch said, and British troops were detailed to search pedestrians for weapons.

Peron Peace Plan Is Sent To Americas

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 7 (U.P.).—An Argentine "proposal for a declaration of peace" was forwarded today to all American republics as a follow-up to the speech of President Juan D. Peron Sunday pledging his country to spiritual and material aid to the world in pursuit of a real peace.

Accompanying the declaration went a note by Foreign Minister Juan D. Bramuglia to his fellow American foreign ministers emphasizing "the grave hours through which the world is passing."

The declaration paralleled, in General terms, Peron's speech. It appealed to governments throughout the world to consolidate internal and international peace "as the only means of securing the happiness of human beings."

Before they left, Gonzalez whole-heartedly indorsed United States proposals for the military co-ordination of the American republics and said he even favored a continental general staff to coordinate defense.

Walker Is Indorsed For D. C. Legion Head

Joseph A. Walker, sr., 809 Varnum st. nw., has been indorsed by the Fort Stevens Post, American Legion, as a candidate for the office of Legion commander of the Department of the District of Columbia.

The office will be filled when the Department holds its annual convention at the Statler, July 24-26. Walker served as post commander of Fort Stevens Post, and headed that post's Americanism committee for 14 years.

Michigan Society Picnic

Members of the Michigan State Society will picnic tonight at Parkades Park, Sherrier pl. and Edmunds pl. nw. from 5 p. m. until 10 p. m., President George D. O'Brien announced.

Waynesboro Opens Sesqui Celebration

Waynesboro, Pa., July 7 (Spl.).—Waynesboro is celebrating its 150th birthday.

Thousands of well-wishers from Franklin and nearby counties have swamped this town of 12,000 for the dawn to dark festivities, scheduled to run through Friday.

Likely as not, they've been welcomed by long-bearded, full-mustached city officials and businessmen, who decided back last February to grow the fuzz in honor of the city's sesquicentennial.

The hair-conscious patriots will be rewarded at the close of the celebration, when the Whisker Club's outstanding member is selected in a contest in the school stadium. The time—10:30 p. m. Friday.

Tomorrow, the Rotary Club will present a special anniversary program at its weekly luncheon in the Anthony Wade Hotel. A teen-agers' parade will be held at 2 p. m., followed by a field meet at 3 p. m. At 9:45 there will be a fireworks display in the school stadium.

On Wednesday the swelling population will be further bolstered by 6000 firemen, arriving for their forty-sixth annual convention. The firemen will come from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, according to Burgess Harry C. Funk.

Delegates will register at the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association in Firehall from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., and at 10 a. m. the opening session of the convention will begin in the YMCA.

From 10 a. m. until noon novelty street acts will be held and at 11:30 a. m. there will be a firemen's memorial service. At 2 p. m. residents will turn out to witness a "fashion parade of yesteryear" and at 6:30 p. m. there will be a firemen's banquet at the "Y."

On Thursday, highlights of the celebration will be a mammoth firemen's parade at 1:30 p. m., followed by a band contest and a fireworks display. Friday's program will linclude a firemen's drill contest at 11:30 a. m., a civic parade at 2 p. m., and presentation of the "Crossroads Review" at 8:30 p.m. in the school stadium.

Tuck to Name Personnel of Rent Boards

Richmond, Va., July 7 (AP).—Governor Tuck today was confronted with the task of recommending as quickly as possible to the Federal housing expediter in Washington the names of Virginians needed to help Uncle Sam administer the new Federal rent control act of 1947.

A local board of five members is required for each of 22 defense rental areas of Virginia. The local boards, all of whom must be volunteers, will have as their major functions the prevention of inflation, the stabilization of rent levels and the adjustment of hardship cases.

The boards will be asked to advise the housing expediter regarding decontrol of rental areas, the adequacy of rent levels, and on any matters dealing with the operations of rent control generally. The board members will not be paid a salary, but the Federal Government is supposed to provide each board with office space.

Under the new rent control law, any recommendation made by a local board must be approved or disapproved within 30 days by the Washington office and if a recommendation is not accepted by the Federal housing expediter, the local board which makes it must be notified in writing by the expediter.

The Virginia defense rental areas, each of which must have a local advisory board on rent control, include:

Bristol-Kingsport, Tenn., Arlington-Alexandria, Blackstone, Covington, Charlottesville, Cape Charles Front Royal, Danville, Hampton Roads, Lexington, Lynchburg, Petersburg, Quantico, Rafford-Pulaski, Richmond, Roanoke, Winchester, Yorktown, Bluefield, Fredericksburg, Staunton and Wise.

Chinese Reds Held Getting Soviet Arms

Mukden, Manchuria, July 7 (U.P.).—Gen. Sun Li-jen, deputy commander in chief of government forces in Manchuria, charged today that Chinese Communists are shipping food over the Trans-Siberian Railway to Russia in exchange for arms and ammunition.

General Sun, who arrived in Mukden yesterday from Changchun en route to Nanking, where he will report to government heads on the grave Manchurian situation, said the Communists were shipping large amounts of soybeans to Russia. He claimed they were being loaded at Harbin, largest city under Communist administration.

General Sun said that in recent battles the Communists laid down "heavier artillery barrages than the Japanese ever fired." He claimed that most of the Communists' equipment was supplied by the Russians from Japanese stocks taken from Mukden and Changchun arsenals after the war.

He admitted that although the Communists failed to take Changchun or Szepingkai, the 70-mile rail line between the two cities was "almost irreparably damaged."

Curb Pumping Of Ship Waste, Lane Demands

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Governor Lane today called on the new Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to curb the contamination caused by ships which discharge bilge waste in inland waters.

In a letter to Dr. Joseph H. McLean, commission chairman, the chief executive asked him to cooperate with Capt. George E. McCabe, Baltimore port captain, in halting "these violations and the detrimental effect they are having not only on marine life but on the pleasure resorts of the bay and its tributaries."

The Governor said he also asked other agencies to collaborate in any program that might be developed. He specifically mentioned the Steamship Trade Association, headed by E. Arch Seidl; the Maryland Pilots Association, headed by Capt. Presley Carter; and the Baltimore Office of the U. S. District Engineer.

Bathing Beaches Coated

"The disregard of regulations reached such proportions over the weekend," the Governor wrote McLean, "that most of the bathing beaches in the upper regions of the bay were coated with a thick scum of oil."

Detection of violators of these pollution regulations is a United States Coast Guard function, Lane noted, and prosecutions are handled by the District Engineer's office.

The commission has had little time to formulate its rules under authority of a 1947 legislative act, he added, but "I feel that this is a situation in which this new State agency can play an important part."

Hard to Detect

"Captain McCabe has pointed out that the chief difficulty in enforcement is the detection of vessels in the act of discharge of prohibited waste materials.

"He pointed out that the State has in its conservation force numerous small vessels which might effectively cooperate with the Coast Guard in the detection and prosecution of ships' masters who disregard the regulations."

Lane said he recommended a conference between McLean and McCabe at the Baltimore port captain's request. McCabe had suggested that the commission has powers now which would supplement Federal action against pollution caused by vessels.

Louis J. O'Donnell, executive assistant, said McCabe asked all persons who witness the pumping of bilge waste into the bay or its trubutaries to forward a sample of the scum to his office. Analysis of the specimen simplifies identifying the violating craft, he explained.

Baptist Summer Assembly

Frederick, Md., July 7 (AP).—The annual Maryland Baptist Summer Assembly will be held at Hood college here July 28 through August 3. An earlier report had stated erroneously the session would begin today.

Agriculture Instructors of Va. to Meet

Blacksburg, Va., July 7 (AP).—"Vocational Agriculture in the Total Program of Education" will be the theme of the thirtieth annual conference of the State's 300 instructors of vocational agriculture, at Virginia Tech beginning tomorrow.

Speakers at the opening day's session of the four-day program will include Dr. Paul D. Sanders, editor of the Southern Planter; Dr. Carsie Hammonds, professor of agricultural education at the University of Kentucky; Dr. W. S. Newman, acting president of VPI; F. B. Cale, State supervisor of agriculture education; Dr. Fred M. Alexander, supervisor of secondary education, and Prof. H. W. Sanders, head of the Vocational Education Department at VPI.

Wednesday's schedule will include talks by Edward A. Wayne of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond; Dowell J. Howard, assistant superintendent of public instruction; Seldon Watkins, assistant supervisor, Bureau of Teaching Materials, Richmond; School Superintendents R. L. Lacy, Halifax County, and Roy E. Kyle, Carroll; D. A. Tucker, Tech assistant extension horticulturist; and E. W. Mundie, extension soil conservationist at VPI.

New officers of the Virginia Vocational Agriculture Instructors Association will be elected and installed at a meeting Wednesday afternoon, at which Harvey D. Seal, Ashland, president, will preside.

George W. Dean, Charlottesville, State forester, will speak Thursday morning after talks on their specialties by Dr. T. B. Hutcheson, Tech dean of agriculture; Dr. H. M. Love, Prof. C. E. Seltz and Prof. C. W. Holdaway, heads respectively of the V. P. I. departments of agriculture, economics, agricultural engineering, and dairy husbandry, and by J. O. Rowell, Tech extension entomologist.

R. N. Anderson, new State director of vocational education, will give the windup talk on the program Friday morning on "How Vocational Agriculture Can Contribute to the Vocational Education Program in Virginia," and the conference will close at noon after reports of committees and a summary of the proceedings by Professor Saunders.

Truck Driver Sought

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—United States Commissioner Edwin A. Kirby issued a warrant today charging James F. Myers, Baltimore truck driver with embezzlement in the disappearance of a trailer truck.

The complaint by Myers' employer, Edward Kirby, said Myers left that city April 1 with the truck and trailer valued at $13,800 and $219.85 in cash.

Robert C. Eardley, assistant United States district attorney, said Kirby told him Meyers might be en route to Tampa, Fla., with a load of cheese from a Chicago firm.

Church Plans Celebration of Its 100th Year

Leonardtown, Md., July 7 (Spl.).—The 100th anniversary of the establishment of St. Aloysius Catholic Church here will be marked by ceremonies during the last week of July, the Rev. Louis J. Wheeler, pastor, announced today.

Building of the church was started in 1846, and it was completed in 1847. The Rev. John Enders was the first pastor. The site of the church is at the entrance to the old St. Aloysius Catholic Cemetery.

The week's program will begin on July 27 with a pontifical mass led by the Most Rev. Lawrence J. Sheehan, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore and Washington; the Very Rev. Ferdinand C. Wheeler, rector of Woodstock College, Woodstock, Md.; the Rev. Lawrence J. Kelly; the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, pastor of Scranton University, and Msgr. Thomas Kingsbury.

On Monday, July 28, the program will consist of a solemn requiem mass for the deceased priests and members of the parish, led by Father Wheeler who will be assisted by the Rev. James T. Wilkinson of Hollywood, Md., and the Rev. C. H. Rohleder, assistant pastor here. The mass will be followed in the evening by an informal parish social at St. Mary's Academy.

Similar programs will be held throughout the remainder of the week under the direction of Father Wheeler.

In Baltimore

Oystermen Of Maryland To Be Heard

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—Oystermen on the Maryland side of the Potomac will be heard by the Joint Virginia-Maryland Fisheries Study Commission in Baltimore tomorrow.

A similar session was held at Colonial Beach, Va., a month ago for Virginia fishermen. A meeting Wednesday will be devoted to a discussion of the problem in executive session.

Members of the Maryland Senate and others have been invited to the hearing at 1 p. m. at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

The six-member commission was appointed following a contention by Virginia that a law passed by the 1947 Maryland Legislature, providing for trial in Maryland courts of Virginians who violate the dredging law, violated an earlier agreement that each State would try its own lawbreakers. Under a compact of 1785, laws governing the Potomac fisheries are made by Maryland but Virginians have equal fishing rights.

Cochairmen of the group are Robert H. Archer, Bel Air, and C. O'Conor Goolrick, Fredericksburg, Va. Other members are F. W. C. Webb, Salisbury; William Hilgenberg, Baltimore; W. Tayloe Murphy, Warsaw, Va., and Mayor William D. Williams, Colonial Beach.

Natural Resources Board in Session

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Members of the Board of Natural Resources left here today on the State yacht Potomac for Solomons Island, where they will conduct a business session at the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory.

It is the first meeting under the new chairman, John E. Clark, delegate from Harford County. Clark also is chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

The board will discuss licenses, fees and taxes which apply to natural resources; the progress of the six-year conservation program, and a report of the Bayside Park Committee.

Pianist Slashes Throat, Sprints About Ship Nude

Harbor Springs, Mich., July 7 (AP).—A crazed piano player cut his throat, then ran naked among passengers of the D. & C. steamer Western States during a weekend holiday cruise, ship's authorities reported today.

The man, Ormund W. Stowe, 39, Detroit, died in Lockwood Hospital at Petoskey, Mich., five hours after the incident late Saturday.

Capt. William MacDonald, superintendent of the D. & C. Detroit Division, said witnesses told of seeing Stone race along the deck after slashing his throat, finally collapsing and falling down the grand stairway of the second deck.

Owners Doubt City's Power To Condemn

Annapolis, Md., July 7 (AP).—Baltimore City's power to condemn property listed in a suit which opened in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court today was questioned by counsel for owners of the land, a 125-acre plot near Shipley.

George B. Woelfel, representing the owners, said he based his protest on an understanding that the land was marked for a "concession area," rather than for the actual municipal airfield proposed by Baltimore in the Friendship Church section.

The disputed property is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Sachs, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin G. Sachs.

Action in the first day of the present suit was delayed when a bus carrying jurors to inspect the property developed motor trouble and was late in returning. Testimony will continue tomorrow when various appraisals of the land value are expected to be introduced.

Police Executives In Cumberland Retire on Pension

Cumberland, Md., July 7 (AP).—The chief, assistant chief and two desk sergeants of Cumberland's local police force announced their retirement on pension today in one of the largest personnel turnovers in the history of the department.

Oscar A. Eyerman, who headed the force for 30 years, stepped down as chief and his assistant, John J. Treiber, followed suit.

Detective Lieut. Robert Emmett Flynn was named acting chief and Benjamin F. Gaffney was appointed acting assistant pending the outcome of civil service examinations to decide permanent successors.

The retirement of Desk Sergts. Milford L. Crabtree and Lawrence E. Meister will become effective July 15, when the pair will become eligible for pensions.

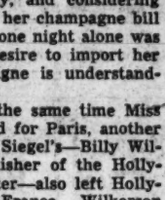
Trip of Slain Gangster's Girl Friend to Paris Arouses Curiosity of Federal Probers

By Drew Pearson

The Government probe into dapper Bugsy Siegel, slain Nevada gangster, reveals that he had some amazing contacts, high and low, bizarre and unique. He raised money in all sorts of interesting places, some apparently from his girl friend, Virginia Hill, and at one time several years ago from Charles Ward, one of the leading businessmen of the Northwest.



Virginia Hill

In 1938, United States agents, then investigating Siegel, found that he had received $20,000 from Ward, now head of Brown & Bigelow, well known St. Paul, Minn., stationery firm. The money was accompanied by a letter telling Siegel that this was all Ward could raise at the time. Later Ward sent Siegel a check for $80,000, raising the total payment to $100,000. Apparently Ward was not anxious to hide the transaction, or he would not have made the payment by check.

Asked by this columnist about the payments, Mr. Ward said that he had borrowed some money from Siegel and was paying it back.

Mission to Paris

However, what does arouse the curiosity of Government agents is the departure of Virginia Hill, together, with a Chinese woman doctor, Dr. Chung, and a French wine merchant for Paris a few weeks before Bugsy was bumped off. Miss Hill said she was going to France to establish a champagne agency, and considering the fact that her champagne bill at Ciro's on one night alone was $7000, her desire to import her own champagne is understandable.

At about the same time Miss Hill departed for Paris, another associate of Siegel's—Billy Wilkerson, publisher of the Hollywood Reporter—also left Hollywood for France. Wilkerson was nominal owner and builder of the Flamingo Hotel, ornate gambling casino in Las Vegas, though the real owner was Siegel.

Siegel is reported to have run into financial difficulties with the Flamingo and to have been anxious to borrow $1,500,000 shortly before his death. The Flamingo, incidentally, had cost a minimum of three million dollars to build.

Virginia Hill has been one of the most lavish entertainers in Hollywood, spending an estimated $200,000 a year. It was at her Beverly Hills home that Bugsy Siegel was killed. A gold key to the house was found in his pocket.

Marshall Pleads

It was not entirely coincidence that on the day the Big Three Marshall Plan Committee broke up in Paris, Secretary of State Marshall went up to the Capitol, pleaded with the Senate almost on bended knee to pass the Mundt bill authorizing the State Department to conduct foreign propaganda.

For, while Marshall was pleading with the Senate not to muzzle the State Department's "Voice of America," Russian propaganda was blaring forth the Molotov version of why the Paris Conference failed.

That version was that the U. S. A. wanted to meddle with the sovereignty of small European nations, wanted to dominate Europe, wanted to tell each country who it could or could not have in power.

Actually, the chief disrupter, dominator and meddler in Europe has been not the U. S. A. but the USSR—as witness Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Romania and to some extent Austria and Greece.

"The District Line" by Bill Gold is being suspended during Bill's vacation.

And a large part of Europe has come to believe the Soviet propaganda machine—simply because the State Department hasn't had sufficient means to give the other side of the story.

A little over a year ago, for instance, the Russians sent a wheat-laden ship to Marseille to relieve French hunger. When it arrived, the streets of Marseille were bedecked with the sickle and hammer, an official holiday was declared, the populace paraded through the streets to welcome the Soviet vessel.

What the French people didn't know was: (1) that they had to pay Russia for the wheat—and in dollars, not francs; (2) that simultaneously several United States ships were arriving in Havre with wheat which was a free gift from the American people.

However, the United States had no adequate propaganda machine to publicize its gifts to France, and the Russians, backed by a virile Communist Party, got all the credit.

Baruch's "Cold War"

Best description of what's going on in Europe today was given by Elder Statesman Bernie Baruch when he said we were in a "cold war."

(Actually Baruch gives credit to Ghost-Writer Herbert Bayard Swope for coining the phrase.)

What the Swope-Baruch team meant, of course, was that we are in a war of nerves, politics, and labor movements. If the U. S. A. can woo and win certain political groups in France and Italy, it can keep western Europe from going Communist. If, on the other hand, Russia can woo and win them, Europe will definitely go Communist.

During the war, the Office of Strategic Services spent millions smuggling United States labor leaders behind enemy lines to make contacts with German, Italian, Austrian, French, Norwegian labor leaders, thus undermining Axis policies and industry. In today's cold war the same thing is even more necessary—but with not one cent being spent on it.

In contrast, the Russians have agents in United States factories, in United States labor unions, even in United States Government offices.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

The East player of today's deal in a family game thought he had a perfectly good double of six spades, holding four-plus high-card tricks, but he failed to take a trick.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	2 ♣	3 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Dble	Pass	Pass
Redble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 6 ♣.

Mrs. Holmes O'Ryan played it at six spades, redoubled, and it was cold against any opening lead. West led a club and declarer ruffed to North, took the king, queen of spades, drawing trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds, entered North by ruffing a club and ran the diamonds and spades.

Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

You Are My Partner

You are a partner in my life . . . Because you are my friend . . . And may our partnership be one . . . That will not ever end . . . You share my every joy throughout . . . The seasons and the years . . . And you would gladly take from me . . . My troubles and my tears . . . You never interfere with me . . . Or criticize unless . . . You feel that you are doing it . . To bring me happiness . . . My faith and perseverance are . . . Inspired by your smile . . . And somehow you make everything . . . Seem more and more worth while . . . I thank you most sincerely from . . . The bottom of my heart . . . And every day I hope and pray . . . That we will never part.

CREDIT THIS LITTLE FELLOW'S ACCOUNT!

● A sharp tingling crack of the bat meeting ball . . . an excited hubbub of youthful cries . . . short, bared legs pumping, flashing across the diamond . . . a desperate lunge . . . and the proud and happy expression on the little fellow who saved the day with his great catch . . . and earned the sincere applause for that extra effort.

● It's all in the great American tradition of giving credit where credit is due . . . whether for an outstanding catch . . . a special courtesy by a salesperson . . . a very helpful suggestion from a floor manager . . . or as a service to the community.

● Community service is a specialty of The Hecht Company . . . and the thousands and thousands of Washingtonians who avail themselves of our charge account systems make us as proud and happy as the little fellow . . . and is ample reward for that extra effort.

● We have tried to make our credit service suitable for most any type of credit required . . . with a choice of any one of three plans . . . ar all . . . to help you get what you need when you need it . . . and allow you to make your payments long after you have taken your purchases home.

● It's convenient . . . and budget-wise to use our system . . . and we cordially invite you to visit our credit office on the fourth floor the next time you are in The Hecht Company . . . and let our trained personnel help you adjust your purchasing budget to the complete satisfaction of your needs.
